"August Flower"

Mrs. Sarah M. Black of Seneca, Mo., during the past two years has been affected with Neuralgia of the Head, Stomach and Womb, and writes: "My food did not seem to strengthen me at all and my appetite was very variable. My face was yellow, my head dull, and I had such pains in my left side. In the morning when I got up I would have a flow of mucus in the mouth, and a bad, bitter taste. Sometimes my breath became sho and I had such queer, tumbling, palpitating sensations around the heart. I ached all day under the shoulder blades, in the left side, and down the back of my limbs. It seemed to be worse in the wet, cold weather of Winter and Spring; and whenever the spells came on, my feet and hands would turn cold, and I could get no sleep at all. I tried everywhere, and got no relief before using August Flower Then the change came. It has done me a wonderful deal of good during the time I have taken it and is working a complete cure."

He Didn't Read The Papers.

He had a pocket full of cash, the proceeds of his farm.
And he came to see the city, never fearing any harm.
He met a dapper stranger who escorted him around
To where the jovial tiger and the elephant abound.
He dallied with the festive and he lingered by the bowl,
And he woke upon the sidewalk minus his plethoric roll
He was a jay? Of course he was, a green and verdant thing,
But he didn't read the papers, which accounts for everything.

He pined for sudden riches, so the bait he swallowed quick
When he has a chance to purchase very cheap a golden brick.
It cost him many dollars, near five thousand, may be more.
And the "gold brick" now is used to keep ajar his cottage door.
A chump? He was. He knows it now, and shuns all bunco men,
But he didn't read the papers, so he didn't know it then.

Bret Harte's young daughter, Miss Jessamy Harte, will make her literary debut in the July Ladies Home Journal with a most entertaining description of "Camp Life in the Adirondacks," in which it is claimed every evidence itself of inherited literary tendencies not unlike those evidenced in Bret Harte's earlier work. Miss Harte is a girl still in her teens, and has artistic as well as literary proclivities, as one of the illustrations accompanying her first article shows.

The Popular Science Monthly is rapidly coming to the front as an illustrated magazine. Until recently it published only a few simple drawings, where they were specially needed to supplement the text, but of late it has had more than sixty illustrations. Those in the article on American Pottery are especially noteworthy, and the other illustrated articles are Remarkable Bowlders, Tail-like Formations in Men, The Aviator Flying-Machine, and the Musk Ox. The front-piece is a portrait of Prof. Elias Loomis.

The Educational Review of the Atlantic Provinces enters upon its sixth volume with the issue of its June number. It has slwly but steadily increased in influence and value, so that it deserves more thau ever to be regarded as the Teachers' Organ of these Provinces.

The June unmber will be one of special interest to Teachers. It will contain 28 pages, with articles of greater interest than usual, in which a variety of educational subjects will be discussed. A Big Deal.

$250,000 paid for a Half Interest in the Trade Mark of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for the United States.

The brilliant reputation achieved by Dr. Williams Pink Pills in Canada has not only extended to the United States, but has led to an important business transaction. One of the best known American proprietary medicine houses, the head of which is the president of a leading National Bank in New York state, has recently purchased a half interest in the trade mark of the Dr. Williams Medicine Co. for the United States only, for which, we understand the consideration was $250,000. This sale is probably the first instance in which an American institution has purchased an interest in a Canadian remedy, and offers the very best proof of the sterling merits of Dr Williams' Pink Pills, as we may be sure that the American capitalists, before venturing so large a sum in the half interest of the trade mark, fully investigated and verified the claim made for the remedy. It is a tribute, too to Canadian medical science, which has brought to perfection this remarkmed icine.

The Rival Knife Makers.

When Sheffield first became famous for its cutlery a peculiar shaped knife, designed for a variety of uses. was made with great care and sent to the agent of the Cutler's company in London. On one of the blades were engraved the following challenge:

London, for thy life,
Show me such another knife

The London cutlers, to show that they were equal to their Sheffield brothers, made a knife, with a single well-tempered blade, having a cavity containing a rye straw 2½ inches in length, wholly surrounded by steel; yet, notwithstanding the fact that the blade was well tempered, the straw was not burned, singed or charred in the least. It is needless to add that the Sheffield cutlers acknowledged themselves outdone in ingenuity.

WOMEN'S COLUMN.

Conducted by the Ladies of the Sackville W. C. T. U.

Extracts from the Annual Address of Lady Henry Somerset.

(CONCLUDED.)

Much as we hear about the advantages of organization and mighty as have been its benefits, we believe they would have been impossible except for the co-operation of the press. No influence is, at present, so persuasive as printer's ink Whoever fails to rate the press at its true value has but grasped the fragments of the problem of reform. He is working with his left hand when he should have used the right, for thought is the worlds king, whose scepter is the pen, whose throne is the printing press and whose empire is public opinion. The organization that earliest perceives this truth and follows it most steadily will win the largest victories.

Nothing helps forward a great movement so much as some definite point in the future, toward which our effort can be directed. One year from this month there will be grouped on the lake shore in Chicago such an illustration of the world's progress as has not yet been witnessed. Four thousand men are daily at work erecting the magnificent buildings that are to house the Columbian Exposition. Three hundred acres of land were requisite for the Paris building; in Chicago six hundred are required. As one of the British board of managers it is my duty, as it would in any event by my pleasure, to urge upon our association throughout the UnitedKingdom to do their utmost to advocate the interests of this great object lesson of women's work.

"Life is neither a pleasure nor a pain. It is a serious business, to be entered upon with courage and in a spirit of self-sacrifice." These were De Tocqueville's leave-taking words to Charles Sumner when he was going home to be the great central figure in the fight for the abolition of slavery. For fifty years temperance reform has held its head above the surging waves of politics, making but little way against the billows of opposition, but holding on with a relentless purpose. To-day the strong lifeboat of reform is fairly launched, and boat? Across the shining beach, in the black darkness of the night, Grace Darling stepped forth in her intrepid purpose to rescue life. Are there not ten thousand women ready to respond to-day when the call goes forth to take an oar? Will not the mothers of our sons and sisters of humanity, come to the rescue in this hour of need? The voices will be silanced that tell us that womens sphere is her fireside only; and they will learn the great discovery which we have made, that the world is our home in the sense that John Wesley has said it was his parish. The past has not condemned the public work of women in the theater and music hall, but only in the church and in the government of those larger home circles that men call nations. If politics are not a fit subject for women's thought and action, it is because God and the golden rule have also been kept out? To her shall yet perhaps be given the task of setting the house in order and of cleansing the temple of government upon whose altars the dust of centuries has settled. "Any custom, traffic or party upon which a Christian woman cannot look with favor is irrevocably doomed. Its welcome of her presence and her power is to be the final test of its fitness to survive."

Nervous headache, female weaknesses pale and sallow complexions, suppressions, etc., speedily yield to Dr. William's Pink Aills. They enrich the blood restore shatterod nerves, produce rosy cheeks and the glow of health. Sold by all dealers, or will be sent post paid on receipt of price—50c. a box, or six boxes for $2.50—by oddressing Dr. William's Med. Co., Brockville, Ont. or Morristown, N. Y.

Butter.

Some facts for Consideration.

THE COMPETITION.

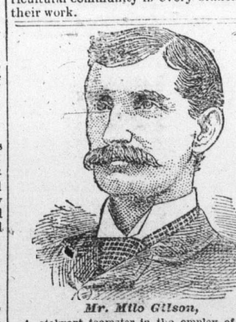
In his evidence before the committee of the House of Commons on agriculture a few days ago, the dairy commissioner cited some interesting facts in relation to this matter on the competition with which Canada was to contend in the British markets. He stated by of illustration that the province of Victoria had paid last year over a quarter of a million of dollars in bonusing the butter which was exported from that colony, and which competed with our Canadian butter in the English markets, and gave it as his opinion that if the Government of any country considers it prudent to bonus any article of produce which is exported, no one article can be bonused to greater advantage to the people than butter made during the winter months. He stated that judicious encouragement given to this industry for only three years would give such an impetus to it that Canada would export more creamery butter during the fourth winter than would be the case in 10 years without aid and assistance from the Government being rendered. He pointed out that the main difficulty lay in the providing of some new machinery for buildings which are already well equipped for cheesemaking.

