"DID JESUS RISE FROM THE DEAD?"

Rev. Dr. Griffith Thomas' Address in Cronyn Hall Yesterday Afternoon.

"Did Jesus Rise From the Dead?" was the theme on which Rev. Dr. Griffith Thomas, of Oxford, England, lectured to a fair-sized audience in Cronyn Hall yesterday afternoon.

In commencing, Dr. Thomas showed the vital importance of knowing whether or not it is true that Christ rose from the dead. It is very often overlooked, he stated, that the resurrection was the fulfilment of a prophecy made many times by Christ. Christ's whole life, he said, was one of truth, and His whole veracity was at stake if His prophecy did not come true. The evidence of the empty grave is a strong point, as there is no denial whatever now of Christ's death. His foes would not have taken His body if they could and His friends could not if they wanted to. The silence of the Jews on the fact of the resurrection is most significant also, fully as significant as the speech of the Christians. The transformation of the disciples from the depths of despair to the height of gladness could only have been occasioned by the reappearance of the Master. The fact also that the disciples suffered considerably as a result of their statements, yet refused to keep silence, is another strong proof. The fact that Paul's individuality, which was of the strongest character, was after his conversion merged entirely into that of Christ, is a strong indication, because Paul attributed everything to Christ. The church itself all over the world is one of the best proofs of His prophecy, and consequently of His having lived. The argument from experience is perhaps the crowning point in all the proofs as millions of people all over the world know that no dead man could be to them what Christ is.

Last night, Dr. Thomas lectured in the First Congregational Church on the subject, "Has God Really Spoken to Man?" He pointed out that if the church of God is ever to be united it will be around the Bible, and gave many proofs of the divine origin of the Great Book.

CORPSE WAS BURNED.

St. George, Beauce, Que., March 28.—A house and all its contents was destroyed by fire which broke out here yesterday. The dwelling belonged to Jean du Lac and a wake was being held over the body of his dead son when the fire, which was caused by the wax tapers igniting the mourning drapings of the death chamber, broke out. All attempts to save the corpse proved futile and the members of the family, who were at dinner at the time, barely escaped with their lives. The house and furniture, as well as several hundred dollars in bills, which were in a bureau drawer, were destroyed.

Men Who Use Zam-Buk

HOW IT SAVES THEM MONEY.

Look at the financial side of Zam-Buk's use. A cut sustained in the workshop, a sore which is unattended, results say in festering or blood-poisoning. You have to lay off for a day or two. What does that mean when pay day comes around? Zam-Buk insures you against that loss! A little Zam-Buk applied to such an injury at the time, or as soon afterwards as possible, prevents all danger of blood-poisoning, takes out the smarting and starts up healing.

Heads of families know how costly doctoring is. Be wise and act on the preventive line. A box of Zam-Buk in the home is so all-round useful. The baby's rashes, the older children's cuts and bruises, the inevitable burn, cut, or scald—for all these, as well as for more serious ailments, such as piles, ulcers, eczema, ringworm, etc., Zam-Buk is without a rival.

Dangers of Shaving—You get a cut at the barber's shop. A little Zam-Buk smeared on the wound prevents all danger. If any ailment has been contracted, Zam-Buk cures. Mr. Geo. Hobden, 108 Manitoba street, St. Thomas, Ontario, says: "I contracted barber's rash, and the whole of my left cheek broke out in one mass of red, watery pimples and sores. These spread to the other parts of my face, until face and neck were covered with running sores. How far the disease would have spread had it not been for Zam-Buk, I don't know. I applied this balm, and in a short time Zam-Buk effected a complete cure."

The Sportsman knows that Zam-Buk is used by all the "cracks," because it is the best liniment and embrocation. Men like Longboat, Sherring, of Hamilton, Kelly, of the Toronto ball team, all the famous lacrosse teams and ball teams use Zam-Buk in this connection.

All druggists and stores sell at 50c box, or post free from Zam-Buk Company, Toronto, for price. You are warned against harmful imitations.

CEMENT EXHIBITION FORMALLY OPENED

Mayor Beattie Delivered Warm Address of Welcome to Large Crowd Last Night.

FIGURES OF THE INDUSTRY

His Worship Shows a Marked Knowledge of What Has Been Done in This Branch of the Building Trade.

The second annual convention of the Canadian Cement and Concrete Association was formally opened at the Princess Rink last evening by Mayor Beattie, and is now in full swing. The exhibits are all in place, and a most interesting and instructive exhibition they form. There was a large crowd in attendance last evening, and it is anticipated that record-breaking crowds will attend during the remaining days of the show.

