NEW MEMBER FOR ALBERTA

entire force being withdrawn from Quebec.

Will Not Adopt U S. Lake Regulations.

Mr. Costigan, answering Mr. Lister, said the Government did not propose to pass rules uniform with those of the United States regulating the meeting and passing of vessels on the lakes and which were different to those in force in Canada. It was not considered expedient to have one set of regulations for the lakes and another for the ocean.

Mr Martin's Unparliamentary Statement

Mr. Martin, in moving for papers respecting purchase of a site for a post-office at Portage la Prairie, charged that a site had been chosen which the business people of the town objected to. He blamed Mr. Boyd, M.P., for this mistake.

Mr. Boyd, who followed, explained any discontent there was grew out of rivalry between the east and west end of the town. Every building put up by the Provincial Government had been erected in the east end, and on property in which it was said Mr. Martin was interested.

Mr. Martin declared the statement "was solely untrue." This observation raised a storm of protests.

Mr. Speaker: As an old Parliamentarian, the hon. gentleman ought to know that he cannot make a statement of that kind. He must withdraw it.

Mr. Martin: How can I withdraw, when the statement made by the member for Marquette is not true?

Mr. Speaker: If the hon. gentleman does not withdraw, I shall be forced to name him.

Mr. Martin rose to protest amidst loud cries of order.

Mr. Speaker again ruled Mr. Martin must withdraw his statement.

Mr. Martin: I accede, but I think it is most unfair to me. I don't know how I can withdraw. (Renewed cries of order.)

Speaker: I must insist upon the hon. gentleman withdrawing his statement.

Mr. Martin: I do withdraw it.

Later on he made a personal explanation, denying that he was interested in any land upon which the Local Government buildings had been erected in the east end of the town of Portage la Prairie.

Mr. Ouimet said that the House would admit that it was the duty of the Government to consult the representative of any constituency when it had been decided to construct a public building in the constituency. The site for this building had been selected on the recommendation of a man in whom every one had confidence, and lay between the two main portions of the town. (Hear, hear).

The motion for papers carried.

Sheep Disease and Farmers' Interests.

After recess Mr. Featherston moved for papers passed between the Dominion Government and the Imperial, relating to any shipments of Canadian sheep from Canadian ports to Great Britain since the 31st October, 1894, and alleged to have been diseased, and any reports or correspondence from our veterinary inspectors relating to the same.

Mr. McMullen said that it appeared some 30,000 United States sheep had gone to England as Canadian sheep. Disease was known to exist among American flocks, many shiploads being condemned or slaughtered for this reason. He considered this a serious menace to the farming interests of Canada. He thought the Government was not doing as much for farmers as manufacturers. It was a shame that, instead of having a practical agriculturist at the head of the department, they had to put up with a lawyer, and he sitting in the Senate.

Sir A. P. Caron said Mr. McMullen's complaint against the Minister of Agriculture was a strange one for a Liberal to make. The hon. gentleman must have forgotten a page in the political history of his own party.

Mr. McMullen (interrupting): Two wrongs don't make a right. (Laughter.)

Sir A. P. Caron: I admit there was a danger of falling into error by taking a leaf out of the Liberal book. Continuing, he reminded the House that the Minister of Agriculture under Mr. Mackenzie was a lawyer, and moreover sat in the Senate; he referred to Mr. Letellier. (Hear, hear.) The complaint against the present Government, therefore, came with bad grace from Mr. McMullen. As for the statement that the farmers' interests were not being looked after, he unhesitatingly affirmed that Mr. Angers had done more for the farmers of Canada than any of the gentlemen on the Opposition benches, when they were in power.

Referring to the question of the scheduling of our cattle in England, he said the embargo was not there to protect English cattle against disease, but simply to protect the English farmer. (Hear, hear.)

Dr Landerkin held that the cattle export trade had sprung up under a Liberal administration.

Sir A P. Caron: When a lawyer was Minister of Agriculture. (Hear, hear.)

Dr Landerkin remarked that a lawyer might be a good agriculturist as well. (Ministerial cheers.)

