THE STORY OF A CRADLE

(New York Herald.)

If all the baby's cradles in the world could talk, and if they should one day meet together and tell the stories of their respective lives, one from New York, it is believed, would relate the most interesting tale of all. It is the little white crib which stands just within the entrance to the New York Foundling Hospital, at Lexington avenue and Sixty-eighth street.

True, some of the others would boast that they had held kings or princes or presidents; some would point to their elaborate workmanship and their artistic decorations as a claim to superior distinction, and yet others would take exalted pride in their great cost.

The little white cradle would remain silent while its colleagues, recruited from the palaces and mansions of the world, recounted their own virtues, and perhaps it would feel a little awed in their presence. For it is just an ordinary crib, severely plain, without a distinctive feature save its very lack of adornment, and hopelessly old fashioned. It could not have cost many dollars when it was new, and that was more than forty-four years ago.

Many cradles now in use are old, of course, but they have seen service only at infrequent intervals, enjoying long periods of rest between. There are babies which cuddle in the self-same cribs where grandma used to sleep—family heirlooms which have been preserved in the attic to be carried downstairs and dusted when these youngsters should appear. This particular cradle can point to no such sentimental associations. Moreover, it has been in use every day during these many long years, and age does not improve the appearance or increase the vigor of cradles any more than of some human beings.

Babies of All Races Received

But beneath its downy coverlet no fewer than 60,000 babies have slept—nearly 60,250, according to figures obtained yesterday. That record alone places it in a class apart from all, or nearly all, of the others which would attend that great mass meeting. And some of these babies were white, some black, some yellow—every race, indeed, which goes to make up the population of this great cosmopolitan city has been represented. What other crib has given its protecting care to such a family as that?

So it would be a marvellous story that it might tell, if it only could—a story of crushed hope, of broken vows, of blighted ambition, of wrenched heart-strings.

Whoever takes her baby to the hospital and surrenders him to the tender ministrations of the Sisters of Charity of St. Vincent is required with her own hands to lay the waif in the little crib. Once having placed him beneath the white canopy, the mother has no further claims on the child. Possibly she tramps all the way from a tenement on the lower side, the mite of humanity nestling in her arms, or she may have driven in an automobile of the latest model, a nurse guarding the little burden which is soon to be left behind. The sisters' reception of each mother is the same. There is a tear of sympathy, a word of comfort, a prayer for forgiveness and guidance, and from each is required the same token of surrender—the bestowal of the child in the cradle.

All Cared for the Same Way

And the crib, if it could talk, might say that each child, whatever station he occupied in the few days or hours of his life, previously, will henceforth receive from his new guardians exactly the same measure of love that is meted to each of the others.

Whether the newcomer hails from a fine uptown residence or a squalid tenement in a poorer district, he is clothed in the same quality of downy linen, put to sleep in the same nursery, taught his "A B C's" in the same kindergarten, instructed in the same faith and finally placed in the same kind of Christian home when a new "papa" and "mamma" 'are found for him.

And so the little crib sees the youngsters come and go, sometimes as many as eight in a day. They are placed in its lap by mothers who cannot or will not care for them and lifted into the arms of the sisters whose life work is to see that the babies receive "just a chance."

The mother who comes in, deposits her child tenderly and leaves, tear eyed, may have been driven by poverty to make this supreme sacrifice, or shame alone may have moved her to abandon the infant. The little crib somehow has a way of divining the truth of the situation. Maybe, after all, it is just as well that it cannot tell its story.

Perhaps, indeed, knowing so well the depth and the sacredness of the mother love, it wouldn't tell its tale even if it could.

Royal Arch Masons.

Toronto, Feb. 23—The grand chapter of Royal Arch Masons of Canada will convene here on Wednesday.

The total number of members is 18,383, a net gain for the year of 1,850. The cash balance this year is about $6,000, making the surplus about $46,000. Eight new chapters have been founded during the year.

Cure Children's Colds By External Treatment

Mothers Will Find Nothing so Speedy and Reliable as Old-Time "Nerviline"

It's really a shame to upset a young child's stomach by internal dosing, when external treatment will so promptly break up a cold.

When your boy comes in after play with his feet soaking wet, his throat hoarse and sore, his little chest tight and congested, just apply Nerviline. Give him a vigorous rubbing over his throat, and put lots of Nerviline on his chest and rub it right in. To make Nerviline penetrate more quickly cover his chest and throat with a hot flannel bandage. This treatment WON'T fail. Your boy will be feeling better in half an hour, and you will have the satisfaction of knowing you have warded off perhaps a cold, or grippe, or illness that might have laid him up.

