NORTH TORONTO.

This suburb is more and more attracting the attention of capitalists and investors. The time is rapidly approaching when it will have all the advantages as regards railway facilities that West Toronto Junction now has, while it is much more desirably situated and decidedly more suitable for residences. It is much nearer the City and the means of getting to and fro (which will be very much improved by the Belt Line Railway) are at present equal to most and better than many places which are in the city.

Compare prices of places equi-distant from the corner of Yonge and Queen-streets:
