SUCCESSFUL FAIR PASSES INTO HISTORY

Provincial Exhibition Came to an End Saturday After a Week of Good Work in the Face of Difficulties

Despite many drawbacks, the provincial fair which came to an end on Saturday night was the most successful on record from the standpoints of diversity of interests and extent of influence. It gave added proof of the growing importance of this island as an agricultural proposition apart from its admitted ascendency as a mining and timber district. The exhibits were of the best, the quality was more than equal to that of a year ago, and when the final decision was rendered it was found to rest with the Victoria entries.

Weather conditions could not have been improved upon. Victoria did as well as she could be expected to do on the hard work of the local athletes who, out for glory, were content with doing their utmost and winning the various events. There was no hurrah when Victoria landed the various events, but a small knot of admirers was always present which conveyed to the winner the sense of being at home.

In the Woman's building as well as in the Main building, the daily concerts proved a success. For those who did not desire to witness the The opportunity of taking a rest in races or take a rest in the Main building there was entertainment enough. the Woman's building was taken advantage of by many hundreds of women who, tired, but still enthusiastic, at the prospects of the show, stayed around to the last moment. Long after the great majority of the spectators had departed for their homes these enthusiasts were on hand.

Owing to the high wind there was no airship ascension. Those in charge of the airship stated that the prevalence of a wind made no difference to the ascension, but yesterday showed the previous boasts were not substantiated. The spectators who thronged the grounds were disappointed. No airship attempted its flight, no indication was made that there would be a flight and as the hours passed and there was no energy displayed in the vicinity of the airship the bystanders lost all confidence in those negotiating its ascent. It may be that being the final day of the show they showed a disposition to curtail the programme. But if so, the unsuspecting public, totally oblivious of airships and other kindred aerial venturers, were not made aware of the mundane exploits of the amateur performers.

Musical Programme

M. W. Waitt & Co. have every reason to feel proud of their exhibit in the Women's building at the fair last week. Thousands of visitors expressed their opinion that it was far ahead of any other display on the grounds. The musical programmes arranged by Herbert Kent, manager of the firm, afforded excellent entertainment to the throngs congregated in the spacious hall. It came as a very great surprise to hundreds of visitors to find that such charming and elevating music could be derived from the Edison phonograph, the Victor Victrola, the Autoplano and the Heintzman & Co. and New Scale Williams player pianos, which instruments were used during the concerts. The programmes were distinctly high class, and many of the numbers were encored. One of the distinctive features of the concerts was the accompanying of violin and vocal solos on the Autoplano. The ordinary accompaniment music roll was used in the instrument and manipulated by Herbert Kent, and served to show the wonderful possibilities of the player, as very liberty was given the soloists, in fact, it was difficult to realize that the piano was not being used by hand in the ordinary way. Waitt & Co. report a very satisfactory week's business, several of the high grade instruments shown being disposed of to leading citizens of Victoria and vicinity.

The result of the judging of the prize events was as follows:
