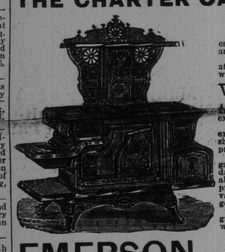
THE CHARTER OAK IS THE BEST.
WHY?



Because it has the heaviest Castings and the largest flues, hence will outwear any other Stove made and will draw where many others fail.

While these features are well worthy of consideration by all who think of purchasing a new Stove, we would direct special attention to the

WIRE GAUZE DOOR

As to do so anywhere else is impossible for us to explain them in the limited space of our column.

To those who may call it will afford us pleasure to explain its desirability. To those who cannot we shall be glad to supply circulars explaining fully the principles, and the savings made by its use.

The largest foundry in the United States is engaged in turning out Charter Oaks at the rate of 400 daily, and with this enormous output are unable to supply the extraordinary demand. This proves more than anything else can do it, great advantages, and the appreciation of the public for a good thing.

The Wire Gauze oven door is unquestionably the greatest invention of modern times in connection with the Stove trade.

There are vague reports that Attorney General Webster has resigned and is urging Lord Salisbury to accept his resignation and let him get out office before Thursday's storm breaks but that the ministry is holding him in and planning instead to resort to closure Unless all signs fail Thursday will be the most dramatic day seen in the House of Commons for a long time.

The Municipal Council.

At a special meeting of the municipal council this afternoon the clerk read the proposed bill now before the legislature, to give the hospital commissioners power to issue debentures to the extent of $10,000 for the building of an extra wing to that institution.

The commissioners, Drs. Bayard, Walker, Hetherington, and Messrs. Maher and A. C. Smith were present, and each spoke of the necessity of an addition to the hospital.

Dr. Walker referred to the inhumanity of having surgical and medical patients in the same ward. He referred to the small accommodation, and the increasing applications at the institution and while he was on that subject said the training school for nurses should receive more attention.

Coun. Chesley seconded by Coun. Price moved that the council petition the government for an increased grant, and provided this grant be made, that the council express its favor with this bill for the issue of debentures. Carried.

Board of Trade.

At the very large meeting of the Board of Trade this afternoon the Ottawa delegates raspecting their interview with the Dominion Goxernment reported substantually what has already appeared in the daily dapers. It definitely known that steamers will land mails at Halifax, N. S. and if we work hard enough we will get the steamers for freight. In the course of his remarks, Mr. Geo. Robertson said that our position is much stronger now respecting this than before the delegates went to Ottawa; and continuing, he urged that every means be used to effect it.

THE KENNINGTON ELECTION.

What a Member of Parliament thinks of the Results.

"A member of parliament," who is well known to be Lewis, J. Jennings, formerly of the New York Times, now conservative member for Stockfort telegraphs as follows to the New York Herald, in reference to the Kenington election on Friday night for hours the discussion on education dragged itself along. It was exceedingly important, I was assured, but so horribly tedious and heavy that it was imposible to sit it out. Therefore, as we wandered gloomily around the lobbies, or took a pull at our cigars in smoking room, or watched a game of chess, or went to sleep in the library there would have been a general movement homeward only we were waiting for the verdict of Kennington. At five minutes past eleven I saw Dr. Clark, the member for Caithness, running as hard as he could across the outer lobby from the telegraph office. Away I set on a chase after him, and picked him up just as he passed the two policemen who keep out intruders.

"How has it gone?" I asked.

"Six hundred and thirty majority for Beaufoy." replied the exultant Dr. Clark. In another moment he was surrounded by an excited crowd of members, a portion of whom speedily overflowed into the House itself.

The speaker was on his watch for it, and with the sternest of looks cried "Order" several times. If there had been a full House it is most probable that this would not have sufficed to quell the excitement, but the learned Thebans inside, who were prosing away with all steam up, had effectually cleared the place. There were not a couple of score of members present, and so the invading crowd produced scarcely any sensation and soon retreated into the lobby, where it managed to get up a cheer.

In the midst of a group stood Dr. Tanner, adorned with a gilt shamrock which St. Patrick himself might have envied and a huge green favor. He smiled sweetly at every Conservative he met and offered to let them look at the telegram, but they seemed to have no curiosity on the subject. Presently the irrepressible Tanner, who is out on bail, tired in the humor to make the most of his freedom, walked into the House and in the balmiest manner asked Mr. Goschen if he could furnish news regarding the Kennington election. Mr. Goschen looked a shade or two greener than usual and fidgeted about nervously on his seat. Dr. Tanner once more invited him to come out into the open, but the Chancellor of the Exchequer sank into a heap, perhaps secretly congratulating himself on the fact that when the Conservatives found a seat for him, their choice fell upon the very safest in all London. His withers were unwrung.

The Irish chieftain, Mr. Parnell, was not present. He is no lover of crowds and scenes. None of the Gladstonian leaders had taken the trouble to come down, but they of course got the news at once. Mr. Gladstone, who has looked rather low and unwell all the week. A fine tonic to him will this election be. Home Rulers have a perfect right to rejoice over their victory, for it is undoubtedly a severe blow to the Government. It will cause Conservative London members to shake in their shoes. Enormous exertions were made to secure the success of the Ministerial candidate. The whole art and science of electioneering were exhausted in his favor. Primrose dames knocked at every door. Their gorgeous equipages sweep through the streets. From every platform electors were invited to vote for the Conservative candidate on the ground that he was related to Lord Salisbury, and Mr. Balfour, perhaps, was not quite wise to stake so much on the contest. A personal appeal of this kind was rather narrow. But this strange battleground was, however, deliberately chosen, and it is absurd for any one to deny that the defeat of the Ministerial forces is a political event of the very first magnitude. It will give to Gladstonians a new energy in fighting for the third vacancy to which I referred last week, and it is likely that they will succeed in filling that also. So I am assured by people on the spot.

What are we to conclude from this? That the tide is turning in favor of Mr. Gladstone's Home Rule scheme or that the Ministry is losing popularity? It may be that there is a little leaven of both at work. People are getting to believe that Mr. Gladstone would, if he had another chance, bring in a different sort of bill, free from objections. It has made them at last think that something must be done more than has been done. Conservatives have made up their minds not to do anything this session at any rate. On this account, to a great extent, those Liberals who abstained from voting at the last election are returning to their old allegiance. Prominent dissentient Liberals remain where they were but the absentees are coming back and voting straight. That is the meaning of the Kennington election, and is by far the most important political phenomenon of the hour. In every constituency numbers of Liberals who would not vote at the last two general elections have got over their soreness and once more will have to be reckoned with. The inevitable result must be that a good many seats will change hands before all is over. You will see the effects of the Kennington election this week in Parliament. Loud and fierce will sound the battle cry towards Thursday, when the Attorney-General's connection with the Times case comes up. There is to be no more speech this session for the Ministry. The Gladstonians are determined to have the scalps of Webster and of Walter. I will endeavor to keep an accurate list for you of the killed and wounded.

The other day a young man named Dupius, in the employ of Mr. Colpitts of Coverdale Albert Co. While engaged in cutting cord wood let the axe slip. It entered his moccasined foot between the first and second toes and laid it open nearly half way to the heel. With great presence of mind he took off his elastic braces and drawing them out to their full extent, tied them tightly around his leg above the ankle. Dr. Bridges was summoned and found the sufferer in a fainting condition. The arteries first being tied, the two halves of the foot were drawn together and stitched in position. The young man is doing well.

HOUSE OF ASSEMBLY.

A Discussion on the Qualification of Municipal Councillors.

FREDERICTON, March 19.—Bills were introduced—By Mr. Black amending an act to ratify and confirm the appointment of valuators in Westmorland county, and to confer other powers upon the county council of the said county; by Hon. Mr. Mitchell, to revive, continue and amend the act incorporating the St. Croix Bridge Company; also by Hon. Mr. Mitchell, amending the St. Stephen Incorporation Amendment act; also by Hon. Mr. Mitchell, amending the Incorporation act of the St. Croix Electric Light and Water Company.

Hon. Mr. Blair submitted a statement of the University of New Brunswick, giving a detailed account of the income and expenditure for the last year; also a report of the president on the educational state of the institution for the same year.

Mr. Labillois committed a bill amending the law regarding non-resident pedlers, so far as it relates to Restigouche, Mr. Black in the chair. Mr. Labillois explained that the bill intended to tax all pedlers from outside counties of the province who do business in Restigouche just the same as pedlers are taxed there who come from other provinces.

Hon Mr. Blair doubted the power of the legislature to pass such an act but had no objection to the bill being advanced a stage with the understanding that it would not come up for its third reading until Friday or Saturday, so that he might have a chance to look into the question.

Mr. Labillois was willing to accept the attorney general's suggestion. Agreed to.

