MAKE HENS LAY!

A Surgeon and Chemist, now says that most of the worthless

ATALANTA, Ga., Aug. 9.—News reached here yesterday of a a riot in Eastman on Sunday afternoon, when five persons were killed. For some days a colored excursion to a camp meeting in Eastman has been advertised in Macon and surrounding towns, with the promise that "more amusement will be furnished than at any camp meeting ever held in Georgia." There appears to have been whiskey-drinking and gambling in the vicinity of the camp meeting, and a victim, complaining to Marshal Buchanan of the loss of his watch to Jake Johnson, a notorious colored gambler, the marshall, with deputy Harroll, went to arrest Johnson, who knocked the deputy down and ran. The marshall opened fire and killed him, which so incensed the negroes that they clamored for revenge. Seeing a white man running through the grove towards the deputy's house, they made after him. The mob tore down a fence, and, securing the palings as weapons, made a demand on the occupants of the house to surrender. A young man named James Harvard, of Cochran, who accompanied the excursion, secreted himself under the house, but was discovered, dragged out and beaten over the head with palings, and then the negroes put a pistol to his head and blew out his brains. After Harvard was dead the infuriated mob continued to beat his body, and mashed his skull.

The citizens of Eastman armed themselves, and a general engagement took place, in which three negroes were killed and several persons were wounded on both sides, the negroes being routed. When the excursionists started home in the afternoon the rioters were still boisterous, and in a general row in a passenger coach a negro cut his wife to pieces. Pistols were drawn all around, and the conductor in attempting to eject the man who did the cutting was thrown from the platform with him, and his life was in imminent peril until he secured a coupling link and knocked the desperado senseless. The rioters cut the bell-line of the train, but the engineer, discovering their purpose, pulled out the engine lever and ran into Macon, making the fastest time on record on that road. Numerous arrests were made, the principals being caught, and quiet has been temporarily restored although the citizens in the town in which Harvard lived have organized and lynching of the rioters is apprehended.

The decline in Irish emigration to the United States is very clearly shown by statistics just issued. The height was reached in 1851 when the emigrants numbered 221,253, Last year they were only one third—70,000, in the greatest of all emigration years. In 1851 the immigration to the United States from Ireland was more than 250 times as great as that from England; but in 1881 the English immigration was more than 5,000 larger than the Irish. In forty years English immigration has increased from only 177 in a year to 76,547. Irish immigration to the States thirty years ago surpassed that from all other countries combined; and last year it had fallen to less than one tenth of the total, being smaller than even that from Norway and Sweden.

Truth says whatever may be thought from a political point of view, of the necessity of an immediate occupation of Egypt, there can be no doubt that, from a military point of view, it must be looked on as a perilous task. In the autumn the climate, by no means favorable to Europeans at its best, is at its worst. The waters are all out, and, as they recede, the soil gives out damp exhalations, poisonous alike to man and beast. There is also in the dry parts a terrible enemy to contend with in the sand, which, combined with the sun, played such havoc with the eyes of both our own and the French soldiers in 1801. Indeed, Napoleon himself is set down in the narratives of that war as having said that more than two-thirds of his men were at one time suffering from opthalmia. So that it is not so much Arabi, the Egyptians, and Arabs we shall have to contend with, as fever, dysentery, and disease of the eye. Our soldiers ought to be supplied with the "goggles" which are sold for sixpence in Switzerland, and which are an effectual, preservative against dust and glare.

Now that the elections are over the Tories are disposed to submit tamely to the snubbing administered from Downing-street, and to virtually concede the truth of the virago-like abuse of the London Times which attributed the resolution introduced by Mr. Costigan to a desire to catch the Irish vote. Instead of indignantly resenting this slander the Tories adopt an attitude of cringing deprecation, and by their subserviency almost justify the feeling of contempt for Canadian opinion so thinly veiled in the official utterance, so bluntly expressed in the editorial. The Irish citizens of the Dominion by contrasting their present trimming and truckling attitude with their ante election professions can now judge how far Sir John and his organs are entitled to their gratitude or their support for their action in the matter.—Toronto Globe.

There is one very good reason why France should fight shy of carrying any more war into Africa. The depredations of the Kroumir amount to 178,954 francs 20 centimes. To punish the Kroumir the war was undertaken. Already appropriations have been made to the amount of 592,242,045 francs for the purpose of covering the expenses of the war and the liabilities assumed at the end of it. France in fact made in Tunis a worse investment than that made by the British in Afghanistan.

Russia believes, or pretends to believe, that Great Britain and Turkey have some occult understanding between them. The most recent apprehension is contained in a despatch which sets forth that Germany has agreed to countenance England in her alleged intention of annexing Egypt on condition that England allows Germany to annex the Grand Duchy of Luxembourg.

On August 31st, 1865, the national debt of the United States, as augmented by the enormous war expenditures, was $78.25 per capita of the population. It is now $31.72 per capita. The annual interest charge on the national debt in 1865 was $4.29 per capita. It now is $1.09 per capita.

