AT THE THEATRES.

Princess, "The Show Girl," girls, fun and catchy music.
Grand, "The Kerry Gow," as only Joe Murphy can play it.
Toronto, "The Scout's Revenge," thrilling melodrama.
Shea's, Vaudeville, of an excellent kind.
Star, Watson's American Burlesquers.

There is said to be no funnier and entertaining attraction going the rounds than "The Show Girl," which will be seen tonight and all this week at the Princess. Frank Lalor, who takes the leading part of Dionysius Fly, is the newest of the younger comedians who made a decided hit in New York last summer. Lalor, who had been appearing in farce comedy and in vaudeville, had never attempted such a pretentious role before, but Ed. Rice's proverbial instinct for young and new blood decided him on giving Lalor the part, in which he has made a great success. He is not the only funny comedian with the "Show Girl," however, for Robert L. Dailey and a number of others assist in giving a performance which takes everywhere. The chorus is especially attractive and is a real feature of the production.

Who hasn't heard of Joseph Murphy and "The Kerry Gow" and "Shaun Rhue?" For years and years he has been looked upon as one of the to-be-looked-forward-to attractions in a theatrical season. Time has not bedimmed nor custom staled the excellence of his work in these rarely good Irish plays. There is nothing of the burlesque in them that is so usually associated with dramas having to do with the ould sod, but rich genuine humor, earnest pathos, sincere dramatic climaxes mark these two famous dramas as of the best. To-night, at the Grand, Mr. Murphy will be seen in the role of Dan O'Hara in "The Kerry Gow" and a big audience is already assured.

Variety is the spice of life and there will be lots of variety at Shea's this week. Music, comedy, acrobats, singing, dancing—and what more can one want to choose from for entertainment? The Miles Staverdale Quintet give a high class musical act that includes some unique offerings; Waterbury Bros. and Tenny have made a big hit in minstrel circles and present a cleverly worked out musical-comedy turn. Lew Hawkins, with his old plug hat and his new batch of stories, will arouse lots of laughter. Hugh Stanton and Florence Modena have a humorous sketch entitled "For Reform." Evans and St. John, in a talk and dancing specialty; Fox and Foxie, the clown and his marvelous trained dog; Le Fleur, who does a sensational drop from a high ladder, and the kinetograph, presenting Ali Baba and the Forty Thieves, will make up the program.

Melodrama that thrills, but is not trashy, will be given at the Toronto, when "The Scout's Revenge" will open a week's engagement with the matinee this afternoon. The scenery is of a massive order and constitutes a feature of the production.

At the Star, Watson's American Burlesquers will be seen in two burlettas, entitled "A Japanese Honeymoon" and "Krausmeyer's Inn." A promising olio is also on the program and the usual big crowds will likely find lots of amusement there.

George W. Ryer, who was for many years manager for Denman Thompson, and was associated with him in the writing of "The New Minister," died in Brooklyn on Thursday night. He was born in New York in 1845.

J. H. Stoddart, the veteran actor, is taking the west by storm in "The Bonie Brier Bush," in which he will be seen in Toronto again this winter.

The New York Tribune, speaking of Mrs. Fiske's presentation of "Mary of Magdala," says: This is by far the most superb production of the dramatic year. Not for many a long day has any manifestation of dramatic art been made in this city, so thoughtful, so ambitious, so momentous, or one so lofty in spirit and so sadly beautiful in effect.

To-night in Madison Square Theatre, New York City, Miss Eleanor Robson will appear in the chief part of a dramatization of Mary Johnston's novel, "Audrey."

Ernest Thompson-Seton will give two of his popular animal lectures in Massey Hall to-day at 2.30 and 8. He appears in the Hartman course of entertainments. Master Frank Clegg will sing.

The program for Mlle. Zelie de Lussan, the great mezzo-soprano, who will be heard in Massey Hall on Friday night, will include such beautiful numbers as Massenet's "Pensee de l'Automne," Mendelssohn's "On the Wings of Song," and "Slumber Song," and Lane Wilson's arrangement of the old English "My Lovely Celia." There will also be selections from Schumann, Greig, Rubinstein and Mozart. Alberto Jonas, the Spanish pianist, will be heard in some splendid numbers. Sale of seats begins this morning.

Mrs. Coutts-Bain, Scottish vocalist, leaves this morning on a professional trip to the Pacific Coast.

He will be taken in hand at once by Jack Daly, who will superintend the Syracuse lad's training at the Britannia Naval Brigade Club. Santry will be here to-morrow or Wednesday. Art Edmonds and Frank Hern have agreed to box in one of the preliminaries, while W. Wrenn against Cherry of Bass will provide the other. All are amateur boxers.

NON-ALCOHOLIC BOOZE SOLVES RUM QUESTION

French Scientist Thinks He Has Found a Treatment for the Microbe.

London, Nov. 23.—Dr. Pitoy, the French scientist, in an article just published holds out hope that the difficulty of providing a satisfactory temperance drink has at last been solved, and this not by a new beverage, but by a series of new drinks, every wine, beer and spirit now used being provided with a non-alcoholic understudy.

