SAVE FOOD

In a time needing food economy many people are not getting all the nourishment they might from their food. It is not how much you eat, but much you assimilate, that does you good.

The addition of a small teaspoonful of Bovril to the diet as a peptogenic before meals leads to more thorough digestion and assimilation and thus saves food, for you need less.

The Old Home Paper.

Harpers' Magazine, in a recent issue, says that our little country papers, seem drab and miserably provincial to strangers; yet we who read them read in their lines the sweet intimate story of life. And all these touches of nature make us wondrous kind. It is the country newspaper, bringing together daily the threads of the town's life, weaving them into something rich and setting the pattern and giving the cloth its color by mixing the lives of all the people in its color pot—it is this country newspaper that reveals us to ourselves, that keeps our country hearts quick and our country minds open and our country faith stronger.

When a girl at the glove counter married the boy in the wholesale house the news of their wedding is good for a forty-line notice, and the forty lines in the country paper give them self respect. When in course of time we know that their baby is a twelve pounder, named Grover or Theodore or Woodrow, we have that neighborly feeling that breeds the real democracy. When we read of death in that home we can mourn with them that mourn. When we see them moving upward in the world, into a firm, and out toward the Country Club neighborhood, we rejoice with them that rejoice. Therefore, men and brethren, when you are riding thru this vale of tears upon the California Limited, and by chance pick up the little country newspaper with its meager telegraph service of three or four thousand words—or at best fifteen or twenty thousand; when you see its array of countryside items its interminable local stories, its tiresome editorials on the waterworks or schools, the street railroad, the crops, and the city printing, don't throw down the contemptible little rag with the verdict that there is nothing in it. But know this, and know it well; if you could take the clay from your eyes and read the little paper as it is written, you would find all of God's beautiful sorrowing, struggling, aspiring world in it and what you saw would make you touch the little paper with reverent hands.

A local newspaper is absolutely necessary to any community. It is the home paper that keeps the people of the community in touch with each other by giving them all the news of their own neighborhood and county. For that alone they are of value and worth far more than the small subscription price. They keep the local pride and progressive spirit aroused and in various ways are worth far more to a community than a community ever spends on them. The daily paper, with its large news service and quicker facilities may, in some instances overshadow the weekly, but the weekly home paper fills a place in the hearts of the people that a daily cannot fill. It comes to your home as an old and tried friend while the daily enters as a stranger.

Eczema on Baby's Ear.

Mrs. P. Clarke, Belmont, Man., writes:—'My baby had eczema on her ear. The sore was very bad and nothing seemed to do her much good. Hearing of the remarkable cure Dr Chase's Ointment was making, we sent for some, and after the third application the sore began to heal. I am glad to say that it is quite well now and we give the credit to Dr. Chase's Ointment. We cannot recommend this preparation too highly.'

A List of German Crimes.

They have invented fighting with the assistance of poisoned gasses and 'flame throwing'—cruel and cowardly weapons.

They have poisoned wells, as did the savages of old.

They have dropped high explosives on civilians—men, women and babes in open towns. They have declared open towns 'fortresses,' and treated them accordingly, merely because anti-aircraft guns have been set up for their protection.

They have deported men, women and girls from Belgium and France and enslaving them, forcing them by starvation to work for their enemies.

They have sunk non-combatant ships and left their crews to drown.

They have even sunk hospital ships under a variety of the meanest pretexts, and drowned defenceless wounded soldiers, Red Cross nurses and doctors.

They have fired on crews struggling in the water.

They have needlessly ruined lands in their retreats.

They have treated prisoners of war with cowardly brutality.

I need not assure you that every day's experience confirms the opinion that the ordinances which require the observance of one day in seven, and the Christian faith which hallows it, are our chief security for civil and religious liberty, for temporal blessings and spiritual hopes.

WILLIAM H. SEWARD.

Listless, Peevish Girls.

When a girl in her teens becomes pale, listless and dull, when nothing seems to interest her and dainties do not tempt her appetite; you may be certain that she needs more good blood. Then her system is provided with none. Before long her pallid cheeks, lips, headaches, and breathlessness and heart palpitation will confirm that she is anæmic. Many mothers know the result of their own girlhood days of anæmia, and the wise mother does not wait for the trouble to develop further, but at once gives her daughter a course with Dr. Williams Pink Pills, which renew the blood supply and banish anæmia before it has obtained a hold upon the system.