Shortly after 8 o'clock last night, Mr. A. M. Hunt, manager of the exhibition, called the convention to order, and introduced Mr. Peter Gillespie, of Toronto, the first president of the association.

The First President.

Mr. Gillespie thanked the citizens of London, and particularly the mayor and the city council, for the invitation to hold the convention in this city. The expression of goodwill was highly appreciated by the delegates. He congratulated the city on the enterprise shown, and expressed the conviction that the convention would be a success in every possible way.

Mr. Gillespie reviewed the history of the association, and mentioned that the first convention was held in Toronto last year. The attendance was large, and the exhibition most satisfactory.

"This is the second convention, and I am optimistic enough to believe that this will be greater and better than the last," said Mr. Gillespie. "The object is to bring before the public the possibilities of the cement business."

Mayor Welcomes.

Mayor Beattie followed, and gave a warm welcome to the delegates of the convention. He was happy to say the invitation issued by himself had been accepted, and that the council at its earliest opportunity had ratified the invitation. So far as the city was concerned, they would not regret the coming of the convention.

His worship gave a special welcome to the American visitors. Their presence was another evidence of the friendship between the two countries. There had been difficulties in the past, but these were being smoothed out satisfactorily, and it was now very evident that the latest trouble, the tariff question, would be solved in a manner most satisfactory to all sides.

"We are of a common stock, a stock noted for its sound judgment and common sense," said his worship. "These attributes will make for peace and contentment between the two countries."

The Cement Industry.

Mayor Beattie paid some attention to the cement industry, which was destined to be one of the great industries of the 20th century. There were evidence that the industry was known to the Egyptians. Certain it was that the Romans and Greeks knew of cement, and 300 years ago the Chinese had used concrete, reinforced by bamboo.

The growth of the industry could be shown by the fact that in 1890 there were 335,000 barrels of cement produced in the United States, while in 1908 there were 53,000,000 barrels, while it was estimated that in 1910, the production would reach 60,000,000 barrels.

In Canada the output of cement had doubled in two years, and there were produced last year near 4,000,000 barrels of cement. Cement was used in all sorts of construction work, and was found to be most beneficial.

Exhibition Opened.

In conclusion, the mayor expressed the hope that the delegation at the conclusion of their stay, would be as well satisfied as the citizens of London were to have them here. He hoped they would come again.

"I now declare the exhibition open, and hope it will be a success from every standpoint," were his worship's concluding remarks.

Then followed a series of limelight views, illustrative of the cement industry. A large number of houses built of cement, and of comparative small cost of construction were shown. Dr. H. A. Stevenson was in charge of the lantern, and the views were well put on, and much enjoyed.

A fine musical programme was rendered by the Seventh Regiment Band under the direction of Bandmaster Slatter. The intricate workings of the cement machinery was explained by the assistants in charge.

A number of aldermen were present including Ald. Richter, Ald. Eckert, Ald. Ashplant, Ald. Tancock, Ald. Fitzgerald, and others.

The exhibition in the Princess Rink will be open to visitors during the rest of the convention free of charge.

THE H., W. AND G. BILL.

Ottawa, March 29.—People who have been lobbying for the Hamilton, Waterloo and Guelph Railway bill are by no means confident that it will pass this session. It is true that an agreement has been reached with regard to disputed matters in clause 6, but as the other clauses are reached it is quite probable that the objections will be raised and further delays result. There are many other bills on the order paper, and the promoters of the latter object to them being held back and the time monopolized by he H., W. and G. As there is a desire to expedite business morning sessions will soon begin and the time for private bills in the House is limited.

To talk out the bill completely would involve no insuperable task. Toronto has certainly put up a noteworthy fight, and besides the city members, Hon. H. R. Emmerson has been conspicuous in advancing its claims. Two of the French members from Montreal have also spoken effectively.

"We may not get it through this year," stated one of the parties interested in the bill, "but if we don't we will not wait until next season is advanced before bringing it up again. e will be right on the job when the House meets in November.

WOLTER TO TALK IF THE GIRL IS LOYAL

Will "Tell All" Wednesday If Katie Miller Stands By Him.

New York, March 28.—Albert Wolter, the youth held in the Tombs for killing Ruth Wheeler, a stenographer, said tonight that on Wednesday he "would tell everything," provided his erstwhile girl companion, Katie Miller or Muellar, now held as a material witness, remained loyal and still loved him.

The boy made this declaration after a day of almost ceaseless verbal hammering by detectives who were striving to obtain a confession. At times he wept and appeared on the verge of a breakdown; but at no time would he confess having committed the crime, or even knowing the victim.