Messrs McMullen and Featherston attacked the Government in general terms on their treatment of the agriculturists.

Dr. Montague said, touching the question mentioned in the motion, that the Government was looking into the matter.

Mr. McMullan argued that a competent inspector should be appointed to see that no diseased sheep passed through Canada.

Dr. Montagne: But you would object to the expense. (Laughter.)

Mr. McMillan protested that he would not. The motion carried.

International Industrial Property Convention.

Mr Denison moved that, in the opinion of this House, Canada should take advantage of the international convention as to industrial property, and that the Government should take such steps as are necessary to attain that object. He explained that the convention referred to was agreed upon at Berne in 1883, Great Britain entering next year. He thought it would be of benefit to Canada to become a member, as it would enable her to secure protection for her trade marks and patents in foreign countries.

Sir A. P. Caron said as some members of the Government who desired to speak on the question were absent he would move the adjournment of the debate.

Mr. Edgar hoped that if Canada joined this convention care would be taken that she could withdraw from it readily if she so desired. The Copyright Convention was a warning in this respect. The debate was adjourned and the House then adjourned.

Reciprocity With New Zealand

Hon. J. G. Ward, Postmaster of New Zealand, and Mrs. Ward arrived here this morning from England. Mr. Ward was in conference with Sir Mackenzie Bowell and Mr. Foster all morning discussing the question of reciprocal trade between Canada and New Zealand, and to-night the three gentlemen were again engaged in making a comparison of the tariffs of the two countries. Mr. Ward is a man of strong Imperial instincts, and believes that a considerable trade can be built up between Canada and the Antipodes. He is a warm advocate of the Pacific cable, and says that New Zealand is quite prepared to contribute her share of the cost of construction of this great enterprise. He is a firm believer in the principle of state ownership of the cable, as opposed to subsidizing a company to build it. In the course of conversation with your correspondent to-day he said the total population of the colony was 678,000 whites and about 50,000 Maoris. The imports into the colony last year were valued at $33,944,315, and the exports at $46,196,385. There are 5513 miles of railway in New Zealand.

The Divorce Committee

The Senate Divorce Committee met this morning, when Mr. Hogg, for the petitioner, asked the committee to report the O'Dell case back to the Senate, notwithstanding the recommendation of the House that further proceedings before the Senate be stayed until the case between the parties now before the Supreme Court be disposed of. Mr. Gemmill, for the respondent, opposed the application. The committee decided to take no further action at the present time. The hearing of the evidence in the Colton divorce case was next proceeded with. This case occupied the attention of the committee all last week, and the respondent having satisfied the committee of her inability to pay counsel and bring witnesses to Ottawa for her defence the committee ordered petitioner to deposit with the Clerk of the Senate sufficient funds for these purposes. This order was up to to-day only partially complied with. The committee heard only one of the respondent's witnesses and upon her counsel stating that he could not proceed further without funds, to bring the witnesses to Ottawa the committee adjourned the case.

Successful Fish Hatching

The Marine and Fishery Department has received the returns of the distribution of young fish from the hatchery at Newcastle, Ont. The total quantity hatched this spring was 3,000,000 white fish and 3,000,000 solmon trout. About 1,200,000 of each species have been distributed at different points in Lake Ontario, and the remainder in Lakes Simcoe, Couchiching and other inland waters. The hatching season on the whole has been very successful at Newcastle.

Booming Regina's Fair.

Lieut.-Governor Mackintosh is still in town busily engaged in booming the Territorial Exhibition which is to be opened by the Governor-General at Regina on July 29 next. An admirable prize list in a handsomely designed cover has just been issued to the public. It gives full information of the proposed exhibition, for which prizes amounting to $19,000 are offered. Special inducements in the shape of reduced fares are to be offered to people living in Ontario and Quebec. The program is a very complete one, and the exhibition promises to be a marked success.