The correspondent of the London Daily News writes:—I visited all the hospitals, and cannot speak too highly of the devotion of the staff of the Christian Charity Sisters. In addition to their own sick they are crowded with refugees of all conditions. Some died soon after admission into the hospital, and the Sisters had no means of burying them. Others went mad from fright, and there were no appliances or rooms for their restraint. At the French or general hospital a cold shell from one of the ships outside the squadron penetrated the room where there were three of the Sisters and embedded itself in the main wall. The poor women were afraid it would explode, but the marines with an officer called and assured them this was impossible. Yesterday at three o'clock in the afternoon I was talking to Sister Barbara and others at the Dehcouesses' hospital, outside the Mohurram Bey Gate. They were attacked by the mob and the soldiers on the day of the bombardment, but some of the inmates fired pistols and the mob disappeared. The hospital was then defended by a guard of German soldiers, and the Sisters were calm and thankful for being able to remain at their posts. This morning, at four o'clock, I saw them being escorted, eighty in number, including patients, to the German gunboat. They had been obliged to leave all at a moment's warning because an engagement between the English troops and Arabi's soldiers was imminent. Some shots were fired, and the Sisters were compelled by the advance guard to leave the building, and were escorted by German sailors and marines. The maimed, the halt, and the lame, all alike, had to march four miles through the burning town to the waterside. It is difficult and dangerous for a strong man to do this. The sufferings of this band of Sisters, with their patients and charges of disease, cannot easily be described. Owing to the omission to give the German guard the password for the gate on arrival at the gates, the English troops challenged the Germans, and, receiving no reply, fired, the Germans returning the fire. Happily the mistake was discovered before any serious injury took place.

Some idea may be formed concerning the comparative insignificance of the mercantile marine of the United States, when it is known that out of the total value of the exports of domestic merchandise during the seven months ended the 31st day of January, 1882, amounting to $463,320,955, American vessels carried $54,247,698, against $404,583,724 carried in foreign vessels.

HORRIBLE SCENE AT AN EXECUTION.—A coolie was executed at Durban, Natal, on the 12th ult., for the murder of his wife. The woman had taken to drink, and worse, had taken her daughter with her. The husband in the fury of his jealousy took up an axe and killed her. At the signal of the Sheriff the prisoner, who was an ordinarily sized Indian, was brought out of the cell, his demeanour being very quiet and passive, and his executioner, a convict coolie, prepared the noose. The scaffold was about 20 feet high, and it was remarked that the length of rope for the drop was somewhat longer than usual. The word having been given, the bolts were withdrawn, but to the surprise, not to say horror, of those looking on, the rope snapped, and the man fell heavily on to the stone pavements, his descent being the heavier as his arms were pinioned and he simply dropped as so much dead weight. The poor fellow had no bones broken, but he cried piteously. Water was given to him, and the scaffold re-arranged, another rope being procured. Again the noose was put round his neck, and the word given, but once more the rope broke and the man fell heavily to the ground, this time having his hip out of joint. The scene was a dreadful one. Another rope was fetched, and the man carried up to the scaffold again, but after the noose was put round his neck he fell into a sitting posture the rope being thus stretched, and no allowance made for the drop, so that when the bolts were withdrawn, and the man supposed to be launched into eternity, his body simply stretched out, and he hung to be strangled to death, an end which was accomplished by the executioner reaching over and tightening the noose around his neck.

The worship of Satan is at last becoming public in Europe. One of the crimes of the press noticed by Pope Leo XIII. in his address to the Romans on July 13th, was the publication of a hymn to Satan! But this is only a single incident of this dreadful cult, not new, indeed, but hitherto followed out in secret. Not many weeks since the "anti-clericals" of Genoa marched at the inauguration of a statue to Mazzini, "marched under the banner of Satan." It is well nigh inconceivable, yet it is a fact, and one of the vile papers, noticing the fact says that hitherto this worship was secret and confined to the Lodges, "but now it is the duty of Italians, who have so long lived under the menaces of hell fire, to render at length to Satan, the honors which are due to him."—Catholic Review.

The latest English Blue Book contains much curious information about the continual subsidence of the soil around the Cheshire salt workings. Houses, bridges, locks and towing-paths keep sinking at a more or less rapid rate, and the annual damage is computed at thousands of pounds. In Northwich alone it was estimated to have amounted in 1880 to above £5,000, exclusive of the injury done to agricultural land, railways, canals, gas, and water-pipes. In that year 892 buildings were injuriously affected, and many have since come in for their share of damage. Thus the Crown Hotel has had to be rebuilt under an order from the magistrate; the County Court is unsafe and unused; and the Congregational Chapel, built only as lately as 1853, is now condemned as dangerous. In fact, the local authorities seem to be all thoroughly imbued with the conviction that Northwich will some day subside bodily into the brine.

Thanks to our happy conditions well appreciated by our farmers, the agricultural interest of the country is a mighty giant whose hand is felt throughout the world. But the giant ought to be strengthenet rather than weakened, for it is he above all others who gives life to our railways, factories and wealth. Even in Europe more wealth is produced by farming than by factories, while in this country farming is the alpha and omega of our prosperity. It was one partial failure of the crop which reduced the value of our railroads by hundreds of millions of dollars, while the excellent harvests of the present season at once gives an impetus to business such as has not been felt for years past. All business men, in fact, have an eye upon the crops, and when they depend so visibly upon the harvest they cannot afford to have less than high respect for the farmer, whose importance in the aggregate outranks all other productive classes. If any one thing makes this country rich, it is farming.—Boston Advertiser.

UNIVERSAL
NOVELTY CLOTHES WRINGERS.

ON account of the Wringer Manufacturing Co's not being able to form a new combination to keep up the prices (the old combination having expired Jan. 1, 1882), there has been a very keen competition since, and the result is that we can sell Wringers at less than it formerly cost to import them. Now is the time to buy, as a combination may be formed again at any time and prices advanced. Orders from the country promptly filled and delivered at the trains or boats without any charge for cartage or packing.
