WOULDN'T WEAR UNIFORM EVEN IF APPOINTMENT WERE MADE PERMANENT

Acting Policewoman Declares "Plain Clothes" Far Better For Her Work—Sends Girls Home When Found Improperly On City Streets —Woman Patrols Advocated For London.

Citizens of London may have forgotten that they have an acting police matron in their midst. The acting policewoman hasn't forgotten the citizens. In fact, she has her eye right on them a good deal of the time. It is possible there are two acting policewomen. There is one, anyway, and, even if she doesn't wear a uniform and carry a baton, she has behind her the strong arm of the law and the authority to make arrests. Authority is outwardly manifested in the regular police badge with which the chief has endowed her. Even this is kept concealed from public view, excepting when the occasion arises for more than the persuasive power of a gentle woman's speech.

Watch your step! If it doesn't conform to the correct standards for steps, and isn't set in the right direction, the policewoman may get you. The very fact that she is ununiformed and unbatoned probably makes her work all the more effective. Wrongdoing and exceedingly careless people are the more liable to be taken unawares.

For example, when a number of personable-looking women are reading the bulletins in front of a newspaper office, the foolish girl who is hanging round unnecessarily in front of amusement places nearby doesn't for one minute suspect that one of these has the authority to tell her to go right straight home and cease making herself conspicuous and stop waiting to involve some youth who shouldn't be involved.

Tried To Involve Soldier.

Such a girl was noticed standing near the bulletins one evening not long ago. The policewoman had known the girl before and stopped just behind her. Presently two soldiers paused to read the bulletin. The girl requested one to go into the place of amusement nearby and bring out a certain young man whom she described.

"I don't know him, and I couldn't do that," objected the soldier.

Whereupon the girl continued the conversation she had started by remarking she hadn't seen him at any of the dance halls. He replied he didn't go, to which she answered that lots of pretty girls went to the dances, and suggested that he and his friend had better come along. They didn't accept the invitation, so the girl in the case joined another girl standing at some distance. She was startled when a voice, which she knew, fell on her ear, the voice of the acting police matron. The acting police matron promptly told Nellie (which isn't her real name) that she had overheard the conversation with the soldiers. Nellie replied that she was sending the young man for her friend's husband, whereupon friend declared she hadn't requested that anything of the kind should be done. Police matron talked quietly to the girls a few minutes, with the result that they haven't been seen since making themselves conspicuous to a police matron downtown.

Used Badge Only Twice.

"I have been obliged to use my badge only twice," said the acting policewoman to The Advertiser today. "Notwithstanding the fact that I have been doing this work for two or three months. I have had a large share of straightening out of family tangles, and some of them seem hopelessly involved. One of the occasions on which the badge was brought into play was in connection with one of the 'family tangles.'

"A number of young girls are allowed to be out on the streets at night, who are just out for the fun of seeing the people. They don't mean any harm, but if their parents or guardians had sense or control, they wouldn't permit it.

"A few nights ago, I met two girls, not much more than children. I asked them what they were doing so late downtown. They said they didn't know what time it was. I told them it was almost 11 o'clock, and that they were to go right straight home. I said I would watch that they did. They scurried off like two frightened little rabbits.

Wouldn't Wear Uniform.

"Even if I took the work permanently, I wouldn't wear a uniform. I think the 'plain clothes' officer has so much better chance to observe while people are off their guard.

"Some things that look suspicious turn out to be perfectly all right, and in that case those concerned aren't embarrassed by knowing that a police official has had an eye on them. Again, cases can be dealt with without attracting to them publicity and attention that would be harmful. I sometimes think it would be a good thing if we had a number of women patrols in London, such as are doing such excellent volunteer work in other cities. A woman who knows human nature, who is sympathetic and wideawake has great opportunities to prevent wrongdoing and to help to make the city safe."

The acting policewoman interviewed, by the way, is a volunteer worker. Some time ago, it was announced that the police commission had vested two women with authority to do this work. Even if there is one of these known to some people, or suspected of doing the work, it is always possible that there is someone else with similar authority right round the corner, or waiting for an incoming train.

The policewomen has arrived in London, all right.

WEDDING BELLS

MOHAN—NESBIT.