Mr. Burchill recommitted the bill amending the law relating to municipalities, Mr. Hibbard in the chair. Mr. Burchill said he was willing to amend the bill to meet the opinion expressed when it was under consideration last week. He was, therefore, willing to make the qualification of candidates to municipal councils $300 of real estate or $600 of a leasehold interest in real estate.

Mr. Quinton said the bill seriously affected a large section of his constituency. He referred to Fairville and that locality. Most of the property owners there were on lands owned by the corporation. In view of the large concessions made in the government's franchise bill, he thought the qualification for candidates to county councils should be less than named in the bill, even as amended. He would like to see all qualification abolished. At the same time, fearing that such concession would not be allowed, he was willing to support the bill as it was now amended.

Dr. Stockton was in favor of having the bill made more liberal, but feared that further reduction in the qualification of candidates, other than that proposed by Mr. Burchill, might defeat the bill. He was therefore willing to vote for the bill as it now stood.

Dr. Alward moved an amendment abolishing all qualification. Why should property qualification be needed by a candidate for the county council, and no such qualification be required by a candidate for the legislature, the house of commons or the imperial parliament? The people should be the judges of a man's fitness to represent them at the council. He was in favor of allowing any man to be a candidate who would put up a deposit of $25 to show that his intention was bona fide.

Mr. Tweedie agreed with Dr. Alward, thought that the suggestion to amend this law should come from the government. With the extension of the franchise as proposed by the government, the change now sought would follow as a matter of course.

Dr. Stockton spoke again. He was in favor of the amendment of Dr. Alward, but was afraid if it was pressed that the bill would be defeated altogether.

Hon. Mr. Blair said he was not prepared to go as far as the resolution moved by Dr. Alward. No property qualification was needed by candidates to the imperial parliament, yet we find that candidates for municipal honors are required to have a property qualification. The reason of this was plain. Legislatures do not directly deal with the matter of taxation as do the county councils. If there was no property qualifications required of a candidate for a council, its affairs might get into the hands of men without property, and the effect in that case, would be pernicious. Ontario required a property qualification for candidates to the municipal councils. This was the case elsewhere, and very properly so.

Mr. Black said Hon. Mr Blair had covered the ground so thoroughly that he had little to say. He was thoroughly in accord with the views of the attorney general and strongly opposed to doing away with the property qualification.

Dr. Alward argued in support of his amendment. Legislatures had the power to levy taxation. The fact not to exercise that power is no reason why any distinction should be made between legislatutes and county councils so far as qualification was concerned.

Mr. Tweedie said Messrs. Blair and Black had failed to give good reasons. Why, as a matter of fact, it is only a few years since we have had municipal councils. Who regulated the taxation of councils before that? An irresponsible body made up of justices of the peace, appointed by this or that government, not because of their fitness but for political reasons.

Hon. Mr. Blair—Were not the justices of the peace men of property?

Mr. Tweedie—They may or may not have been. He knew of certain J. P.'s appointed by this government who could neither read nor write. He believed in trusting the people. So should the attorney general as he got most of their votes at the last election. (Laughter.) He had faith in the people, it was their right to say whether a man should represent them at the council, whether that man was worth only $300 or millions.

Mr. Emmerson said he believed in trusting the people. The same reasons that could be urged against Dr. Alward's amendment could be urged against the government's franchise bill. The people are responsible as to who shall represent them at the council boards, and it was for them to say whether they should elect men who had property or not.

Dr. Atkinson agreed with the views of Messrs. Tweedie and Alward. The alleged distinction between representatives of the legislature and members of county councils was a false one. It was the legislature that created municipal councils, and were we not now dealing with taxation in discussing this very bill? He was in favor of abolishing all property qualification.

Dr. Stockton had serious doubts of Dr. Alward's amendment being carried. He would prefer seeing the bill passed with such amendments as Mr. Burchill had agreed to.

Hon. Mr. Ritchie pointed out that Mr. Burchill had amended his bill in accordance with the views expressed by members last week. He thought the committee should not go further in the way of reducing the qualification, since that seemed to be the views of a majority when the bill was first under consideration.

Mr. Burchill asked Dr. Alward to withdraw his amendment. The pressing of it would kill the whole bill.

The bill, as first amended was agreed to.

A QUEER BISHOP.

Scandalous Tales of the Life Led by a Former Michigan Prelate.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., March 20. The memory of the late Bishop D. D. Patterson is not held so supremely sacred as it might be by the little flock over which he once presided in this city. He was father, founder and high priest of the peculiar sect known as the children of Zion. He formulated the queer doctrine the Children professed, and in his own way carried the religions faith he invented into other lands. He died a few months ago in southern France, after an absence from this city of two or three years. Shortly after his death scandalous stories were circulated regarding his manner of living abroad. These stories were fully confirmed, and, in indignation, the outraged congregation, who once believed the bishop's words was the gospel and life, erased his name from the records.