Criminal Code Amendments

Sir C. H. Tupper gives notice of certain new clauses to the Criminal Code, embodying Mr. Charlton's views on the Sunday newspaper question. If the clauses become law, they will make it a criminal offence to publish or prepare for publication any newspaper on the Lord's Day. Any person who sells or distributes a newspaper on that day is also liable to punishment.

The Chieftain on Parliament Hill

The statue of Sir John Macdonald, which is to be erected on Parliament Hill shortly, arrived here to-day. It is the work of the French-Canadian sculptor Phil Hebert. Your correspondent had an opportunity of examining the bronze this morning and has no hesitation in affirming that when placed in position it will be commended as a true likeness of the great chieftain of the Conservative party. The bronze figure of "Canada" which is to be placed at the base of the granite pedestal has also arrived.

The hotel is a most imposing structure, and has been recently constructed. It has 22 bedrooms in all; on the second flat there are three parlors and sitting rooms, on the ground floor the office and bar and all modern accessories. There is a large ball room and lodge room in connection with the hotel, also spacious dining rooms, and six large balconies overlooking the beautiful adjacent country. There are also bath rooms on each flat. The stables and driving sheds are first-class, and there is every convenience provided for parties driving from the city. The "Heydon House" is a favorite resort for bicycle men, scores being assembled there every day. There is no better hotel within reasonable distance of Toronto suitable for summer boarders than the "Heydon House." The nearest and best way to reach the hotel is by taking the Bathurst-street car to the terminus, and the Davenport car to Carlton, which passes the door. The trip is perfectly delightful. One and all who call on our old friend Mr. Heimrod be sure of a hearty welcome. Every delicacy of the season is provided, and transient guests as well as summer boarders have their wants attended to and every comfort provided.

AUDIBLE VS. SILENT PRAYER.

Break-Up of the National Council of Women Because They Resolved Upon Silent Prayer in Opening Sessions.

The officers of the National Council of Women, which recently held its convention here, are fearful of an attempt to break up the organization on the question of silent or audible prayer. By the constitution of the order the general meetings are opened with silent prayer, each member being allowed to exercise her individual taste and discretion as to how she will pray.

The object of this clause, as explained by Lord Aberdeen at the Pavilion, was to broaden the scope of the organization, as it was designed to embrace all creeds and to include women's societies which have no religious significance. At the recent convention an attempt was made by the London Local Council in co-operation with the Toronto Local Council to introduce audible prayer into the sessions of the National Council, it being optional with the local councils whether the opening prayer at their meetings be silent or not. Lady Aberdeen was in favor of sticking to the original clause of the constitution, and the resolution was defeated.

It is alleged that this matter has been seized on by certain members of the order who have not been elected officers or appointed to the multitudinous positions of distinction in the council to break it up. Outsiders as well who were not asked to take part in its formation have been working to defeat it, according to a lady who has been prominently connected with the council ever since its formation in February, 1894. The officer in question said that they expected a few religious societies now affiliated might drop out as a result of outside and inside pressure.

TORONTO COUNCIL OF WOMEN.

Officers Elected for the Year — Shorter Hours for Factory Girls.

The annual meeting of the Toronto Council of Women took place in the Educational Department yesterday, the President in the chair.

In her opening remarks, Mrs. Grant Macdonald alluded to the recent attempt made by the members of the Toronto local council to have audible prayer introduced into the meetings of the National Council, and said that, although the attempt had failed, there was no need for societies to withdraw, as audible prayer was always used in the Toronto Council.

Satisfactory Reports.

Mrs Gullen read the report of the Women's Enfranchisement Association. Mrs. Kavanagh that of the Catholic Young Ladies' Literary Society, Mrs. Campbell that of the Women's Art Association and Mrs. Amelia Johnson the report of the Burbeck Loan Society.

A committee was appointed to take up the matter of shorter hours for women in factories. Steps will also be taken to have a woman inspector for establishments other than factories employing women.

E. Dignam; treasurer, Mrs. Scales.

New Hawaiian U S. Minister.

Honolulu, June 3.—The Hawaiian Government has commissioned William B. Castle as its Minister to Washington. On account of business interests here he does not expect to occupy the position for any length of time.