The Miller girl told the police today of the strange happenings at the fireplace in the room she shared with Wolter, but her statements evidently were not intended to incriminate Wolter, for she sent him a letter tonight, written in German, advising him to tell the truth. "Tell the truth," she wrote, "and I will forgive you and love you still."

After reading this Wolter made the remark that he would "tell everything" Wednesday. It was suggested that the girl be brought to the prison, but he cried:

"No. I am ashamed to face Katie now. When I get a letter from her that she forgives me I will talk."

One of the developments of the day was the finding late this afternoon of a silk umbrella with a peculiar wooden handle which has been identified as that of the girl victim, in the rooms in East One Hundred and Fifth street to which Wolter and the Miller girl moved after leaving the house in East Seventy-fifth street, where the girl's body was found.

Wolter's correspondence with other girls, not only in New York, but in neighboring towns in New Jersey, is being unearthed by the police. He posed as a dandy and a clever man with women.

HEIR SQUANDERS $125,000 IN RUSH

Story of Two Years' Reckless Life Told in London Court.

London, March 28.—In granting the immediate discharge from bankruptcy of William Proctor, subject to the debtor signing judgment for a sum of $500 not to be enforced without leave of court, Judge Parry at Manchester made some strong remarks as to the conduct of a witness.

Proctor is a son of a founder and former director of the Refuge Assurance company, and in the course of a lengthy report the official receiver commented on Proctor's course of reckless and extravagant living, which in two or three years had resulted in the dissipation of a fortune of $125,000. Out of this sum $84,560 was spent on jewelry.

Counsel for the debtor said that after the death of Proctor's father, Jeweler Charles D. Allen and he became intimate friends. Allen introduced Proctor to various women and jewelry bought from Allen was given by Proctor to these women. There were many evening parties together at hotels and elsewhere and Proctor in that way got into Allen's clutches and towards the end, as he himself had said, was afraid to refuse to buy jewelry when it was shown him.

Proctor admitted that if his family had not come to his assistance and made a settlement with Allen to pay his debts, and so save his father's name from disgrace, Allen would have lost about $25,000.

A friend of the family said Proctor is now entirely reformed.

Judge Parry said that altogether Allen seemed to have had from $120,000 to $125,000 from the bankrupt, who had led a life of extravagance such as would hardly have been invented by a writer of fiction. The debtor could only be described as a prodigal. It could not be denied that Allen had pandered to this young man's vices, and by finding him the means ruined him financially and injured his family by many thousands of dollars.

She Couldn't Sleep

The Trying Experience of Miss Goddard Is Proof That Poor Nerves, Thin Blood and Tiredness Are Too Dangerous to Neglect.

It was near the close of the school term last year, writes Miss Fanny P. McPike, that I began to lose sleep. It was not so difficult a matter to get to sleep at bedtime—the trouble was I would awaken at one or two o'clock in the morning. Often I wouldn't close my eyes for the rest of the night. My head seemed filled with blood, and a ringing in the ears gave me great worry. At school little annoyances excited me greatly, and it seemed quite clear I was threatened with nervous breakdown. I knew I had to do something. A teacher's purse is not very long, and I thought before running up a doctor's bill I would see what Ferrozone would do for me. It did so much that I feel I ought to tell about it. Ferrozone is just a splendid nerve medicine, and it is also good for troubles from which women suffer. It's just as likely as not that in my case these complications were the cause of the rush of blood to my head and my nervous, sleepless condition, too. I used eight boxes of Ferrozone, and am well. I have nothing but praise for Ferrozone."

Every girl and woman can improve the condition of her health by Ferrozone. It's nourishing, strengthening, regulating. Try it, one or two tablets with your meals. Fifty cents a box, six for $2 50, all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Canada.

THACKERAY AS A HERO.

No man ever enjoyed his fame more than Thackeray; but no man's head was ever less turned than his. The story is told that Charlotte Bronte, sitting opposite to him at dinner, regarded him for a long time as a hero. "And," said Thackeray, "I had the miserable humiliation of seeing her ideal of me disappear as everything went into my mouth and nothing came out of it, until at last, as I took my fifth potato, she leaned across with clasped hands and tearful eyes, and breathed imploringly: 'Oh, Mr. Thackeray! Don't!'" This is one of those stories which may not be true, but ought to be. It shows Thackeray in his typical attitude to life and to himself. He enjoyed the situation and criticised it implicitly as he enjoyed it. A hero perhaps—but there were the five potatoes.—London Saturday Review.