A pretty June wedding was solemnized this morning at St. Mary's Church, East London, in which the principals were Miss Anna A. Nesbit, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Nesbit, of this city, and Peter Mohan, of the firm of Mitchell & Mohan, public works contractors.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Irene Nesbit, and was given away by her father, while James Valencourt, of Welland, supported the groom. Rev. Father Kennedy, rector of St. Mary's Church, officiated.

Solos were artistically rendered during the nuptial mass by Mrs. Thos. S. Coleman, Miss M. Bergen and Fred Allen. Mrs. James Murray was the organ accompanist. Many out-of-town guests attended, including the bride's brother, Dr. William Nesbit, M.D., of Essex.

The bride was charmingly gowned in satin brocade and georgette crepe, with pearl trimmings and court train. She wore the conventional veil, and carried a shower bouquet of lilies and white roses. The bridesmaid was attired in white crepe de chine and georgette crepe, wore a pretty hat of pink tulle, and carried a bouquet of pink peonies.

After the ceremony a wedding breakfast and reception were held at the home of the bride's parents, following which Mr. and Mrs. Mohan left on a honeymoon trip for New York, the bride traveling in a suit of navy blue serge, with grey hat and shoes.

Mr. and Mrs. Mohan on their return will reside at 32 Belgrave Place, South London, and will be at home to their friends after July 1.

LIBRARY IS FILLED WITH CLUSTERS OF BEAUTIFUL BLOOM

The mid-June flower show, under the auspices of the London Horticultural Society, is at its best today, every inch of space on the broad tables all around the walls of the northeast room in the public library filled to capacity with clusters of beautiful peonies and roses, which predominate in the exhibit, and also pansies, phlox, sweet william, iris, larkspur and several varieties of rare novelty flowers. Jars of gay poppies have made their appearance since noon yesterday, and one of the clusters of peonies which has attracted much attention is a single variety.

A rose which has been much admired is a radical departure from the familiar pink, white, yellow and red varieties, the orthodox colors for roses. This one is a real beauty in hue called by some people orange, and by others "flame." Flame, perhaps, more accurately describes the poised for action effect of the petals as well as the color.

Numbers of visitors have found their way to the exhibit yesterday and today.

SOME AGE!

Assessor William Eastwood went to value the home of an aged colored man in the south end of the city. The latter was sitting in a chair, nursing a somewhat rheumatic frame, but he was in a cheerful mood.

"How old are you, boss?" the assessor asked.

"I kain't just prexactly disremember," said Uncle Wash.

"But you have some idea," said the official.

"Well, you recollec' when Christopah Columbus discovered Cahling's Crick, don't you?" said the old man.

"Yes, sure; I recall that."

"Well, I was here jes' nine yeahs 'foh that happanstanced," said the veracious one. Then he rapped his cane on the floor and shook with laughter, until his rheumatism made him stop, and he suddenly grabbed his right leg, and yelled "By Jehosaphat!"

$40 Poker Debt Legitimate Rules Judge In Court

Easter Sunday "Game" Has Sad Sequel in Division Court.

To borrow $40 from a friend and then have the friend get the money back a few minutes later in a poker game, was the sad experience related by P. L. Luco at a sitting of the ninth division court at the court house today. But that is not the saddest part of the story, because Judge Judd awarded Jake Kessell judgment for $40 and costs, so that Luco lost his borrowed "Kale," the friendship of his chum, his lawsuit and his reputation as a dead game sport.

Luco and Kessell are employed at McClary's, and both reside on Maitland street.

On Easter Sunday last, according to Kessell, his friend Luco borrowed $40. A few drinks of liquor followed and then a game of poker. Luco was out the $40, but Kessell still considered the debt held good. Luco thought not so, but Judge Judd informed him he would certainly have to pay back the $40 he borrowed, although he has lost the identical money to his friend Kessell a short time after it was loaned to him.

TROUBLE AVERTED IN MUNITIONS PLANT WITH INSPECTORS

Amicable Settlement Is Arranged by Management.

In one of the munition factories, the inspectors became somewhat dissatisfied with wages and working conditions. At one time it appeared that the trouble could not be easily settled. The two interested parties held a conference, however, and everything is running smoothly again. The inspectors are still at work, and apparently satisfied with the settlement.

In another east end munitions factory about eight of the workers objected to the scale of wages being paid and quit in a body. The management is reported to have said the men will not be taken on again. This occurred Tuesday. Today any person calling at the factory for work is given a job.

