FOUR MAY RESIGN FROM POLICE FORCE

Negligence of Duty Alleged Against Three Sarnia Officers.

SARNIA, Jan. 3.—Complaints lodged against Police Sergeant Wm. Seabrook and Constables Frank Esson, Walter Leigh and Sam Woodhouse resulted in Magistrate Gorman announcing tonight that the commission had found that the three officers named first were negligent of their duty on the night of December 26 last, when the jewelry store of J. C. Barr, Front street, was burglarized, and that the reports booked for that night were not satisfactory, and that P. C. Woodhouse had been drinking on duty.

The four officers named were given the opportunity to send in their resignations before January 10 next, according to the secretary. Judge Albert E. Taylor, chairman, and Magistrate Gorman, secretary, were the only members present at the adjourned session, Mayor Wm. Nesbit, the third member, being absent.

The complaint against P. C. Robert McCullough was not taken up, but left in abeyance until the first meeting this year, it was announced. P. C. Arthur Webster, whose resignation was reported at last Wednesday's session of the commission, has turned in his uniform and a successor is being sought.

WANTS "MOVIES" ON THE FREE LIST

Tells Tariff Commission That British Films Should Be Admitted.

OTTAWA, Jan. 3.—(Canadian Press.)—The importance of placing moving picture films of British manufacture on the free list was emphasized before the tariff commission this afternoon by Col. A. A. McGee, representing the Anglo-Canadian Picture Plays, Limited. Col. McGee explained to the commission that it was practically impossible under present conditions for the British film to compete with the American film. The British film was the equal, if not superior of the American production, and it was felt that it merited a certain amount of encouragement.

Lady Pope, appearing on behalf of the Daughters of the Empire, supported Col. McGee. The moving picture, she said, had become a great educational factor in the life of the community. One of the objects of the society which she represented was to Canadianize the foreign element in the Dominion. The effect of the large number of United States films constantly exhibited in Canadian theatres was to neutralize these efforts, and the foreigner became more familiar with "Old Glory" than the Union Jack. Lady Pope also objected to the bad English in the explanations on American films. She thought that if national ideas were to be kept up it would be wise to encourage and develop English films.

Chief Press Censor.

Colonel Ernest J. Chambers, who acted as chief press censor during the war, explained that German propaganda had been carried on extensively in the United States through the moving-picture film. The moving-picture industry in the United States had been at that time largely in the hands of German Jews. He became convinced that the moving-picture industry had been sold out body and soul to interests inimical to Great Britain and Canada. He had therefore interested himself in getting British films into Canada, a very difficult problem during the war. Conditions were different now. The British manufacturers wanted to sell in Canada, and should be encouraged.

Scores Protection.

Speaking on behalf of the United Farmers of Ontario, M. H. Staples of Toronto, educational secretary of that body, declared that a protective tariff failed to do away with unemployment. It did not create markets for the farmer and it had also failed to maintain a favorable trade balance for the country. The spirit of unrest was abroad in the country in spite of the protective tariff, he said. Protection, complained Mr. Staples, resulted in double taxation and created a shelter behind which the lazy or incompetent manufacturer could hide. The protective tariff directly fostered class selfishness and encouraged sudden industrial expansion, which was not healthy and natural. A protective tariff was opposed to a tariff for revenue.

The hearing adjourned at 5 o'clock, to resume tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

Dairy Utensils.

Abolition or a substantial reduction in the customs tariff on glass bottles, tinware, dairy utensils and machinery and other articles used in the dairy industry was urged upon the tariff commission this morning by a deputation from the National Dairy Council. D'Arcy Scott, counsel for the council, presented a resolution passed at a meeting of that body in 1919, asking for these tariff changes. The resolution referred to "the unreasonable and excessive customs duty, which amounts to 40 per cent on some articles regularly used by dairymen, and which is one of the chief factors in keeping up the price of milk." A reduction in the customs tariff, the resolution stated, would bring about a reduction in the cost of living.

Today's proceedings opened the last meeting which the commission will hold prior to beginning actual work on tariff revision. Prior to representations from the National Dairy Council, charges were made against the Automobile Equipment Association. It was claimed by R. L. Phillips, a Fredericton, N. B., dealer in automobiles and auto accessories, that as a result of the organization of this association of jobbers, business in automobile accessories was being unduly restricted. He suggested legal proceedings to dissolve the "trust."