Nerviline is mighty good for preventing colds and for breaking up a bad one, too. For general family use it cures all sorts of external aches and pains—you simply can't beat it. Try it for earache, toothache, neuralgia, sciatica, lame back, rheumatism, or lumbago. Wherever there is congestion, inflammation or pain in the joints or muscles, Nerviline will cure mighty quick. The large 50c. family size bottle is so economical, so useful, it should be in every home. There is also a small 25c. size. Dealers anywhere sell Nerviline.

First Case of Its Kind In Canada

Jury awards verdict of $500 damages against Ontario farmer who married a second time when his first wife was living. Miss Maria Fisher and Henry Jones, here pictured, were the principals in a peculiar case at the Toronto Assizes. Jones, who is a prosperous farmer was married twenty-six years ago, but according to his own statements had not seen her for twenty six years and had received an anonymous telegram some years ago that she was dead. In February, 1912, Miss Fisher answered Jones' advertisement for a housekeeper, and after a short courtship they went through a form of marriage, and lived together for nearly a year. Then the first wife turned up and Jones was arrested on charge of bigamy, but acquitted by a jury. Miss Fisher sued for $10,000 damages for loss of character and social standing, and was given $500. The presiding judge said it was the first case of its kind in Canada.

Two Letters on Socialism

Socialist Woman's Views

To the Editor of the Times:

Sir:—I respectfully ask for space in your paper to reply to the address of the Rev. Father Hogan, on Socialism. I am the mother of children and the wife of a Socialist, and I claim that the remarks of Father Hogan are not true. I do not believe that Socialism would destroy the home or break up the family; but rather vice versa. The labor of women today in industrial pursuits, means the total destruction of the family life of the workingman. Woman thus engaged is not free from household duties! it simply adds a new burden to her weary lot. She is torn from her family of little ones, who, perhaps, are entrusted to strange hands or left to walk the streets, while she seeks employment to aid the husband in securing the daily bread. The Socialist demands the abolition of the system that makes it necessary for the wife to aid the husband in ekeing out an existence. The present system destroys the home, the safeguard of purity and righteousness. Today among the poorer classes, home is a mockery. The mother must work to compensate the father's enforced idleness, and her children come into the world with feeble bodies, broken nerves, in fact, physical degenerates. The home is the place where, most of all, environment tells. Overwork for women and children is the physical basis for crime, intemperance, and vice. The youth, the man, or the woman, who has grown up in a home—or the mockery of a home—such as this, can never escape from the prison of their own faltering body. Women are so constituted that certain employments are injurious to them. What we want is suitable employment for women, and reward according to results. It is my belief that economic equality between husband and wife would work a transformation in the family. The advantages which Socialism would bring to women are more than can be imagined. Surely, Socialism would make for the elevation of woman, and not her degradation. Speed the cause of Socialism is the wish of

Yours truly,
MRS. A. TAYLOR.

St. John, Feb. 21.

The Other Side.

To the Editor of the Times:

Sir:—From a clipping of Saturday's Standard, I gleaned that Mr. Taylor asserts that the majority of the statements made by the Rev. Fr. Hogan, C. SS. R., are incorrect. It strikes me, however, that not one of the majority of the "misrepresentations" accompanied Mr. Taylor's epistle.

Now I would like to inform the writer of that letter that I myself was present at the Reverend Father's lecture, and I am positive every principle he exposed and termed inimical to the existing laws of society, and the rudiments of common sense, can be substantiated by some of Mr. Taylor's "comrades" elaborate dictums, among the most important of which I might cite Karl Marx, Frederick Engels, and lastly, but by no means least, one Morris Hilquit, the present day exponent of thoughtful "Socialism."

In Father Hogan's remarks one could discern the logical confusion of ideas exposed, consequent on the reception of that stupid and unscientific principle of Karl Marx who exclaims: "All wealth is produced by labor, and labor alone." Of course this contention is ignored by the more intellectual Socialists, but it is preached day in and day out by the "soap box" orators to the masses. Mr. Taylor, accepting this view, will imperceptibly be forced to push it to its logical conclusion. On the other hand, if he disputes that labor is the "sole producer of wealth," he breaks with his great preceptor, repudiates his pernicious teachings and uses a little "horse sense,' 'and is finally received into the company of normal society. Let's hope such a change will speedily take place.

Another part of Father Hogan's very instructive lecture was his exposition of the detestable principles of "free and indiscriminate love,' 'and if Mr. Taylor disavows that Socialism has fostered any such practice, he gets himself "in bad" with Morris Hilquit, who was forced to acknowledge, unequivocally, mark you, that his views coincided with Marx' Engels' and Bebel's views on marriage and the family. Moreover, as proof of the truth of Father Hogan's statements re Socialism, I would suggest that our friend Mr. Taylor, peruse "Everybody's Magazine,' 'which throws added light on those principles which Father Hogan had only time to touch upon. I refer to the famous controversy 'between Rev. Dr. John A. Ryan, a Catholic priest, and Morris Hilquit, pursuant to this all absorbing question.