Trouble was said to be brewing among the machinists of another large east end factory also. The men were agitating for a nine-hour day, with no reduction in pay. It is said that the men have decided not to press their demands.

Reports are that several toolmakers, lured by higher wages, have recently moved to Brantford. There appears to be plenty of work in the many London factories at present, with wages high.

QUARTER OF ESTIMATED NUMBER OF ELIGIBLES ALREADY SIGNED UP

Pre-Registration Rush Continuing in London Daily.

NEW CARDS NECESSARY

Through Error Branch Postmasters Gave Out Receipts Improperly.

More than one-quarter of the estimated number of persons subject to registration under the manhood and womanhood power bill, have been registered in the city to date under the pre-registration plan.

Out of an estimated number of 44,000 persons, male and female, in the city of London who are compelled to register more than 2,000 have signed the registration cards.

The work of pre-registration is proceeding rapidly, an average of from 2,500 to 3,000 persons signing the cards each day. In the factories the work is being carried out so thoroughly and systematically that little will be left to do in the larger industrial plants on Saturday, registration day.

In the case of foreigners, the heads of the departments in the larger factories are not only insisting that the men register at once, but also that they bring their wives and all children over 16 years of age to register.

Registration booths were opened Tuesday in East and South London. In East London pre-registration is being conducted at Child's Drug Store, 632 Dundas street, and in South London at the Merchants Bank branch, 146 Wortley road.

Illegally Registered.

Owing to a misunderstanding of the regulations, the postmasters in West and East London pre-registeered a number of persons who, under the act, must be regarded as illegally registered. According to information given out by Registrar R. A. Bayly today the 108 persons who registered at the sub-postoffices in East and West London must re-register.

The cards and certificates sent to postoffices are to be used only after June 22, and these cards must state reasons why such persons did not register before or on the day named for registration. The certificates issued by postmasters are good only for 60 days.

"The 108 persons who were registered by the postmasters of West and East London must secure new cards, as such registration is purely illegal and the cards cannot be accepted," said Registrar Bayly today.

Up to the present time over 20,000 cards have been handed out to deputies in the city by Registrar Bayly.

Fair Sex Predominate.

An outstanding feature in connection with the pre-registration is the large percentage of women who are signing the cards. Some of the fair sex "hum and haw" a trifle when asked their ages, but the majority answer.

A number of assistant deputies are required for the booths in West London for registration day on Saturday. Registrar Bayly requests that women in West London who desire to perform a patriotic duty on June 22 telephone him at 514 and state their intentions.

Although The Advertiser has repeatedly stated that every male and female in Canada over 16 years of age must register letters continue to reach this office asking if persons of 60 years of age and over must register. There is no upward age limit provided. Persons of 16 and 96 alike must register.

COLLEGIATE TEACHER WILL BE PRINCIPAL OF WINGHAM'S HIGH

School Board Receives Third Resignation in Week.

Another of London's leading school teachers has resigned. He is the third in less than a week. W. H. Howser, teacher of mathematics at the Collegiate, is the latest to tender his resignation to the school board. He has been appointed principal of Wingham High School, and will assume his new duties on September 1.

As in the case of Principal G. F. Rogers of the Collegiate and Principal George Copeland of Alexandra School, the London board is sustaining a distinct loss in the departure of Mr. Howser. Besides being an excellent teacher, he has been deeply interested in athletics, and did much to encourage sports among the pupils of the Collegiate.

RECITAL GIVEN IN HEINTZMAN HALL IS MUSICAL SUCCESS

Pupils of Bert Weir Heard in Pleasing Program.

Assisted by the Centennial Ladies' Quartet, a number of piano and singing pupils of Bert Weir gave a recital in Heintzman Hall on Tuesday evening, which proved most enjoyable to the large audience which attended. Miss Gertrude Wood, who has a soprano voice of exceptional purity and flexibility, under excellent control, was heard to particularly good advantage in "Thou Charming Bird," from "La Perle du Bresil" (David), and the lilting "Chanson Provincale" (Dell Acqua). John Gillmore, baritone, gave a spirited rendition of "Honor and Arms" (Samson) Handel, which was admirably adapted to his melodious voice. Of the more advanced piano pupils, special mention might be made of Miss Margaret Campbell of Dorchester, who played with fine artistic appreciation "Hark, Hark, the Lark" (Schubert-Lizst); Miss Velma Branton, whose playing of the Andante and Allegro e vivace movements of the Mendelssohn Concerto in G Minor, was marked by technical ease, good rhythm and phrasing and style, and Miss Gladys Udy, who brought the evening to a close with a brilliant rendition of the Liszt Hungarian Rhapsody, No. 11.