The cost for providing the additional machinery, apparatus and utensils which are required for altering a cheese factory and equipping it as a butter factory factory for operation during the winter, would be from $750 to $800. Joint stock companies of farmers and individuals who own cheese factories are timid in the matter of investigating new machinery until they are quite assured that this business will be both profitable and permanent. The experience of one or two years would doubtless convince the farmers in every section where dairying has been developed to any considerable extent that a large and reliable source of revenue from their cows might be opened up by supporting creameries during the winter. The capital which is invested in the cheese factories would not lie dormant for five or six months of the year. The men who are occupied in the manufacturing of cheese would find employment during every month of the season. The farmers would derive a direct income from their cows during the winter months. The by product of skim milk has been estimated to be full compensation for the extra cost of the additional feed which is required by the cows. Nothing seems to be wanting to develop this most promising branch of cattle husbandry, except some little help on the part of the Government in assisting the farmers to provide the new machinery which is indispensible for making an economical and successful start in this business. The dairy commissioner mentioned in his evidence that he was convinced that, if part of the machinery could be provided by the Government for a few years, or if a small bonus towards the purchasing of the machinery were granted to every creamery which manufactured butter during the winter for three years, there would be a very rapid and prosperous extension of the dairying interests of the Dominion. The amount of money which it would cost the country would be a mere bagatelle compared with the great good that would result to the farming interests.

THERE NEED BE NO FEAR

on the part of anyone that there will be a surplus of fresh made winter butter. The total expense of shipment to Great Britain from Points in Ontario, including transportation, selling commission, discount and shrinkage in weight has been less than 2 1-2 cents per pound of butter. That there is an unlimited demand in the English markets during the winter months, for fresh made butter is assured by the rapid extension of butter making dairying in Denmark, Sweden and France. Canada now sends to Great Britain over 41 per cent. of the total value of cheese which she imports from abroad. Our exports of butter for 1891 amounted to $440,060, while the imports of butter into Great Britain for the year ending December 31, 1891, amounted to $55,637,668. That indicates that while we send to Great Britain over 41 per cent of the cheese which she imports, our shipments of butter amount to less than 2 per cent. of the value which she buys from abroad. One of the leading importers into the British Dominion experimental dairy stations: "The butter trade is an increasing one, and notwithstanding a substitute in margarine, there is an enormous demand for fresh made butter that will always command a good price from the 1st of December to the 1st of April. Ireland supplies us well with summer stock. Stored butter will not now sell at all, hence the trade have ceased to hold summer make, and buy fresh made winter stock."

To sum up the whole matter, it seems that while the competitors of Canada in butter making who live in some of the other colonies receive the benefits of large bonuses from the government on fresh made butter which they export, Canadian dairymen do not need to have that rather unwholesome stuff offered to them, but it is equally apparent that no good reason can be urged why the Government should not give its customary assistance to this new industry, by way of providing some means whereby farmers may be encouraged and assisted to provide the machinery which is required in order to establish an industry which is capable of doing so much for the agricultural community in every branch of their work.



Mr. Milo Gilson,

A stalwart teamster in the employ of the Glens Falls, N. Y., Lumber Company, says that both he and his wife highly recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla. She failed to gain strength after a severe illness, felt miserable, could not sleep, and had no appetite. When she took Hood's Sarsaparilla she began to pick up and was soon all right. His own experience was that in the spring he was all run down, had weakness and distress in the stomach. Hood's Sarsaparilla brought him right, and he round all and heavier than for years past. Thousands, yes almost Millions of People, testify to the wonderful value of Hood's Sarsaparilla for that tired feeling or weakness of mind, nerves or body. It is the helping hand which restores full health and strength. Mr. John J. Scully, President of the Scottish Union, 253 Catherine Street, Detroit, Michigan, voluntarily writes as follows: "C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.:

"Gentlemen: I feel in duty bound to tell of the benefit I derived from Hood's Sarsaparilla. I have been troubled with nervous dyspepsia, was tired and languid, with no ambition to work; my sleep was irregular. So I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla. From the very first it seemed to be just the thing for me. The nervous dyspepsia has now entirely gone, my appetite is excellent, I can eat heartily without distress afterwards; I sleep well, and can now go about my work without that tired feeling so frequent before I took Hood's Sarsaparilla

That Tired Feeling Makes Weak Strong

I have taken six bottles and recommend it as the King of Medicines." J. J. SCULLY.