PERMANENT TARIFF BOARD NEEDED, SAYS LABOR DELEGATION.

OTTAWA, Jan. 3.—Canadian Press.—Representing two hundred thousand workers, male and female, organized into two thousand local unions, Messrs. Tom Moore, president, and P. M. Draper, secretary-treasurer of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, today presented to the Dominion commission of inquiry on tariff a statement of facts and opinions on the relationship of labor to the tariff. The statement points out that the congress is a non-political body.

The statement sets forth that the organized workers of Canada believe in the utilization of natural resources of Canada and their conversion from the raw state to the finished one within the boundaries of Canada. The congress' statement in brief asked that industries enjoying protection should be compelled to absorb all Canadian labor first; that protection should never be so high as to create a monopoly; that the Government should have full control over capitalization and thus prevent the cutting of "melons" and watering of stocks; and that a permanent tariff board should be created to carry out these or other similar regulations.

Investment Needed.

The creation of an industry, says the statement, calls for investment not only of the shareholders' money to build and equip the factory, but also from the workers themselves, who invest in transporting their household effects and homes to a close proximity to the industry in which they are engaged, or, in many cases, go further and invest their all in a plot of land or a house, in the full expectation of securing steady employment from the industry. This investment is often lost sight of, but is a very material one, the closing of an industry in many cases bringing absolute ruin to many workers by destroying investments thus made. It is therefore important to the worker that industries established should be as stable as possible.

Much Competition.

Canada is placed in the centre of competition. To the south the United States, with its huge and fully developed industries turning out products in mass, and with a great home market fully protected to supply; to the east the workshop of the world, Great Britain, with a century of industrial development behind her and numberless workers whose wage standards were far below that which Canadian workers should be expected to accept, whilst to the west the Orient, with its hordes of cheap laborers, able to flood our market at any time, if there were no bars against them.

In view of all this, Canadian workers admit the need of protection to our industries, but they are not satisfied with its past application, believing it has been misused, aftener for the benefit of capital than used for the benefit of labor.

CHINESE NATIONALIST LEAGUE CELEBRATION

Farman Lee Elected President for 1921.

Members of the local Chinese Nationalist League celebrated on New Year's Day the tenth anniversary of the establishment of the provincial government set up in Nem Kin, in the Province of Kwang Su, and which was the beginning of the Chinese Republic. About fifty members attended the celebration, which was held in the society's club rooms at 428 Clarence street, Past President Chin Ming presiding. Farman Lee was elected president for 1921. Ten years ago on January 1 North and South China united under the name of the Chinese Republic.

A resolution was passed asking all local Chinese to hereafter follow the Christian calendar in recording time.

"THE DEEP PURPLE" IS SPLENDID VEHICLE

Grew & Powers Company Appear To Greatest Individual Advantage.

"The Deep Purple," a play of strong dramatic interest, dealing with New York crooks of several types, is a splendid vehicle through which nearly every member of the Grew and Powers company appears to greatest individual advantage at the Majestic Theatre this week. Practically every member of the cast has found a part admirably suited to him or her, and although better plays have been presented since the company organized in London, last night's performance was probably the best all-around performance of any play to date by these clever players.

George V. Dill in the role of the hero, a western mining engineer, William Lake, plays his part with a vim, verve and vigor that satisfied everybody in the house from the orchestra boxes to the back of the second gallery.

Gwendoline Pates is her usual bewitching and brilliant self as Doris Moore, while Marguerite Weston, with rare felicity and charm, plays the part of Ruth Lake. Edna Marshal, as Frisco Kate, enjoys a role this week with sufficient scope to prove herself an actress of splendid talent and wide capabilities.

William A. Grew is neat and adequate as Laylock, the western desperado; Dillon Deasy is quite capable as Leland, the unscrupulous crook; and good support is given by James Swift as Pop Clark, Alfred Rigali as the police inspector, Edward Latimer as the hotel copper, and Harry P. Young as Lieut. Flynn.

Vera Secord, as Christine, the Scandinavian maid, is inimitably good, while Louise Gilchrist, as Mrs. Lake, achieves some very satisfactory work. D. O. Secord, as the hotel valet, plays this minor part all right, but might look his part better in some other role.