Mr. Weir played the orchestral part to the Mendelssohn concerto on second piano. The ensemble work of the younger pupils, including a "Modern Chivalry March" (Webb), arranged for four pianos, sixteen hands, and "Marche Triomphale" (Rathbun) was commendable for its precision, evidencing thorough preparation.

The work of the pupils, indeed, throughout, reflected greatest credit upon the training given by Mr. Weir. In addition to those already mentioned, the following took part: Miss Eva Moore, Kenneth Smith, Miss Rose Leff, Miss Esther Richmond, Miss Evelyn Atkinson, Miss Nellie Chittenden, Wallace Weinstein, Miss Arva Lasenby, Ida Harris, Muriel Peglar, Marion Atkinson, Walter Gammage, Frank James, Wilfred Kelleher, Max Bardenstein, Evella Brownlee, Velma Blood, Verna Johnston, Roland Fox, Kenneth Smith, Hance Page.

The Centennial Ladies' Quartet, including Misses Gertrude Wood, Helen Thompson, Gladys Gower and Gladys Standfield, had a most cordial reception.

NEW MACHINE SHOP WILL GIVE WORK TO FIVE HUNDRED MEN

Beatty Bros. Plan Many Extensions to Plants.

BUILD IN CHELSEA GREEN

New Factory Will Be in Operation by Fall—Cost $60,000.

Sixty thousand dollars will be spent this summer on a large machine shop in Chelsea Green by Beatty Bros. Tenders will be called immediately and work started as soon as the contracts have been let. The building will be 356 feet long by 108 feet wide and of cement construction. It is anticipated that it will be ready for occupation by this fall and will give employment to 500 men. The present machine shop at York street will be utilized by the woodworking department after the machinists have been transferred to the Chelsea Green factory.

An addition to the new molding shop is also being built with a view of doubling the present capacity. It will be equipped with all the latest devices for aiding the men and making the place comfortable.

Some alterations are also being made to the York street plant. The firm announces that further additions to the machine shop will in all probability be made next year. The building this summer will be carried out in such a manner that the proposed extensions of next year may be built with the least possible trouble.

The city has granted an extension of 450 feet to the siding to the new machine shop. The footbridge over the river at the L. and P. S. bridge will also be built this summer, it is said. This will make a short-cut to the factory for the men who live north of the river. The employees of the Richards-Wilcox Manufacturing Company will also be benefitted by this bridge, as will any residents of this district to the south.

FIGURES WANTED ON SALARIES PAID TO WORKERS OVERSEAS

Present Policy Declared Unfair by City Fathers.

Ald. Chas. Moorhead has asked that a statement be prepared showing the amount of wages which the city is paying to men who are overseas, so as to bring their military pay up to what it was before they enlisted. The alderman says that the citizens would like to know this. No one knows the amount involved, and it is hard to tell just where such a policy will lead to if the war continues much longer. The case of "Bud" McNab, of the engineer's staff, who has gone overseas with the Engineers as a lieutenant, brought the question to the alderman's attention.

Ald. P. J. Watt contends that it is no fairer for the city to pay its soldier workers the difference in their pay than it is to insure the local soldiers. His contention is along similar lines to that of the mayor, that all soldiers should enter the trenches on an equal footing as to pay, wages, etc

The question will likely be discussed at a later date.

EXETER OFFICER WHO WENT WITH 161ST COMES IN TONIGHT

Major Heaman Invalided Home After Two Years' Service.

Major W. J. M. Heaman, before going on tomorrow to join his wife and their three children in Exeter.

Major Heaman went overseas in September, 1916, with the 161st (Huron) Battalion, with the rank of major. In order to get to the front he accepted reduction to lieutenant's pay, though he was allowed to retain the rank of major. He is on sick leave as a result of injuries sustained some time ago.

20-22 MEN IN DISTRICT NO. 1 IN SERVICE NOW

Call of This Class Practically Exhausted—Few Remaining to Report.