It has hitherto been accepted as a commonplace that there is no fermentation without alcohol. From time immemorial beers, wines and liquors have undergone this process thru the action of some sort of yeast, the effect of which has been to decompose sugar or glucose into carbonic acid and alcohol.

Dr. Pitoy set himself the task of destroying this theory, and he now says that he has discovered that the mysterious fermentations are the work of a certain micro-organism, which he has succeeded in isolating and providing with a separate existence.

This new birth, on being introduced into the liquid to be fermented, fattens and swells to the bursting point. The result is a sort of fireworks display induced by the absorption of carbonic acid, each point of which, as it is thrown off, becoming in its turn an active cell. By this means the balls are kept rolling, so to speak, till the process of exhaustion supervenes and fermentation is complete.

It is said this method, instead of decomposing glucose in the proportion of one part of carbonic acid to two of alcohol, as by the old process, causes the latter two parts to assume the form of a non-alcoholic substance.

It is inferred that beers and wines submitted to the new fermentation will emerge as temperance beverages.

CANNON KING KRUPP DEAD

after the death announcement was made, and the first burgomaster said that it had been intended to send to Herr Krupp the municipality's respectful greetings and to inform him that the slanders of the social democratic press were not believed, and that, in spite of the suspicions thrown upon him, the Council's confidence was in no wise shaken. The Council adopted a resolution expressing indignation at the injury inflicted upon the deceased before his death and of sympathy for his family.

Herr Krupp determined, two days ago, to return to the Island of Capri, believing that he could thus best refute the accusation that he had left there at the request of the Italian government. He intended to start today. It is believed that Herr Krupp's death will not affect the stock market.

Not a Case of Suicide.

The first assumption that Herr Krupp, the great gunmaker, committed suicide is yielding to precise and abundant testimony to the contrary. Prof. Einswanger, a physician of high reputation, was in the apartment adjoining Herr Krupp's sleeping room, when he was stricken down on Saturday morning and Dr. Pahl, Herr Krupp's family doctor, was also in the house. They summoned several other physicians of some celebrity, and it is regarded as being beyond belief that all of them should have connived at a concealment of the cause of death, which they ascribe to a stroke of apoplexy, induced, they add unofficially, by mental excitement from which the deceased gentleman was suffering.

Had a Weak Heart.

Herr Krupp's medical history for several years past indicates that he was in delicate health. He was asthmatic, had a weak heart, and was subject to fainting spells. He fell to the ground unconscious while in Genoa several years ago, and again while at dinner in an hotel here 18 months ago. He had been warned to avoid over fatigue and worry. He was at Hamburg Thursday last, and at the Hamburger Hof it was observed that he was in a highly wrought state and scarcely in control of himself. His condition accounted for the presence of two physicians in the house at the time of his death.

Mrs. Krupp was sent for from Jena. She is suffering from a nervous malady, but was brought to Essen in a special train, arriving here this morning. The funeral has been fixed for Wednesday. Chancellor Buelow, all the Ministers, and a great number of officials, following the example of the Emperor, have telegraphed their condolences to the widow. Herr Krupp leaves two daughters, who are at school, one named Barbara, aged 17, and the second named Bertha, 15 years of age.

His Favorite Study.

Herr Krupp's favorite study was to think out schemes for improving the well-being of the lower classes, which he applied practically to what are called "labor colonies." He assented seemingly to most socialistic principles, except that he held tight to the wage system, averring that the wage-earners were not yet sufficiently developed or self-controlled to regulate for themselves a just system of division of profits. It is mentioned as an odd chance that a man who applied social reform ideas in so extensive a way should have been crushed by a social democratic newspaper, which, however, regarded his measures to ameliorate the condition of the laborers as not touching the question of economic injustice.

Loved to Do Good.

Herr Krupp's father started the system of modern dwellings for the working men as a matter of expediency, and Herr Krupp himself appears to have developed them from conviction and in accordance with his ideals. He owned 5406 dwellings, each to whatever group it belonged, being constructed with variations in the architecture to avoid monotony. Each house had a front yard, in which were bits of ornamental gardening; the outside coloring and the interior decoration gave a certain esthetic unity, while there was plenty of space and light. Herr Krupp had also a variety of institutions, some of them rather similiar, such as "Bachelors' Homes," and "Widowers' Retreats." Besides convalescent hospitals and the regulation orphanages, he had a pension fund, which has funds amounting to $4,125,000. He contributed last year, as required by the law, $372,000 to the National Insurance Fund, and gave voluntarily $4,080,000 to other insurance funds.

Unknown to Workmen.

Notwithstanding his benevolent interest in the laborers, he was an autocrat in the management of his concerns. He was almost unknown by sight to his workmen, and rarely visited the works, or even his offices. He spent several months every year on the Island of Capri, and managed his gun works, rolling mills, iron mines and shipyards by letters and telegrams. Unlike his father, Herr Krupp took no interest in the technical side of his business, yet, in 15 years, he more than doubled the fortune he inherited. Since their foundation, the Essen factories have turned out 41,000 pieces of artillery. Herr Krupp resented being called "The Cannon King," and he said that half of the output of his works was civilizing products, such as railway and merchant ship material and structural iron.