CERTAINLY WELCOME TO SEE 'EM NOW

But the Big Sale Does Not Begin Until Friday Morning at 8:30 o'Clock in R. Leo Watson's Stores.

"After the publication yesterday of the news of our men's Midwinter Sale I was asked by several customers if they could look at what we have to sell now. 'Certainly,' was my answer," said R. Leo Watson.

"Anything and everything we have to sell will be sacrificed—but on some things the price subtraction will be greater than on others. For instance, we have about decided to cut right in half the label price on a few "lonely" overcoats, whilst we will have some genuine guaranteed Semi-ready suits as low as $23.95.

"There will be specials and extra specials, for the longer a garment stays in our shop the more it costs us, yet the less we will sell it for.

"All our $4.50 and $6.00 shirts will be marked down to $3.95, while the $10 to $13.50 silk shirts will be sold at $6.95.

"I cannot relate all the bargains as yet, for each day we study the replacement cost, the probable cost next year, and each day we take careful stock of just what we can do.

"I have one of the best men I can find to help me, for this winter will witness the greatest price revision ever known in Canada—right here."

ELECTORAL SUB-DIVISIONS IN CITY TO BE REVISED, SAYS CITY CLERK BAKER

Many of Present Subdivisions Are Larger Than Law Provides.

Complete revision of subdivisions in London will be undertaken this year, City Clerk Baker announced Monday. A change of this kind has been needed for some time, and the city is now in a position to commence it, he said.

Statutes require that there shall be less than 300 voters in a subdivision. There are more than this number in subdivisions 1, 3, 4, 12, 13, 16, 18, 19, 21, 55, 64, 68 and 77. Reducing the size of these, however, undoubtedly will mean changing the boundaries of many of the others, so that the shake-up is certain to be general. Where possible, the city clerk favors the square or rectangular subdivision in preference to those with irregular boundaries, and the revision will be carried out along those lines.

The work cannot be undertaken until the voters' list is compiled. This will be started as early as possible, but will take longer this year, as there are three sections to be listed. City officials must make a complete list of persons entitled to vote at parliamentary elections, which includes every British subject more than 21 years of age, and not on the other lists as tenants, owners or income voters. Although the city bears the full expense of this, it is of no value except to the government. The second list will include persons entitled to vote at municipal elections only, and the third those entitled to vote at both parliamentary and municipal elections.

The work will be completed in the early fall. The making of new subdivisions will then be taken up and will be completed for use in the 1923 elections.

RAILROAD EMPLOYEES PLEDGE LOYALTY TO BROTHERHOOD HEADS

OTTAWA, Jan. 3.—The determination of its members to stand by the Canadian Brotherhood of Railroad Employees in the difficulty which has arisen through the action of the executive of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, in attempting to revoke the brotherhood's charter of affiliation, is expressed in numerous messages received at the head office in Ottawa over the week-end.

Many of these have come from individual members. One of the strongest messages was received last evening from Hamilton Division No. 34. It reads: "Meeting today resolved unanimously to stand solidly with Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees regardless of what any other organization may do."

Commenting on the messages, A. R. Mosher, the grand president of the brotherhood, last evening said: "These expressions of loyalty are not unexpected. Never for a moment did I doubt the loyalty and support that would be forthcoming from the members. It would be false modesty on my part to refrain from expressing my appreciation of these reminders of the confidence which thousands of railway and express workers in this country so fully repose in the C. B. R. E. It is just such loyalty and co-operation that has sustained the organization in the past, and which will continue to sustain it in the future, regardless of whom our opponents might be.

MISSING HAILEYBURY MEN RETURN SAFE

HAILEYBURY, Jan. 3.—Safe and sound and quite unaware until they met a search party that their month-long absence from here was causing uneasiness among relatives at home, Marty Wright, ex-mayor of Haileybury, and Charlie Wright, his nephew, turned up here this afternoon. They had experienced no trouble and were in no difficulties at any time. They were at the Anvil Lake Mining Company's property in the Maple Mountain section and were detained there by the condition of the roads, which had been affected by the mild spell. There is still no word here of the fate of Chris McCool, the missing Pembroke lumber man.

At The Theaters

AT THE GRAND.

