Notes and Comments.

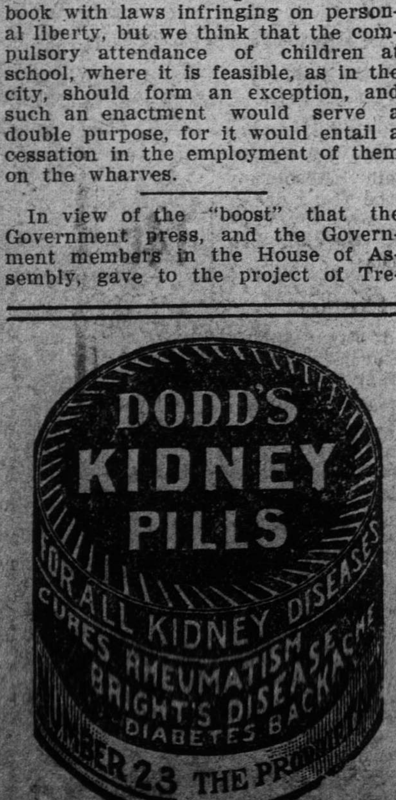
The movement to put a stop to the employment of young boys on the wharves, appears to us a commendable one. If it is true that boys of ten or eleven put in a whole day's work on the wharves, then it is high time some step was taken to prohibit the exploitation of the labor of young boys. Indeed, the movement should go further and insist that these boys should attend school. We do not know of any sufficient reason why the attendance of the boys and girls of the city, who are under the age, say of thirteen, should not be made compulsory. We are not greatly in love with the stocking of the statute book with laws infringing on personal liberty, but we think that the compulsory attendance of children at school, where it is feasible, as in the city, should form an exception, and such an enactment would serve a double purpose, for it would entail a cessation in the employment of them on the wharves.

In view of the "boost" that the Government press, and the Government members in the House of Assembly, gave to the project of Trefethen and Lord, who were going to work miracles with our fisheries, it is somewhat of a come-down for the Premier to acknowledge that it has fizzled out completely. It may be remembered how importunate they were that Friend Morris should call the Assembly together early in 1910 in order that this wondrous agreement might be endorsed. During last Session, Sir Edward Morris, as reported officially to-day, said: "We had the contract with Lord and Trefethen, men who came here highly recommended, and one of whom had been Mayor of Portland, Maine. As I said before, one of them is now very ill, and they have done nothing." So ends the 1910 fizzle.

The occasion of the admission was a reply the Premier attempted to criticism of the agreement between the Government and the Orr Newfoundland Company whose project is to reduce dog fish, offal and other things to manufacture glue and other fishery products. The burden of Mr. Kent's objection was the grant of a monopoly to the company. This objection was evaded by the Premier who made no attempt to meet it.

Mr. Kent said in part:—

"I refer to the method of giving a contractual monopoly. This is not the right way to handle this matter. The proper way is to hold out encouragement generally. It will be noticed that there are several objects in this agreement. First of all the object stated in the preamble of the Bill "the manufacture of guano fertilizer, glue and other like products." That is the desire that the contractors have in entering into this agreement. In Section 1 of the agreement the lessees agree to erect five reduction plants for the manufacture of fish products. That is a very broad phrase. The undertaking to erect reduction plants for the manufacture of fish products would not be very objectionable were it not that there are other sections allied with this which I think will place this company in a position to unfairly compete with some of the local manufactures. For instance the reduction of fish products will mean competition with the industry carried on by Mr. Clouston, the Lakes and others in the Colony. These contractors will be enabled to complete with such firms as these with the privileges which are given by this agreement, as for example, the exemption from duty for five years. Then again one of the objects of the agreement is to try and overcome that pest which is such an injury to the fishery, namely, the dog fish. Now, while the lessees undertake to manufacture dogfish into fertilizer during the term of this agreement, they are only bound to do that nominally. They are bound in the first Section to manufacture in the first year not less than 2000 tons of fish offal and material. That will probably be the output of the first factory erected. But as to the other factories to be erected there is no provision as to what the output is to be. Clause five of the agreement is the one that creates the monopoly—that clause provides that "The Gov- "ernment agrees to grant to the "lessees for five years from the 18th "day of January, 1913, the exclusive "right." That is during these five years they have the exclusive right of manufacture and export. As regards the second part of the section, that protects those who are now carrying on this business or who are now in negotiation with the government. This exclusive right is to be looked at in two ways. First it is the right to manufacture commercial products as a business, secondly it is to manufacture them for use. A farmer at present engaged in farming is probably manufacturing fertilizer out of fish. Supposing two years from now a person who is not farming at present wants to go into it and mix fertilizer for his ground. Must he go to this company and purchase the fertilizer, or import it? In other words is he forbidden to manufacture for his own farm? This thing is a patent right, an exclusive right to make a product. Supposing this company had a patent for the manufacture of fertilizer. No person could make fertilizer either for commercial or private use. I think there ought to be something provided to make it clear that this exclusive right is to make fertilizer as a commercial product only. Then again, I think the grant of a monopoly for the entire manufacture of glue from all kinds of materials is too broad. It ought to be limited to some specific product or material. But here you say glue from dogfish, and then "other commodities." That covers everything, without exception. It means that you have given a complete and entire monopoly for glue and fertilizer of all kinds except as against those who are already making it. This company with its franchises and exgemptions from duty and the monopoly which it is given will enter into unfair competition with them, and it is worth while considering whether during the five years which the monopoly will last it does not do injury to those factories which are in existence."



Death of Mrs. Capt. Bartlett.