Out of their own experience thousands of mothers know that anæmia is the sure road to worse ills. They know the difference that good red blood makes to the development of womanly health. Every headache, every gasp of breath that follows the slightest exertion by the anæmic girl, every pain she suffers in her back and limbs are reproaches if you have not taken the best steps to give your weak girl new blood, and the only sure way to do so is through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

New, rich, red blood is infused into the system by every dose of these pills. From this new rich blood springs good health, an increased appetite, new energy, high spirits and perfect womanly development. Give your daughter Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and take them yourself and note how promptly their influence is felt in better health.

You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail postpaid at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A Timely Warning.

Over 25 head of cattle have recently died in the Annapolis Valley. It was thought advisable to have Dr. Townsend of New Glasgow, Canadian Government inspector, to visit the Valley, with the result that he attributes the trouble to 'Black Leg,' one of the most virulent diseases to attack young cattle, although it rarely injures anything over two-year olds, and is found mostly among our yearlings.

We would advise all owners of young cattle to send at once to the Ottawa Central Experimental Farm for a special vaccine for Black Leg, which will be forwarded promptly at the cost price with full direction how to use it. All young stock should be vaccinated before going to pasture in the spring, which will protect them during the entire summer months, otherwise the loss all over the country will no doubt be severe.—Bridgetown Monitor.

Is anybody happier because you passed his way?
Does anyone remember that you spoke to him to-day?
This day is almost over and its toiling time is th ough;
Is there any one to utter now a kindly word of you?

Did you waste the day or lose it, was it well or poorly spent?
Did you leave a trail of kindness or a scar of discontent?
As you close your eyes in slumber do you think that God would say
You have earned one more to-morrow by the work you did to-day?

I OWE MY HEALTH

To Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Washington Park, Ill.—"I am the mother of four children and have suffered with female trouble, backache, nervous spells and the blues. My children's loud talking and romping would make me so nervous I could just tear everything to pieces and I would ache all over and feel so sick that I would not want anyone to talk to me at times. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills restored me to health and I want to thank you for the good they have done me. I have had quite a bit of trouble and worry but it does not affect my youthful vim. My friends say 'Why do you look so young and well?' I owe it all to the Lydia E. Pinkham remedies."—Mrs. Rose, Beorint, Moore Avenue, Washington Park, Illinois.

We wish every woman who suffers from female troubles, nervousness, backache or the blues could see the letters written by women made well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If you have any symptom about which you would like to know write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for helpful advice given free of charge.

Prepare to Protect Your Crops Next Season.

Throughout the country there was a splendid response during 1917 to the call for increased agriculture production. Larger crops were raised on the farms, and city dwellers by the cultivation of gardens and vacant lots contributed greatly to the success of Canada's efforts to relieve the world-wide food shortage. Greater production of food supplies than ever is required not only to meet immediate human needs, but increased production of hogs, dairy products, and beef are dependent upon such crops.

The production of maximum crops demands constant watchfulness and effort on the part of the farmer, fruit-grower, and vacant lot cultivator in order that such crops may be protected from the numerous pests that attack them. We repeat: "Crop protection means crop production." Insect pests destroy annually from 10 to 25 per cent of all crops grown. The total loss to the country is enormous; if we express the aggregate loss inflicted annually by insect pests to the field crops of Canada in terms of wheat we find that the total loss is sufficient to feed the entire population of the country for one year. Much of that loss can be prevented. At the present time it is incumbent upon us to take every means to prevent it. Insects can be as effective an enemy as submarines in destroying food supplies. Like submarines, they are insidious in their operations. They must be sought out and destroyed.

