Without adverting to the act of union between England and Scotland in 1703, when the Presbyterian religion was sworn to be upheld by the oath of the Sovereign—or to the 9th of Queen Anne, which made the Episcopal Church the establishment in the Provinces of Great Britain—we would merely mention that Parliament granted annual sums for the maintenance of Rectories here, which sums in these latter days of retrenchment and reform, were proposed to be reduced, and, we believe, finally extinguished. How far this proposal comported with justice, it is useless for us to inquire, but we may be allowed to say that a learned body of Christian teachers induced to leave their native land, under specified promises of support, to labour in a comparative wilderness for the spiritual comfort of its inhabitants, should not be deceived in their temporal expectations, or deprived of the remuneration which it may be said had become a prescriptive right.

It was determined, however, we think at the suggestion of Mr Hume in parliament, to fine down the annual clergy grant; and the Lord Bishop of Nova Scotia was instructed to ascertain what support his clergy derived from lands or other sources of permanent income, with a view to let them provide for themselves as soon as possible. A reduction was consequently made, and it behoves the Episcopalians to take early and prudent measures to secure future and adequate provision for their clergy. For this purpose we are led to believe the "Church Society" was formed, and we have no doubt it will meet with that liberal support which the propriety of its institution demands—Should we have erred in any of these statements we are ready to be set right and to correct the mistake.

The Governor has informed the House by Message that Mr Baillie offers to publish a Map of the Province on a scale of 6 miles to an inch if a bonus of £500 be granted to encourage the project. Mr. Lockwood's map is on that scale, and shows all that Mr. Baillie proposes, except the mountains and the late great timber land surveys. We should like to see a map on 240 chains to an inch, with the cleared lands, towns, villages, settlements, mills, harbours, extent of tide, region of fog, great roads, bye roads, wood paths &c. &c. marked out, and of such a character that there would be no risk of loss by the undertaking. Such a scale has the advantage of being measured by the common carpenters foot rule, and would present a kind of statistical account of the Province at a glance. If the House of Assembly would grant £500 to establish true meridians in every County, it would be doing an act of lasting importance to the present and future generations; and when the errors in the courses of lines and the numerous law suits all over the Province which arise from them, are considered, we are astonished that meridians have been so long neglected. At home, where surveying is a science, the magnet is rejected after the first course is taken, and all maps are laid down by the true meridian. Here, very few line-runners know any thing about projecting a Meridian, but their head in a patent office should know, and he should also know that it is impossible to compile a correct map of a single parish from magnetical courses. We can remind him of scores of anomalies; besides which we dare to assert there is no such thing as a magnetic meridian. We are compelled therefore to dissent from His Excellency's opinion, as we cannot see how such a map would be any benefit to a single individual in the Province except those employed in its construction. If true meridians were sanctioned by law, we are prepared to establish one here at the mere expense of materials and manual labour; and perhaps similar offers might be obtained in other Counties.

USEFUL.—A bushel of the following kinds of grain of the weights specified, will produce the quantities of flour or meal, and of bread, as stated below:—

We have received several communications purporting to be replies to a notice (on the Mail-Stage conveyance and Mr Shaw's Inn at Magnagadavic) published in this paper a few weeks ago and signed "A Yankee."—Had these replies been confined to arguments contradictory of the Yankee's assertions, and had they been fully prepared for publication, they would have been readily inserted; but they turn on a feeling of nationality, engendered perhaps by the Yankee signature, and reflect indirectly on that most useful and beneficial enterprise (the Stage concern) which we feel bound in common with every friend of the country, to protect and support. Our reasons for this conviction we are ready at any time to advance at large.

If our correspondents had known the old Scotch proverb, that "like draws to like—like an auld horse to a fail dyke," it would have spared them some ink and paper.—Had the Yankees not projected the present useful line of stages, we should still be at the baleful mercy of Whitney's steam boats.—No place has felt this more severely or knows it better than St. George. But he who promises to go through thick and thin for any object, does not engage to go all thick; neither do we consent to go all Yankee: and while we know there is a Hotel kept by a British subject in St. George—a good one too, which we have used and intend to use again, we will not desert it for any favourite spot where the stage may stop, but certain of good fare, civility, attention, a warm fire, soft bed, and moderate charges, repair to the Hotel of Mr. John Rogers.

