200 FEET DEEP IS LITTLE enough for a residence in a country with the immense area of Canada. The miserable-hearted and over-greedy land owner often defeats his object by mapping out lots about 100 feet deep, leaving no room for stable and other outbuildings after the dwelling has been erected, and scarcely sufficient on which a cabbage might be grown. The old surveys were bigger hearted, giving Jarvis-street 200 feet deep, St. George (next the Park) 200, Rosedale 200 to 300. We sold a lot on Bloor-street 100 feet deep. The lot we offer on Avenue-road, south of Davenport-road, is 200 feet deep—at $80 per foot frontage.

BIRCHALL AND PSYCHOLOGY

Psychology is that science which treats of mental phenomena. The operations of the mind under the term psychology are traced from their earliest manifestation in the human organism to their highest and final development. Like all other phenomena in nature they are under the controlling influences and direction of eternal law.

Two plants are rooted in the same soil. They grow, absorb nourishment from the same atmosphere and derive vigour and vitality from the same sun. One plant is a source of poison and death and the other is a source of comfort and sustains life. Birchall is said to be a psychological puzzle. It is easy to say that after his recent eventful history, with the sentence of death hanging over him and without any mental perturbation, he goes to work and evolves an autobiography that is sold for $1700. Apart from any interest or merit which may attach to the work as a literary effort, the man who can perform such a work, under the circumstances, is a wonder.

One thing is certain, he must be completely devoid of fear. He is equally indifferent to life as he is to death. He is a combination of instincts, and although about to terminate his career on the gallows his wife is still devoted to him.

In the long list of Shakespearean creations the heart of a Birchall is not depicted. The surroundings of modern civilization were necessary to produce such a complex psychological growth. On scientific grounds, apart from the brutal business, we think it a mistake to hang Birchall.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.