Sued for and Recovered $6000.

Buffalo, June 10.—E. R. C. Clarkson of Toronto, as assignee of the claim of Blakeslee & Brown, began suit in the Superior Court here to-day before Judge Childs to recover $6000 on a policy issued by the Western Assurance Co. of Toronto, on the ill-fated steamer Northerner, which was destroyed by fire in the harbor of L'Anse in 1892. The case is in progress.

The court finally decided to direct a verdict in favor of the defendants, subject to the opinion of the general term, to which the questions of law have been referred.

In the papers which were submitted to the court, it is stated that Melville F. Brown and Charles H. Blakeslee bought the steamer from the Mayham estate executors, this city, about four years ago, for $50,000, and a mortgage was given to secure the payment of this amount. The mortgagers agreed to keep the boat insured against loss, and in compliance with this agreement a policy of $6000 was taken in the Western Assurance Company. When the steamer was destroyed, proofs of the loss were submitted to the insurance company, but the amount of the insurance has never been paid.

On Aug. 30 of last year Messrs. Brown and Blakeslee assigned their interests to Mr. Clarkson, who was the liquidator of the Ontario Coal Company.

CUBAN REVOLUTION SPREADING.

An Expedition From Florida—Martial Law in Santiago.

Santiago de Cuba, May 29.—The rebels for the last few days have been coming to the suburbs and taking the cattle ready to be killed for market. They appeared again this morning, but the Spanish troops to the number of 80 were awaiting them, and a fight ensued, the Spanish losing five killed and 40 wounded, the rebels two killed and five wounded. The insurgents are strong and bold in Guantanamalo. They have again removed the tracks between the city and its seaport, Caimaner, and have set fire to another bridge.

In Baracoa, a very important port on the north coast of the island, the insurgents are increasing in numbers daily.

It appears that Capt.-Gen. Campos is dissatisfied with Generals La Chambre and Salcedo, and he has ordered them both to Spain.

To Prevent Filibustering.

Madrid, June 10.—The naval commander at Havana has been authorized to purchase merchant vessels to be used as cruisers to prevent the landing in Cuba of parties of insurgents.

An Expedition From Florida.

Jacksonville, Fla., June 10.—A cablegram to The Times-Union from Key West says: "It is now known that the expedition that left this country Wednesday night landed on the north of Cuba in the Province of Las Villas, near Sagua Lachico. The expedition was under the command of Gen. Roloff. Immediately upon landing they were joined by 2000 insurgents. Gen. Gomez, reported killed by the Spanish newspapers, has invaded Camaguey at the head of 2500 of the best-equipped men, where he was joined by 700 men, headed by a nephew of the Marquis of Santa Lucia."

Death the Penalty.

Santiago de Cuba, June 10.—The military governor of Santiago has issued an order prohibiting the public of this city or inhabitants of the towns and villages in the province from leaving for the open country between sunset and sunrise. Any person disregarding this order will be shot by the troops.

FRENCHMEN ARE SORE.

The Idea of Accepting Germany's Invitation to Kiel Is Decidedly Obnoxious.

Paris, June 10.—M. Millerand, Socialist, interpellated the Government in the Chamber of Deputies to-day in regard to the policy of France in the East, and the acceptance of the invitation of Germany to take part in the ceremonies at Kiel, on the occasion of the opening of the Baltic Sea Canal, declaring that the latter indicated a change in the French policy.

M. Hanotaux, Minister of Foreign Affairs, denied that the acceptance of Germany's invitation furnished evidence of any change of policy whatever on the part of France. The acceptance of Germany's invitation was merely an act of politeness. The French sailors who would go to Kiel would represent free and strong France, fearing no comparison with the sailors of any power. Disavowing any feeling of resentment respecting the East, M. Hanotaux said France was unwilling to leave Russia to struggle alone with difficulties which might influence the general policy of the republic. France, he declared, remained faithful to her allies.

M. Flourens said that in return for French support of Russia in the East, France ought to have obtained a guarantee that when the question of the annexed provinces (Alsace-Lorraine) came before Europe, Russia would give her moral and material support. Furthermore, Russia ought to help France in Egypt in return for her services to Russia in the Armenian question.

Ex-Premier Goblet declared that the action of the Government in sending French warships to Kiel wounded the national sentiment of France. The entente entered into with Russia had commanded French gratitude, but now it seemed that it was not sufficient for effective action. If a genuine alliance existed between France and Russia let M. Hanotaux plainly say so. Germany, he said, had not hesitated to publish the fact and terms of the Dreibund, and France certainly had no reason to be ashamed of having established an alliance with Russia. He (Goblet) was not animated by any feeling of revenge, but the separation of Alsace-Lorraine from France constituted a just reason for displeasure, and until that question was settled France would remain neither courteous nor conciliatory.

Premier Ribot said that France had united her interests with those of Russia for the preservation of the peace of Europe, and this alliance had made both countries stronger.

The Chamber then voted confidence in the Government, 362 to 105.

The Spanish King.

The little King has an English nurse, and his sisters an English governess. The Queen herself speaks English very well. When, in the afternoon, the royal family go to benediction, the little King will beg to stay and "play with the nuns." There is no state ceremony and holding of the breath. He is a simple, lovable and natural little boy. One of the nuns, an English lady visiting St. Sebastian from the London branch of the Assumption Convent, gave him a little soap dog, which she had bought for him in London, and told him how to use it in his bath.

A few days after, when he say her, he ran and caught at her habit, and said: "I took my little dog and bathed him with me, and he gets smaller and smaller every morning. Why is that?"

He is delicate, so that his frailty, added to the quickness of his mind, is a cause of anxiety at all times, but the system that his mother pursues is full of educated common-sense. When the little King was so ill two years ago, an attendant told the Queen that a poor woman's child near the estate was similarly ill, and the mother was in agony of fear of losing her little son. In the midst of her own great anxiety, the Queen went, then and there, from the bedside of her little son, and took to the poor child delicacies and some of the little King's playthings, and ordered everything the mother and child needed. From that day the little King and the poor woman's boy grew better at the same time.

Not long ago, when out with his nurse, the little King saw some boys of his own size, and struggled to get away and go to them.

"Oh, you must not," said his English nurse.

"Why may I not go and play with them, nurse?"

"Because—because you are a little King," said the nurse.

"Then, if you please, nurse, I would rather be a little boy." was the King's reply.—St. Paul's.

A Bowl of Kava.

Kava is the native drink, and its use and the manner and ceremony of its preparation being among the most ancient customs of Polynesia, it merits, I think, a short description. Keva is an indigenous tree, more or less plentiful throughout the South Sea Islands, the root of which is employed in the manufacture of the drink. When visitors are present, much ceremony is observed in its preparation. A beautiful round bowl of dark-colored wood is produced, its interior shining with a blue enamel-like coating, caused by the deposit of the root. Generally speaking, the best bowl is the property of the village, and much care is taken and time spent in polishing and preserving the enamel in the interior.

Three young girls, with shining white teeth, chosen usually from the "belles" of the village seat themselves around the bowl, each having a piece of the kava root. This they proceed to break up into small pieces, and putting them into their mouths, chew the dry root till it is reduced to a pulp, which is placed from time to time in the bowl. A sufficiency having thus been prepared, water is poured in, and the whole mixture stirred up; bunches of fine fibre are then drawn through the liquid to strain out any small piece of the root which may remain. The drink is now complete, and is passed around in cups of cocoanut shell to the chiefs and principal people of the assembly in order of rank.

On my first attempt at drinking kava I was strongly reminded of soapsuds; but this unpleasant idea wore off after a time. A refusal to drink, or even not to drain the cup, is considered a grave impoliteness. The solution of the kava root is non-intoxicating, but, taken in excess, produces a loss of power in the lower limbs. Many of the European residents drink it regularly, but, of course, it is then prepared in a different manner.—The Westminster Review.