Great Western Steam Ship.—We have been favoured with the following description of the British steam ship, which may be expected in our waters in April next, and would premise it by observing that, the "Great Western Steam Ship Company" was formed at Bristol in 1836, for the purpose of facilitating the intercourse between Great Britain and America, and that the vessel in question was built by the Company for that purpose, her dimensions are:—Length of Keel, 235 Feet 6in, between perpendiculars, 216 Feet, 6in, extreme from Figure to trafrail, 234 feet, breadth of beam, 35 feet 4 inches, depth of hold, 23 feet 3 inches.

The scantling of her floor timbers (of Oak, is 16 inches) squared, laid solid for more than 100 feet and bolted fore and aft with 7 1-2 inch copper bolts 22 feet long, overlapping each other 4 feet; she is fastened diagonally, with wood and iron, on Jepping's plan, and the whole of her upper works, from the light water mark, are set up with nut and screw bolts.

The saloon is 65 feet long, and 9 feet high, every attention has been given to render the accommodation for passengers complete, and there will be about 150 beds.

She can carry 600 tons of coal with room for 2 or 300 tons of measurement goods: that quantity of coal will be about 25 days consumption.

The engines (which are on board) are of 450 horse power, (2 of 225 each.) The Cylinders are 72 1-2 inches diameter, with a 7 feet stroke.

There are 4 separate boilers, which can be used together or alone, at pleasure, and a clear passage of 18 inches round each boiler.

She has 4 masts and on her voyage from Bristol to London, in August last, sailed and worked very well.

On our first page will be found a list of the Vessels registered at this Port, their Tonnage and owners, which was kindly furnished us by the Officers of Her Majesty's Customs here.

DEBATES OF THE House of Assembly.

INDUCED by the pledge of the late House of Assembly, (as contained in their Resolution of last Session, to provide for the Reporting of their debates, and to furnish them gratuitously to any Printer who would undertake to print them daily in Fredericton,) we had made all the necessary preparations for issuing a daily publication of the debates of the present Session; and Mr. Hatch, who originally established and has for seven years executed the Reporting, was prepared to furnish us with the Debates, as reported by him, agreeably to the intention of the same Resolution. One first Number would have appeared about ten days ago; but owing to the House of Assembly having shewn by their proceedings on the subject a reluctance to [illegible] the work was delayed. We [illegible] the work, so far as lies in our power, [illegible] daily publication of the Debates [illegible] with as [illegible] and useful to the country as circumstances will admit. At present we need say no more than that we are engaged in the work in other respects, and are [illegible] to commence the publication [illegible] with the manifest intentions. The work will be issued in large quarto, four pages of which, containing twelve columns, printed exclusively for the purpose, will be issued daily, provided there is sufficient matter in debate; printed with new type, imported expressly for the purpose, and on fine paper, with a full and copious index to the work. The subscription price will be Twelve Shillings and sixpence for the whole session, exclusive of Postage. Persons wishing to subscribe to the work will please transmit their names to any of the following Agents; and upon the list being returned to this Office, the Reports will be forwarded to them from the beginning, and regularly continued thereafterward.

We shall occasionally introduce into the columns of the Gazette, such of the Debates as may be interesting and important to the constituency of the Province generally, and more particularly such as bear upon the Commercial and Agricultural interests of the Community.

Persons desirous of obtaining these Reports will have their names forwarded on application at the Standard Office.

SPRING SUPPLY OF SEEDS.

THE Subscriber will receive his usual supply of Field and Garden Seeds early in the Spring. An honourable Member of Assembly lately mentioned in debate that American Grass-seeds were often mixed with sorrel. The subscriber's long connexion with the New England Seed Store, of Boston, enables him to assure his friends that no fraud has ever been charged on that respectable Establishment, and he confidently appeals to his numerous customers to bear testimony to the pure quality of the seeds which he has for many years furnished to them. He will continue to supply his friends with similar genuine articles.
