HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN

Hair Renewer.

Seldom does a popular remedy win such a strong hold upon the public confidence as has HALL'S HAIR RENEWER. The cases in which it has accomplished a complete restoration of color to the hair, and vigorous health to the scalp, are innumerable.

Old people like it for its wonderful power to restore to their whitening locks their original color and beauty. Middle-aged people like it because it prevents them from getting bald, keeps dandruff away, and makes the hair grow thick and strong. Young ladies like it as a dressing because it gives the hair a beautiful glossy lustre, and enables them to dress it in whatever form they wish. Thus it is the favorite of all, and it has become so simply because it disappoints no one.

ROMAN CARDINALS.

Their unostentatious mode of living in the Eternal City—Humble surroundings—A Cardinal's post no sinecure.

ROME, May 12.—The Roman correspondent of the New York Herald writes:—In their home life the cardinals of this generation are simpler than many shopkeepers. The higher you go in the Roman hierarchy the less is the ostentation. Pope Leo himself sets the example, and with few exceptions his "venerable brothers" and "beloved sons" all imitate him. Cardinal Jacobini, Papal Secretary of State, lives in an apartment at which a New York merchant would scoff—were it not in the Vatican. Cardinal Bilio's rooms and Cardinal Luca's, in the Palace of the Cancelleria, were so shabby and vulgar that they would have called a smile to the lips of the most indulgent of our modern asthetes. The tawdriness of the late Cardinal Hassoun's furniture passes description. It was worthy of a cheap Coney Island boarding house. Cardinal Howard, as becomes a scion of his house, does affect some luxury. Yet even here it is seen chiefly in the form of costly books and pictures. His Eminence's table is more liberal than some others, his wines are older, his linen is finer, and there is a stately comfort in the heavy drapery and well stuffed arm-chairs which adorn his apartment. But compared with the home of most wealthy Americans, that of the aristocratic archpriest of St. Peter's appears very unpretending. Mr. Vanderbilt, no doubt, would think such an interior a poor place to "entertain" in. Nor would it inspire much respect in the minds of many well-to-do-English squires.

Even more striking than the poorness of most residences of the Roman cardinals is the lowly taste and indifference to beauty which stare you in the face in nearly all of them. The wall papers, the chairs, the tables, the curtains and the carpets would make a very pork butcher weep. Mr. Matthew Arnold's hair would grow prematurely white if he had to live in such an art ambiente as Cardinal Simeoni's for a single fortnight. The tiger pattern rugs and mats of our grandfathers are still in favor in the reception rooms of the ecclesiastical princes. The "furniture pictures" of the Hotel Dronot are interesting beside some of the portraits and saintly allegories at His Eminence So-and-So's. One might forget or admire the cheapness of the hangings were they not so gaudy. But who can forgive magenta damask or bright yellow rep, or slipper pattern Berlin wool work, all of which, alas! are decorative commonplaces at His Eminence's.

NO SINECURE.

A Cardinal's post is no sinecure. From morn till nightfall the bell at his door rings constantly. Grievances have to be redressed, cases of conscience to be inquired into, visitors to be given audience and visits to be returned. Then there are meetings to attend at the Vatican and other meetings, maybe at the Propaganda, to say nothing of the routine obligations of all bishops, the praying, preaching, confirmating and giving of benedictions. How some eminences find the time for all this work is a constant marvel to the writer. And the strangest part is, that not only do they do the work, but they somehow manage to be gracious, good tempered and polite in doing it. A Roman Cardinal, take him for all in all, is one of the finest gentlemen breathing. However early in May he, or however late, if you have any business upon his time and attention you are sure of a courteous hearing. There are certain shades of difference, of course, between the courtesy extended to one visitor and another, but the humblest gets more civility than one dares to hope for at the hands of Italian government impiegati, telegraph clerks or custom houses. The approach to His Eminence is usually made through three ante-rooms. The paper on the walls in Room No. 1 may be Prussian blue, No. 2 will perhaps be papered with yellow ochre, and No. 3 with a nice quiet magenta. According to your importance, you are ushered into the first, second or third room. The last one (that nearest to the audience room proper) being reserved for very high dignitaries—princes, ambassadors or bishops. The fourth room, in which you will probably find His Eminence, is likely to be furnished with very loud gilt and crimson. It invariably contains a bad portrait of His present Holiness, and often another of His late Holiness Pius IX. If you are a Catholic you kneel to the Cardinal and make a show of kissing his fingers. If you are a heretic the obeisance is dispensed with, and His Eminence usually gives you his hand with a pleasant smile. Strict etiquette requires that you should not depart till a hint of dismissal has been given you, and you may roughly know what estimate has been set upon you by watching whether His Eminence escorts you to the door on leaving or simply bids you farewell where he happens to be sitting.

In the afternoon the cardinals generally get a little rest. But the hour of the Ave Maria brings the bell ringing and the visitors again. Often when vulgar mortals, having digested their dinners, are drowsily thinking of bed, His Eminence is still sitting in his crimson audience chamber, faint and weary, longing for the last tedious caller to go, and wondering whether after all he would not have been happier without the purple.

BRUTAL FIGHT AT BLYTH.

FATAL RESULT OF A FEUD BETWEEN TWO FAMILIES—OLD FARMER MAINES KICKED TO DEATH BY YOUNG HENRY BEAMISH.

BLYTH, Ont., May 28.—On Monday last a brutal fight occurred just outside the village between two farmers and their sons, named respectively Beamish and Maines, resulting in the death of the latter. The cause of the affray was an old feud between the families. Early on Monday morning Beamish and two of his sons came out on the road, where they met Maines, and his two sons. The conflict was between young Henry Beamish and old Maines. The young man overcame his antagonist and was beating him cruelly when Maines' son essayed to rescue his father. This he was prevented from doing by Beamish, senior, who it is said told his son to "give it to the old man." Four doctors were summoned, who found the unfortunate man in an unconscious state and gave it as their opinion that he could not recover. Warrants were thereupon issued by Mr. Kelly, reeve, and Mr. Young, J. P., for the arrest of Henry and James Beamish as principals, and James Beamish as accessory. All three were arrested and are now held in custody.