Now is the time to make preparations for the next year's offensive. To be prepared is half the battle. Lack of foresight and due preparation means disappointment and loss. The greater cost of production and the greater need of more crops makes crop production all the more necessary. Utilize the present quiet season to make plans for the next year's campaign. According to the crops that are grown and the insects that occur in your district make preparations now for preventing their ravages next season. Owing to the sudden demand during the period when insects were active, last summer, for insecticides such as lead arsenate and Paris green, a serious shortage occured in many places, with consequent higher prices. This can be avoided if growers will obtain their requirements before spring. Insecticides are the growers' ammunition, ample supplies of which are necessary to successful offensive. Fruit-growers should now determine their requirements and take steps to meet them. Growers of potatoes and other field crops subject to insect attack should obtain supplies of the standard insecticides to meet their needs: arsenicals for insects such as grass-hoppers, potatoe beetles, cutworms and other caterpillars that devour the foliage; contact insecticides such as whale-oil soap and nicotine preparations for such insects as plant lice or aphids. All spraying machinery should be thoroughly overhauled, cleaned, and oiled in readiness for use when required in the spring, as the spring is a busy time for the grower. Such timely preparation will mean not only the saving of time—an important matter when labour is scarce—but it will also mean the saving of crops, for a few days' delay in applying preventive or control measures will frequently result in serious losses from insect pests.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

The Cross-Eyed Kings.

With apathy did the village resident listen to the city visitor's account of the joys and excitement of life in town.

'We get everything here that is worth seeing,' said the villager. 'Why last week we had the champion brass band here, the week before the greatest trombone player in the country, and this week we are going to have a great production of the drama, 'Lewis the Cross-Eye.' I tell you, that is going to be a real show!'

'What did you say was the name of the play?' asked the visitor.

'Here, have a look for yourself,' said the other, as he produced a much-folded programme announcing 'a grand production of 'Louis XI.'"

Here is a splendid motto for the New Year, by Washington Gladden:

"One thing I am resolved upon; I will not be a sponge nor a parasite. I will give an honest equivalent for what I get. I want no man's money for which I haven't rendered full return. I want no wages that I have n't earned. If I work for any man, or company, or institution, I will render a full, ample and generous service.

No man, or any body of men, shall be made poorer by their dealings with me if I can give a little more than I get every time, that shall be my happiness. The great commonwealth of human society shall not be the loser by me I will take good care to put into the common fund more than I take out."

Make Friends.

Money is not everything. Love is the wine of life. The man who has the affection of many friends is rich even though he has little money. He is richer than those among the wealthy whose cold, repulsive natures drive hearts away from them.

The ability to make people like us, is a wonderf gift. Some men possess it in a wonderful degree; they make friends without effort. But although it is possible for every one to develop the power in a greater or less degree.

In balancing our accounts for the old year and taking stock for the year ahead of us, let us not forget our friendship account. How does it stand? Is it a credit or a debit account?

The New Year is a good time to renew old friendships; to renew our vows of loyalty; to resolve not to gamble with our friendships, to take no chances of losing them, either through neglect or indifference, through misunderstandings, anger or a bad temper.

Not long ago a business man told me he had not been back to his Alma Mater for more than a quarter of a century, and that he had no desire to go. Of course he hadn't, because he had become so absorbed in the great commercial game that he had no time to cultivate his friendships. He had lost his college spirit, and with it most of his college friends. The most ardent and sacred friendships will soon die if not nourished by contact and association. They need these as flowers need sun and rain.

There is no compensation in the accumulation of money, or even in the making of fame for yourself, which will compensate you for sacrificing your friends, as so many do after they leave school.

How cold and unsympathetic is the life of the man who has managed to scrape together a great fortune, but who has lost his friends in the process. Of what use is a lot of money if you have sacrificed your friends in getting it? Does it pay? Is there anything that enriches more, that satisfies one's whole being more than noble friendships?

'When we let new friends into our lives,' says David Grayson,' we become permanently enlarged, and marvel that we ever could have lived in a smaller world.'

The chief ornaments of a home after the spirit of faith and the spirit of love among its inmates, are the friends who frequent it.

Make friends of the noble and the good. Make friends of those whose friendships will raise you in manhood, nobility, kindness, service and good will. Make friends of men of principle, of piety, a virile character, and from them draw some of the strong qualities that have won your admiration. Make friends of the right sort and be rich. Be without friends worth having and you will be poor though you had all the wealth in the world.

The Victory Year.

That is the great hope, for "Every gift of noble origin
Is breathed upon by Hope's perpetual breath."

Home and native land, life and liberty, are great gifts bestowed for high and noble purposes. To defend them must be just and righteous and justify the connection that they are dowered by "Hope's perpetual breath."