NO DRAFTEES IN TODAY

For First Time in Months the Mobilization Centre Has None to Deal With.

With the exception of a few men, who will come in after June 24th, the call to men of 20, 21 and 22 years of age in this military district has been exhausted. The few who remain to report have been notified to join the 1st Depot Battalion, W. O. R., on June 24, 25 and 26.

A total of 4,366 men of this class has reported here for duty since May 6th. All have been absorbed by the W. O. R. with the exception of those who secured transfers to the Royal Air Force or those who were allowed to return to their farms for a brief furlough before donning the uniform.

For the first time in many weeks there were no drafted men reporting for service at the local mobilization centre today, and a strange quiet reigned over the erstwhile hive of activity. The clerical staff at the centre has been reduced, and several of the clerks assigned to militia headquarters duty to assist the leave of absence officers.

Only two medical boards were on duty today. These two boards will take care of volunteers and the defaulters under the military service act who are apprehended or who surrendered themselves to the military police. They will also board the Category E men who have been called up for re-examination.

MANY OLD GARBAGE COLLECTORS BACK ON THE JOB TODAY

Twenty-Two Outfits Left the Barns This Morning.

NEW MEN BEING HIRED

Seventeen Strikers and Five Novices Hired—Are Facing Busy Week.

London has a fairly good garbage collection system under way today. Twenty-two collectors are on the job. Four old collectors returned yesterday, 13 more this morning, and 5 new ones, hired yesterday, were started out today. It is expected that by the end of the week a full force of collectors will be on the job. Thirty-one collectors were at work before the strike.

Engineer Harry Brazier expresses the hope that the collectors will be able to make the rounds of the city at least once this week. This will be a big collection, however, as nearly every home in the city has an accumulation of two weeks' garbage and some of them considerably more.

It was interesting to note today that one Dundas street store had prepared for the coming of the garbage man. They had one good wagon load or two good cart loads standing at their side door.

In the meantime interest centres on what the special garbage committee will do at its meeting on Friday night. It is possible that they may decide to review the whole garbage system with the hopes of improving it.

JEWELERS HERE TO DISCUSS IMPORTANT QUESTIONS OF TRADE

Annual Western Ontario Conference in Progress.

VISITORS ENTERTAINED

London Club Acts as Host of All Delegates to the Meeting.

Prominent jewelers from all over Ontario and more particularly Western Ontario are in London in scores today attending the annual convention of the Western Ontario Jewelers' Association, organized in this city a year ago.

The business session of the convention opened at 2 o'clock this afternoon in the Duffield Hall, when many questions of importance to the trade were discussed in round-table conferences. Naturally the recent legislation which imposed a tariff tax on jewelry, was one of the main questions taken up, and the report of the delegation which went to Ottawa a week ago, was a big feature of the meeting.

Following the business meeting ,the delegates and their friends will be taken in a special car to Springbank Park, where the London Jewelers' Club will entertain them at a banquet. A sports program, under the direction of J. A. Nash as chairman, has been worked out by the London members of the trade, and promises to be as big a success as the convention.

This morning the members of the London Jewelers' Club provided autos for all visitors, who were free to go anywhere they desired. The local club, under the direction of President J. S. Barnard and Secretary Harry Young, who was chairman of the reception committee, has taken complete charge of the entertainment of the delegates.

At noon the visitors were entertained at luncheon, in Smallman & Ingram's lunchroom by the local wholesalers and manufacturers.

W. G. Young of this city is president of the Western Jewelers; Gordon MacLaren of Hamilton, secretary; J. S. Barnard of London, treasurer; C. H. Hepinstal, St. Thomas, first vice, and H. Richardson, Ingersoll, second vice-president.

The following is the program of this afternoon for the round-table conference:

"My Experience with New Price List," E. J. Nelson, St. Thomas.

"How Are Future Mechanics for Service in the Jewelry Business To Be Supplied," Thomas Roden, Toronto.

"The Value of Local Association Groups," C. H. Hepinstal, St. Thomas.

"Recent Government Legislation Effecting the Trade," M. C. Ellis, Toronto.

"Organization, To Prepare Us For Handling Present and Future Legislation," O. M. Ross, "The Trader," Toronto.

"The Necessity of Better Methods in the Jewelry Business," M. M. Cohen, Toronto.

The nomination and election of officers will be the last items on the business program.