Was Only Forty-Six.

Baron Krupp was 46 years old. His annual income, it is said, was over $5,000,000.

Frederick Alfred Krupp succeeded his father, Alfred Krupp, as head of the family and the great industry at Essen, Germany. While engaged in making cannon and other munitions of war in one of the most warlike nations of the earth, Alfred Krupp, and, like him, his sons were lovers of peace.

In beginning the manufacture of implements of war, the elder Krupp said the underlying idea was to bring peace by creating guns so destructive to human life that war would become too horrible even to contemplate. This idea lived in Frederick Alfred, his worthy son.

The Krupp family are credited with having more of the virtues of peace, more sympathy with their employes and greater regard for the simple kindnesses of life than any other that has grown powerful thru a great industry.

Employed 25,000 Men.

Herr Krupp was the largest employer of labor in the world. Twenty-five thousand men worked for him and each was his friend. The great profits of the business brought comforts not alone to the owner. The laborers dwell in "model houses." Schools, baths, libraries, hospitals and a pension system made them contented and valuable citizens of the empire.

Thirty-four governments have purchased guns from the Krupp factory. Twenty-five thousand pieces of artillery made in the plant now frown from ramparts in every port of war, contributing more to peace than to war.

"Golden Rule" in Foundries.

Philanthropy and the golden rule, which would abolish war if adopted thruout the world, prevail to a large extent in the Krupp foundries. The relations of employer and employe have never been unfriendly. Each worker feels he has an interest in the establishment, and the highest wages are paid.

The plant as it exists to-day represents the labor of three generations of Krupps. Frederick Krupp, the first, was born in 1787. To his son Alfred, born in 1812, he left the secrets he had discovered of smelting. The fortune was increased by Alfred, and when he died July 14, 1887, he left the greatest factory of its kind to his son Frederick Alfred.

Under his management the business flourished, and, assisted by his wife, he devoted much of his time to the humanitarian arrangements of his vast enterprise.

Refused to Accept Title.

Among radicals and democrats Herr Krupp was known as the man who would not accept a title. Among philanthropists he was known as the frend of wholesome conditions of life for the masses and as the friend of co-operation. In commercial circles he was known as the greatest employer of labor in the world.

The town of Essen, in which the Krupp employes live, is one of the model towns of the world, and it was planned and built under the direct supervision of Herr Krupp and his father. "Model houses," separate from one another, are provided for the laborers, and there are schools, baths, libraries and hospitals under his direction. Wages are paid in part on the co-operative system, and he has provided a complete system of pensions for employes invalidated by sickness or old age.

Was Member of Reichstag.

Herr Krupp was a member of the reichstag, but, like his father, he steadfastly refused to accept a title or decorations from the government. He stood as a citizen and business man, and did not aspire to vie with the aristocracy in their own honors.

Krupp was repeatedly the object of attack on the part of the socialists. Only last Monday the Vorwaerts, the socialist organ in Berlin, was seized by Krupp, and the gunmaker began criminal prosecution for alleged libelous statements appearing in the paper. Members of the reichstag, including Herr Bebel, who were suspected of having written the offending article, had their desks forced and searched by the police.

The charges grew out of the alleged animosity of a number of hotelkeepers on the Island of Capri, where Krupp had spent millions on his mansion and estate. They found he was going to start a model hotel which would drive them out of business, and it was alleged by Krupp that they entered into a conspiracy to blackmail him.

RUSSIA'S LOST CHANCE TO HIT GREAT BRITAIN

British Policy Has Held Its Own All Along the Asiastic Frontier.

London, Nov. 23.—It is a popular impression in England that Russia, of all countries, has profited tremendously, especially in the Far East, in the last three years by reason of the British embroglio in South Africa. Now the chief journal of St. Petersburg, The Novoe Vremya, comes forward with a long lamentation over the failure of Russia to seize this unexampled opportunity.

The British policy, according to the idea of the Russian imperialistic party, has more than held its own all along the Asiatic frontier. The Anglo-Japanese treaty has left Great Britain with complete financial control of Corea, while Japanese influence at Seoul is all powerful. This is the case in spite of the fact that Russia, as the article naively asserts, is the only power whose territory marches with that of the Emperor of Corea.

Not only, says the paper, has Russia failed to make use of the splendid opportunity for advancing a step towards India, but Great Britain has actually been allowed to move towards Seistan, in Afghanistan, with the result of throwing a great barrier in the way of Russia's descent from Central Asia to the sea.

Even an attempt to open negotiations of a commercial nature with Afghanistan has proved abortive, thanks to the hostility of the British government; and, finally, says The Novoe Vremya, on the Bosporus Great Britain has shamefully repaid the friendship of Russia at a critical moment by leaving Germany a free hand in the matter of the Bagdad railway.