Napoleon is credited with saying 'Providence is always on the side of the last reserve.' In this war the reserves are manifold. Forty years' preparation by Germany meant much to overcome. At the Marne, near to the destred objective, the tide turned and Germany has been on the defensive ever since on the western front, the front believed to be the sphere of victory.

The peace overtures may be interpreted differently but in the main they are signs of weakness. As records of humanoeness, the Belgian atrocities put them out of court. Pressure from within Germany, economical more than political, grows space. The conviction of many leading financial observers is that the pyramid of paper piled up by the various banks is such as to cause peace to be as much dreaded as war. German wars have been led by indemnities. None are in sight today. Behind all is the deep sense across a world that Germany has outraged the highest and best interests of humanity and confidence in her integrity and honor have gone. Germany's place in the sun to-day is under an overshadowing eclipse. To change the figure, a great people have taken the wrong road and disaster is at the end. With the really dependent Allies' growing strength comes with the days. To review the excellent position today, so palpably manifest to all careful observers is not needful. This noble saying sums up the certainty of victory, 'The valour that is founded on Krupp's can ever triumph over the valour that springs from the unconquerable instinct, freedom.'

We now enter another year to good heart, with steadfast purpose to be and do the best.

During Winter Prepare For Spring.

The Rural Science Bulletin says: It will be five months before our birds begin to nest again. In the meantime, can we not build bird-houses? It will be too late to build them after the birds arrive. To the school section whose children set up the greatest number of bird-houses at home in proportion to the number of pupils enrolled, the rural science department will donate a bird-house for the school property.

To do this, we must know by April 30, how many bird-houses are actually set up and what the school enrolment is. Here is good handwork for your boys. Models of bird-houses are published in 'Bird Lore' and similiar magazines.

Why not establish a seed exchange among pupils of our schools? Children have saved from their gardens an abundance of seeds. Other children have saved diff rent kinds. Why not exchange? That will be better than buying imported seeds. If teachers will let us know what their schools can supply, we'll pass the information along through the Bulletin.

Whooping Cough.

Mr. Arthur Hainge, Ashton Farm, Perley, Sask., writes:—"Two years ago whooping cough was very bad in this part of the country, our eight months old boy caught it and had a very severe attack. A neighbor advised the use of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine and we gave it and nothing else with splendid results. When the older brother took the whooping cough we used this medicine promptly and prevented serious trouble as the cough passed off in two or three days."

Dirty photographs are so unsightly that you will be glad to know how to clean them. Moisten a soft cloth with warm water, add a little ammonia, wring the cloth out and wipe the photos very lightly, drying them immediately with a soft dry cloth.

Ringworm on Child's Head

Caused Great Distress and Spread to Neck and Ears—Cure Was Speedily Effected When Right Treatment Was Recommended.

There is no disease of the skin more obstinate than ringworm, and the mother who writes this letter does so fully realizing what it will mean to other anxious mothers to know about Dr. Chase's Ointment.

This remarkable cure was brought about two years ago and as there has been no return of the disfiguring disease there can be no doubt that the cure is permanent.

Mrs. D. Stebbins, Grand Bend, Ont., writes: "I am going to tell you of my experience with Dr. Chase's Ointment. My little girl had sores come out on her head which looked like ringworms. They were spreading fast, and I tried home treatment but nothing helped her. I took her to the doctor, and he opened some of the sores, which were as big as the yoke of an egg. The salve he gave me to put on was very severe, and the poor child would cry for an hour or more after an application. For six weeks it continued to spread all over her head, and came down to her neck and ears. She suffered terribly. At last some kind ladies told me about Dr. Chase's Ointment, so I got a box, and the first time I put it on she was relieved of pain, and the second time the swelling was all gone. Before we had finished the first box the sores were nearly all gone. I have told all the people around here about your Ointment, and I cannot praise it too much. It is now two years since my little girl was troubled in this way, and it never came back, so you can see she is completely cured. You are at liberty to use this statement for the benefit of others who may be suffering in a similar manner."

Joseph Brenner, of Toronto, endorses this statement as follows: "This is to certify that I am personally acquainted with Mrs. D. Stebbins of Grand Bend, Ont., and believe her statement with reference to Dr. Chase's Ointment to be true and correct."