When the bishop left here the last time, ostensibly to visit the church in Scotland and to make a pilgrimage to the Holy Land, he was joined in New York by two young ladies of his flock, sisters, Mary and Amy Hawley, who were daughters of respectable parents in this city. With these girls Patterson lived on terms of intimacy until his death, although he had a wife and several children here. Mary was a leading light in the church, and was second only to the bishop in influence and authority. It was at her dictation that the bishop's lawful wife was expelled from the church that she might not interfere with the religious rites practised at the star chamber prayer meetings that were held.

After the bishop's death the sisters accompanied the remains to Scotland, and have since been living in Glasgow, supporting themselves and Mary's two children. They have been reduced to poverty. They sent a pitiful letter here last week. This was turned over to Mayor Weston. The latter has written to the American Consul at Glasgow and asked him to assist the girls until further arrangements can be made.

PARLIAMENTARY ELOQUENCE.

Bismarck Defines Its Dangerous Tendency.

Nowhere is the conflict of opinion so marked and so sharp as in Germany, says the London Telegraph. At the friendly dinner given by Prince Bismarck, a day or two ago, to several members of the Prussian House of Deputies, this question was introduced by the brilliant host, and his well known conclusions concerning it were once again propounded with point and fervor. As our Berlin correspondent tells us, he expatiated on the superiority of monarchial to parliamentary government. Under the latter, he said, brilliant eloquence—seldom combined with penetrating vision and sober and accurate judgement, such as distinguished the late Emperor William, to the great advantage of the fatherland—too often and too easily gained the day over real knowledge of the actual facts connected with the case to be determined. We are not concerned here either to indorse or to attempt to confute this view. It is enough to refer to the incident in order to show that the questioning of the wisdom of the ruler commanding citizens. The impartial moralist could support or discredit either theory by copious illustrations, drawn from history of the perversity of monarchs or the precipitation of parliaments. In the present condition of France Prince Bismarck would find a congenial and fruitful theme, and he may—if he were not too discreet—he might dwell on certain phenomena in our own present experience of parliamentary government. But Germany has not always had a ruler like the late Emperor William, nor can it count on always commanding the services of a Bismarck.

In the lower house of the Hungarian Diet, Herr Oetvoes, member of the opposition, charged Premier Tisza with procuring the construction of railways where he owned estates for the purpose of increasing their value. Tisza refuted the charges. Baross, minister of public works, repudiated the charges and condemned the attempts to slander the ministers. Count Stevan Karolyi moved a resolution that the house emphatically repel the calumnies against Tisza. The house applauded and the resolution was not put, Tisza declaring that the manner in which it had been received completely satisfied him.

SMITH AND MITCHELL.

The Battle Postponed Until April 1st.

BY TELEGRAPH TO THE GAZETTE.

NEW YORK, March 20.—The following was received at the Police Gazette office yesterday from London: The glove fight between Jem Smith and Charlie Mitchell for £400 has been postponed until April 1st. Mitchell is training at Bedford Lodge, Newmarket, with Charley Rowell and Billy Mitchell as his mentors. Smith is training at Hastings. There is considerable trouble in selecting a place for the battle, and it is possible they may decide to bring the affair off privately, owing to such a large amount of money being wagered on the result, and the eagerness of so many of the blue-bloods to pay 25 guineas to witness it.

If Lord Salisbury were imprisoned for a technical breach of law, and if any Radical referred to him as he referred to O'Brien the offender would deserve to be ignominously hooted from the society of decent people.

The Death Roll.

Sir Thomas Gladstone, Baronet, is dead aged 85. He was the only surviving brother of Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone.

[Sir Thomas Gladstone, eldest son of the late Sir John Gladstone, Baronet and heir of that distinguished merchant, took no prominent part in political affairs, and his fame has been quite eclipsed by that of his brother W. E. Gladstone, the ex-Premier. Sir Thomas was a firm Conservative and locked with great disfavor on Mr. Gladstone's departure from that political faith.]

In a speech at Watford last evening Lord Salisbury stated that nothing short of a vote of want of confidence would bring the government to a premature end.

W. H. Smith, government leader of the house of commons, is suffering from insomnia and will probably be compelled to abstain from official work.