Here is the admission that Father Ryan extorted from Morris Hilquit: "Socialists stand for the dissolubility of the marriage ties at the pleasure of the contracting parties." Now if this confession does not corroborate Father Hogan's statements anent the marriage question—show me.

What will my friend have to say when he reads such a cold admission; and surely in the face of such involuntary admission on the part of Hilquit, Socialists must be convinced that Father Hogan put it mildly when he warned his hearers not to ally themselves with such an anti-Christian coterie.

I again draw my friend's attention to the fact that what the lecturer said concerning Socialism is substantiated more effectively by the Socialists themselves, than by any argument he adduced,—they stand self convicted.

That Mr. Taylor will not think me narrow minded in confining my reamrks to Mr. Hilquit's denunciatory admissions regarding the conjugal phase of the question. I will interpolate here a few utterances concerning the holy state of matrimony uttered by a daughter of Karl Marx himself.

Eleanor Marx had imbibed the sex philosophy of her father, and while on a tour in the United States she made the following statement: "Love is the only recognized marriage in Socialism; consequently, no bonds of any kind would be required. Divorce would be impossible, as there would be nothing to divorce, for when love ceased separation would naturally ensue." (Chicago Tribune, Nov. 14, 1886).

Edward Aveling, an English Socialist, after having been married ceased to love Eleanor, and she in a fit of despondency drank the bitter dregs of a deadly poison. Decent men would have called Aveling a brute, and a coward, but wasn't he within his rights according to the Socialist philosophy? In looking for another affinity he grew tired of Eleanor.

Again, to further corroborate Father Hogan's remarks in relation to the marriage question, I wish Mr. Taylor would take cognizance of the saying of Frederick Engels, a collaborator of Karl Marx, by the way, who says: "If incompatibility, disenchantment, or repulsion set in between the two persons who have come together, morality commands that the unnatural and therefore immoral bonds be dissolved." I hope no further comment is necessary.

August Bebel, another hero most-like of Mr. Taylor, spoke to the same effect when he said: "If marriage founded on love alone is moral, then it follows that marriage is moral only as long as love lasts." Sublime reasoning.

Perhapsa my friend will urge that Father Hogan was wrong in saying that Socialism had anything to do with the family or religion, but what these leading Socialists say has more weight with me than what Mr. Taylor might urge, and they, in more caustic language than Father Hogan's give evidence overwhelmingly to the contrary of what my learned friend might perhaps urge.

Socialism is not merely an economic question, and as an illustration of my contention I might mention that at a convention of the socialist party in Chicago in 1908, our now famous Mr. Hilquit introduced a resolution to the effect that Socialism was merely an economic question and had nothing to do with matters of religion and the family. This same Mr. Hilquit today is forced to admit that "marriage can be dissolved at the pleasure of the contracting parties." I think even Mr. Taylor is constrained to cry out: "Oh, consistency, thou art a jewel."

What Morris Hilquit said in 1908 and what he writes in 1914 is a contradiction. and truth is unchangeable, and Mr. Taylor is very anxious that "the truth prevail."

Mr. Hilquit in 1908 was acting hypocritically in not giving the people a definite argument, a specific explanation as to what the real principles of Socialism really are. He concealed the truth when it was a matter of adopting a plank in which they would pull the wool over the eyes of the American laboring man, but their plans were ignominiously defeated and their bluff in hoodwinking the public was called.

Socialism would be detrimental to our fair dominion in subverting the bulwark upon which society rests.

In going into the matter at such length I do so to prove beyond the possibility of a reasonable doubt that everything Father Hogan discussed on Sunday has been substantiated by the fathers of Socialism themselves.

In the United States social conditions are pretty rotten, and as Socialism naturally delights, fattens amid discontent and strife, Father Ryan, seeing great material for Socialists to work with, thought it his duty to check the tide of revolutionary socialism and prove that the state of affairs was not due entirely to decadent economics. In Canada, thank God, conditions in the social order are not so corrupt, and Socialism need not be taken seriously by the people of Canada for a hundred years hence.

Yours sincerely
A CHRISTIAN SOCIALIST.

St. John, N. B., Feb. 21.

[The Times has received other communications on this subject, including a request from one correspondent for space to "elucidate some arguments raised," and to ask Father Hogan some questions. As Father Hogan is now in Montreal, and as the Times does not wish to be the medium of a prolonged controversy on this subject the correspondence is now closed.

Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then to keep their stomach, liver and bowels regulated, and never know a miserable moment. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a good, gentle cleansing, too.

BRITISH POLITICS

The first bye-election necessitated by the recent changes in British cabinet resulted in the defeat of F. C. G. Masterman in the southwest division of Bethnal Green by the narrow margin of twenty-four votes. The Unionist candidate, Major Sir M. Wilson was elected. Mr. Masterman was appointed chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster to succeed C. F. Hobhouse, who becomes postmaster-general. The picture is of Mr. Masterman.

NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE SAVES WORRY, SAVES MONEY, SAVES THE HAIR

If you want to free your head of dandruff and stop falling hair, you must sooner or later resort to Newbro's Herpicide.

By using Herpicide first you save yourself worry, which is desirable, you save money, which is a consideration, and you save your hair, which is the most important of all.

Why not profit by the experience of Mrs. S. A. Lee, of 110 South 4th street, Richmond, Va., who writes:

'Four years' residence in India ruined my hair until it was but two inches long and very thin. I tried everything in Europe and America without benefit until I was induced to use Herpicide. My hair is now long, soft and silky and natural color, while before it was quite gray. My friends never tire of admiring my hair."

Mrs. Lee's story is a typical history of hair troubles. After everything else fails Newbro's Herpicide brings relief. It would be just as effective if used first.

Newbro's Herpicide makes the accumulation of dandruff impossible and prevents falling hair. It stops itching of the scalp almost instantly. No matter what the claims of others, Herpicide is the only "genuine original dandruff germ destroyer."

Newbro's Herpicide in 50c. and $1.00 sizes is sold by all dealers who guarantee to do all that is claimed. If you are not satisfied your money will be refunded.

Aplications at good barber shops.

Send 10c. for sample bottle to The Herpicide Co., Dept. R., Detroit, Mich.

ROYAL EDWARD PARTY IN CONCERT AT INSTITUTE

A more successful concert than that given last evening by the crew of R. M. S. Royal Edward has seldom been heard at the Seamen's Institute, the seating capacity of which was overtaxed, some 600 persons being present. The performances of the Royal Edward "Foo-Foo" Band were the feature of the entertainment in their sublime grotesqueness of costuming and general arrangement. Yet the music of the burlesque orchestra was only second to the exquisite drollery of the spectacle. The conductor's tricks drew roars of laughter from the audience.

S. J. Gill's recitation of Kipling's Gunga Din was done with consummate art, while a skit, The Workhouse Gate, performed by S. Wheeler with Mr. Gill was another turn deserving much praise. J. Clarke won loud applause by his humorous monologue, as did W. Hutton, with his Irish songs and personal humor. A. Done, who imitated the famous Carleton on a one-string fiddle of his own make, showed noteworthy skill.

The other members of the programme are given below:

C. Squires, song; A. Amsbury, humorous song at the piano; C. Marchant, song; W. Saysell, cornet solo, Tipperary; W. Barnett, song, Bonnie Mary of Argyle; E. Skrine, comic song, Come and Have a Drink With Me; A. Skimmings, comic song, Last Election Day; J. Wade, comic song, Take 'Em Off! G. Wylde, female impersonation.

The programme was concluded by a third appearance of the Foo-Foo Band, who played as finale, The Maple Leaf, Rule Britannia, and God Save the King. A. Amsbury and C. Dunster were accompanists.

The Quickest, Simplest Cough Cure

Easily and Cheaply Made at Home. Saves You $2.

This recipe makes 16 ounces of cough syrup—enough to last a family a long time. You couldn't buy as much or as good cough syrup for $2.50.

Simple as it is, it gives almost instant relief and usually stops the most obstinate cough in 24 hours. This is partly due to the fact that it is slightly laxative, stimulates the appetite and has an excellent tonic effect. It is pleasant to take—children like it. An excellent remedy, too, for whooping cough, croup, sore lungs, asthma, throat troubles, etc.

Mix two cups of granulated sugar with one cup of warm water and stir for two minutes. Put 2½ ounces of Pinex (fifty cents' worth) in a 16-ounce bottle, and add the Sugar Syrup. It keeps perfectly. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

Pine is one of the oldest and best-known remedial agents for the throat membranes. Pinex is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, and is rich in guiaicol and all the other natural healing elements.

Other preparations will not work in this formula.

The prompt results from this recipe have endeared it to thousands of housewives in the United States and Canada, which explains why the plan has been imitated often, but never successfully.

A guaranty of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this recipe. Your druggist has Pinex, or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.
