WARRIORS WINNING POLITICAL FIGHTS

MILLION AND A HALF MEMBERS OF WARRIORS' SOCIETIES DO BATTLE AGAINST THE SOCIALISTS

Berlin, April 22.—One million five hundred thousand of Prussia's organized warriors are preparing for a giant battle with the kaiser's foes. The warriors are the members of the great "kriegervereine" or "warriors' societies," the kaiser's foes are the social democrats, and the battlefield will be the general election for the Prussian diet, which is now nearly due. The struggle between the monarchial, religious, well-organized warriors and the Republicans, anti-religious, also well-organized Socialists, is a dramatic one. It has gone on in a simmering way for two generations; it is only on the eve of a general election that it rises to a boil.

In all Germany the warriors' societies numbered nearly 30,000, and they have 2,500,000 members. All members are old soldiers. The first warriors' unions were started, after the Napoleonic wars, to preserve the memories and care for the graves of old soldiers, and at first only men who had seen active service were allowed to join. This restriction ceased, because in the long peace period which followed 1815 the war veterans died off. Today every German who has worn the kaiser's uniform as soldier or sailor, with the exception of the Social Democrats, may join a warriors' society.

Societies Are Powerful.

Germany's warriors' societies are the most powerful organizations Europe boasts. Prussia has 17,000 of them, and every other state has its own down to Bremen, which has 25. In each state the societies are affiliated under a central union, and all these state unions are united in the Imperial Kyffhaeuser Bund, which concentrates the 30,000 societies and the 2,600,000 warriors of the whole empire. "Ein Armee in Buergerrock" (an army in civilian clothes) is the title which Kaiser Wilhelm gives to the bund.

Nominally the purpose of the warriors' societies is to foster military and imperial feeling and to care for the dead. In these lines much is done. The Kyffhaeuser Bund built, at a cost of $250,000, the magnificent monument to Kaiser Wilhelm I. on the Kyffhaeuser hills in Thuringia. The warriors have another and more important role. It is to fight Socialism and to foster conservative and militarist ideal of the state. Hence every general election leads to a clash between warriors and Socialists. The Socialists can bring into the field 1,500,000 votes, which is nearly double the number of warriors. But the registered Socialists in the party organization number only about 1,000,000, so as an organization the warriors are far stronger.

The feud between warriors and Socialists has now gone on for 40 years. It has led to riots and lawsuits. The Socialists a few years ago began a policy of trying to capture the societies. The statutes of the societies declare that they have nothing to do with politics, and on this ground a large number of Socialists became members. When they began to show their party colors the warriors expelled them. The Socialists appealed to the courts, which upheld the expulsion on the ground that Socialism was incompatible with the basic principles of the warriors movement.

Bow to Bureaucrats.

In practice the warriors' societies oppose all progressive parties, and not merely the Socialists. The local officials who control them are largely conservative, and use the great organization to make war also on radicalism. The subserviency of the societies to the bureaucracy was lately the cause of a complaint in the reichstag. A radical member declared, that they were not "kriegervereine" (warriors' societies), but "kriechervereine," which means "reptile societies." This accusation is to some extent justified, as the Bureaucrats generally manage, especially in the country, to bend the societies to their will.

The warriors' struggle with Socialism is carried on without cease. Attempts are made to prevent Socialists holding meetings. As Germany is an orderly land this can not be done by force. A favorite way is to organize a boycott for the purpose of preventing the letting of meeting halls to the Socialists. The warriors resolutely refuse to eat, drink beer or hold their meetings in any restaurant which admits Socialists. The result is that restaurant proprietors have themselves to be emphatically either warriors or Socialists. In some small Saxon towns the warriors by good generalship lately got possession of all the halls. The Socialists thereupon secretly bought up a hall and when the warriors were holding a triumphal meeting in it, the Reds arrived armed with documents and the sheriff, and threw the warriors out.

Fight at an Advantage.

In trade warriors and Socialists carry on rigid boycotts. Newspapers contain advertisements offering jobs "not to Socialists." The Socialists retort in kind, and carefully keep work and patronage from the warriors. They issue lists of stories and even of lawyers and doctors who are "reptile," and exact fines from Socialists who degrade the boycott. The Socialists, who have control of labor unions, also try to keep out warriors; but they have failed to establish their rights of expulsion; and many labor unions have a small warrior minority which delights in plaguing and perplexing the Socialist majority.