Word was received in the city this morning that Mrs. S. Bartlett, of Brigus, passed away last evening. The deceased lady had been ailing for some time past, but the end came rather suddenly. Rev. J. W. Bartlett, Pastor of George St. Church, received word yesterday morning of the critical condition of his mother and left immediately by automobile for Brigus. In addition to the Rev. gentleman she leaves another son, Harold, who has done good work in Hudson Bay exploration, and one daughter, Edith. Her husband, Capt. Samuel Bartlett, was the Liberal candidate for Port de Grave District, in the election of 1909, and has had much experience in navigation of Arctic waters, like many of the Bartletts. To her husband, children and other relatives, the Evening Telegram tenders sympathy in their bereavement.

If you want to preserve your teeth and keep them white, one of the best things to use regularly for that purpose is Sanident Tooth Paste, which will do that admirably. Sanident Tooth Paste has been in competition with all the best dentrifices on the market, and though it has not been extensively advertised has made a name for itself until it is now the most popular tooth paste on our shelves. Sanident is a tooth paste that never disappoints. Pleasant to use it is yet most effective in cleansing the teeth and gums, and its regular use renders tartar deposits impossible. The best brush to use it with is the Sanident Brush, which is of improved shape and whose hairs do not come out. Price (Paste) 25c., Brush 35c. each.

Tried To-Day.

The prisoner Kennedy, who stole a 'wad' of notes, amounting to $140, belonging to Alexander Lewis, a fisherman, was before court to-day charged with the theft. The accused pleaded guilty to taking $17.50. This yarn was not believed by the judge and the prisoner was sentenced to six months imprisonment. It will be remembered Kennedy caused a sensation in the city a fortnight ago. After making the haul the accused passed over some of the 'dough' to his girl who was arrested. In attempting to leave the country the accomplice was caught. Meanwhile Kennedy, who was previously arrested, managed to get clear of police custody. After taking a health trip over the railroad and as far as Sydney, he returned, being recaptured at his home on Friday last. The same day the accomplice in the theft was released.

After the Money.

To-day the prisoner Kennedy who tole $140 from one Lewis was to-day in the West End with two of the police looking for the money. The party drove up Hamilton Street, and the belief was expressed by those who saw him that the man went with the officers to try another dash for liberty.

MONTREAL, May 29.

Papino Marlowe, fifteen months old, is dead after being treated by Dr. Friedmann with turtle serum, and several other Montreal patients of the famous Berlin scientist, whose treatment has been heralded as long looked for consumption cure, are in more serious condition than before the serum was administered. Doctor Crevier, medical director of Bruchesi Institute made this announcement today.

The Police Court.

One drunk was discharged on payment of cab-hire.

A fireman of Pilot's Hill, drunk, and breaking glass in prison cell, was fined $1.

Patrick Gray, for the larceny of a coat, got six months.

James Kennedy, who was charged with stealing over $100, but admitted taking $17.50, was also sent down for six months.

A cabman, drunk and disorderly in charge of a horse, had to pay $2 for his release.

A fireman of Battery Road and another of Pennywell Road, was each fined $2 or 7 days for being drunk and disorderly.

A laborer of Stephen Street, for kicking up a row in his home, was discharged.

A laborer of George St., drunk for the third time this year, was fined $4 or 14 days.

Got Six Months.

Paddy Gray, who, according to police statistics, has spent the greater period of the last five years in the Lakeside Inn, went on another prolonged sojourn to that institution today. Recently Paddy went on board a schooner to meet an outharbor friend as he called it and before leaving 'lifted' all the wearing apparel he could lay hands on. He appeared before Judge Knight to-day, charged with the larceny and got six months to do in the Penitentiary.

FEMALES FIGHT. — Two women who had a disagreement over their children, last evening, engaged in a fight at the head of Bambrick Street. They slugged each other with the finesse of pugilists, and the claret was flowing freeely when citizens interfered and stopped the mill. The irate ladies in parting, promised to renew the contest later and fight to a finish.

LONDON, To-day.

Postmaster General Samuels, when cross-examined at the trial of Cecil Chesterton, on the charges of publishing defamatory libels in the Eye Witness and New Witness, regarding Godfrey Isaacs, Managing Director of the Marconi Co., asked whether Mr. Isaacs wanted to be kept secret the clause by which the Government could end its agreement with the Marconi Company at the end of eighteen years. "No, I do not think it was that." "The clause," replied Mr. Samuels, "he wanted kept secret was one by which we could terminate the agreement at any time and cease to pay royalties by ceasing to use Marconi patent. I never assented to this being kept secret and he withdrew his request."

OTTAWA, To-day.

At one o'clock this morning, the Senate killed the Naval Bill by the Ross amendment to the motion for a second reading, which was carried by 51 to 27. The Speaker of the Senate then put the main motion of Senator Lougheed for the second reading, coupled with the Ross amendment. This was declared carried, on the same division and the Senate adjourned. This ends the Bill so far as this session is concerned, unless the Government decides to make provision for building the Dreadnoughts some other way.

EXPRESS DUE.—The Bruce express is due here at 4.30 p.m.

FISH SHIPMENT.—The schooner Nellie Louise, Burke, sailed to-day for Pernambuco, taking 4004 drums of fish, equivalent to 5,303 quintals, shipped by Bowring Bros.

BIG STORM.—From midnight until 9 a.m. to-day a hurricane of S.E. wind prevailed across country with torrential rain. As a result the express which left here Wednesday, was held up at Little River during the progress of the storm.

A BAD CASE.—Mr. Edward Cottell, of Harbor Grace, arrived here to-day by train to go to the hospital on Signal Hill. He suffers from cancer of the face, was in the General Hospital and was discharged incurable. The poor fellow is in a bad way and on arrival was looked after by Mr. Eli Whiteway.