The warriors fight at an advantage. The state backs them. The railroads, post and police department feed them with good jobs. The rural "Landrat," who is Prussia's mightiest official, helps them along and states lend them officers as lecturers. Thus the warriors flourish without effort, while the Socialists have to work for themselves and to fight the authorities.

Leaves $1 to Grandson.

New York, April 22.—Simon Kenefick's will was probated yesterday by Surrogate Hart. It disposes of an estate of $3,500 and upwards. William Collard, a grandson, fifteen years old, gets a bequest of $1, the balance going to three sons, Frank, Patrick and Charles, and a daughter, Mrs. Mary Foucha.

LOCAL TYPOS HIGHLY ELATED OVER MEETING

EVERY DAY ADDS TO CALGARY'S CHANCES OF SECURING CONVENTION

Providence, Rhode Island, Union, Withdraws in Favor of Calgary, Taking With It Strength of New England; All of Canada Will Be Back of Calgary's Aspiration

Every day the possibilities of the Calgary Typographical union securing the greatinternational convention of the organization become brighter.

The Providence, Rhode Island, union, a formidable candidate for the convention, has withdrawn in Calgary's favor. Secretary Andy Davison received a letter to this effect yesterday.

The Rhode Island union has been in the field for some time, and had the endorsement of many of the unions of New England and the eastern cities. Its withdrawal would indicate that the printers of the northeastern states concede the next meeting of the international to Canada.

From all over Canada comes the word of the endorsement of Calgary's ambitions by the local unions. There sems to be a magic in the slogan, "Calgary, Sunny Alberta," which is simply irresistible. It is not improbable that the Calgary delegation will go to the Memphis convention presenting a solid Canadian front.

"And with all of Canada boosting for us," said Secretary Davison yesterday, "Calgary's chances should be very good."

From many other parts of the United States, the section that remains to be captured by Calgarians bent on this conquest of peace, come messages of encouragement. The fact that the 1915 convention is to be held on the extreme west coast, and that the south has been taken care of in recent years by conventions in Galveston, New Orleans, and Memphis for next year, would help the aspirants of the north.

Many unions of the west coast, through which the tide of printerdom ebbs and flows constantly north and south, are said to be very kindly disposed.

The Calgary Typographical union is receiving much encouragement from local business men who appreciate the opportunity, and the committee of the union that is soliciting for funds to finance the delegation of Calgarians who will go to Memphis to present the cause of Calgary, is meeting with substantial encouragement. About $2,500 is needed for this work, and much of this amount has been pledged. The union will send a couple of delegates at its own expense, and the money will be used to finance several prominent men, orators of high degree, who will make the forensic exploitation of Calgary, and tell the wonderful story of her quick transformation from a prairie cow town into one of the first cities of the most rapidly developing area in the world.

Useful Tips On Tomato Culture

Almost anyone with a garden or farm in a temperate climate can grow tomatoes with greater or less success, but there is a great difference between the extent and quality of the crops grown by different persons in the same locality. These differences are due to several causes, among which the varieties grown and methods of cultivation practised are perhaps the chief.

According to experiments carried on for years at the Experimental Farm at Ottawa, Earliana, of which there are several strains, is the best early sort but Bonny Best, Chalks' Early Jewel are also good early kinds. Of later varieties Matchless Trophy, Livingston's Globe and Plentiful rank high.

It is the early fruit that makes the profit. In growing plants what should be aimed at is the production of a stocky, sturdy plant which will have some fruit set upon it when set in the field. After planting the chief work is cultivation which should be done both ways in the plantation.

In order to protect tomato plants from disease, of which there are several, they should be repeatedly sprayed even when quite young, with Bordeaux mixture. These and many other points which cover practically the whole field of tomato culture in the green house as well as in the garden and field, are fully treated in pamphlet No. 10 of the Central Experimental Farm prepared by the Dominion Horticulturist, Mr. W. T. Macoun. This work is for free distribution to all who apply for it to the publications branch of the department of agriculture at Ottawa.

STUDENT DIES FROM THUG'S ATTACK

Spokane, Wash., April 22.—Robert J. Williams, a student aged 17 years, has died in a local hospital as the result of a beating administered by a highway man. The assailant used a piece of gas-pipe, and Williams' head was beaten almost to a pulp. Williams had just left the home of Ruth Cain, aged 16 years, whom he had escorted home from the Baptist Church, when attacked.

The holdup took place at a lonely spot under a railroad viaduct. The highwayman took a watch and fifty cents in cash. The police have no clue to the identity of the assailant.