London playgoers who missed seeing Richard Brinsley Sheridan's "The School for Scandal," as presented last night at the Grand Opera House by Clifford Devereux and one of the strongest casts playing classic British plays, that ever visited the city, will have two more opportunities of seeing this splendid aggregation of players in this, the finest comedy of manners.

The play was well mounted and the gorgeous old-time costumes of the period of 1775 with their variety of color and their trimmings of dainty lace ruffles produced pictures which for their vividness and artistry will live forever in the memories of those who were happy enough to witness the production on its first appearance in London.

Veiled though the shafts of satire with which Sheridan depicts the follies of the idle rich of Old London of that day are in phase and expression hard for the modern theatregoer of Canada at times to grasp, yet the truth of the play to certain conditions of modern life was easily recognized and the lesson intended carried as vividly as ever to the observant student.

As Sir Peter Teazle, the aged bachelor, who has married a young country girl and transported her from the simplicity of her former life to the maelstrom of "society," where her very simplicity makes her the butt of scardal and envenomed tongues. Clifford Devereux cleverly portrays the honest-minded, though irascible husband, who would fain protect from busy tongues the honor of his wife.

Mr. Devereux's impersonation of the character is a marvel for its truth to life and smoothness of presentation. Miss Zinita Graf, as Lady Teazle, was an excellent conception of the part of the inexperienced wife, who, while longing to do her duty to her husband, finds herself surrounded by a crowd of effeminate men and bitter-tongued women who by innuendo and gossip seek to separate her from her husband.

Charles Surface, the rollicking, spendthrift, prodigal son of Sir Peter's old friend, is most admirably portrayed by Ian Keith, while his unctuous, over-moral brother, Joseph Surface, who seeks the ruin of Sir Peter's wife, while courting his ward, Maria, is given clever embodiment by Edmund Forde.

Miss Winnifred Day, as the ingenue Maria, who stoutly believes in the good that exists in Charles Surface, despite all that evil tongues can say, has a most winsome stage presence, but at times failed to make her voice audible to her audience.

The other lady members of the cast who deserve mention were Miss Mary McAndrews, as Lady Sneerwell, and Miss Anabel Montagu, as Mrs. Candour. C. H. Stark, as Sir Oliver Surface, the uncle of Charles and Joseph, who takes his own method of finding out the real character of his nephew, gives a pleasing presentation of the jovial man of the world who thinks well of all till he has proved them. The Rowley of Anthony Andre was a lovable presentation of the staunch friend who believed in the goodness of the prodigal through good report and ill. The other members of the cast gave the principals excellent support.

The play is presented in five acts, and especially delightful features were the stately old-time minuet at the close of the first act and the denouement of the screen scene in the closing of the fourth act. Playgoers who were unable to witness this play last night will have an opportunity of seeing it tonight and at a matinee on Wednesday.

On Wednesday and Thursday nights Mr. Devereux and his company will present Shakespeare's "Much Ado About Nothing," and on Friday and Saturday Bulwer Lytton's "The Lady of Lyons."

AT LOEW'S.

Lavishly staged with beautiful costumes and handsome women, "A Romantic Adventuress," produced by Paramount, and in which Dorothy Dalton plays the title role, is the feature film at Loew's for the first half of the week. This offering opens in New Orleans, with Miss Dalton as the young daughter of Professor Vannil, whose wife refused to forsake her stage career during his illness and deserted him. The brave father opens a dancing school, and as the years grow upon him the management of the institution falls upon the shoulders of his daughter.

The faithless wife, in search of a gay life, resides in New York, and is known as Mrs. Martyn. One day, upon returning from the mardi gras carnival, in which she wins the laurel wreath for her beautiful portrayal of "Queen of the Night," Alice Vanni, discovers her father's lifeless body. Without a relative in New Orleans she is compelled to seek shelter with her mother in New York, who exploits Alice's talent as a dancer in order to uphold her social position.

While in New York, and at the onset of her stage success Alice meets Marsell, the star football player of the Yale team, and in return for her encouraging cheers at the game, the Yale team attends the theatre in a body, and greet "La Mimosa," as Alice is known before the footlights. Later Alice and her mother journey to Monte Carlo, and here the latter unscrupulously endeavors to force her daughter's marriage to a wealthy Italian by blackmail. This scheme fails and Alice meets Marsell, her football hero, at the famous gambling resort. The scenes of the Mardi Gras at New Orleans, and those of Monte Carlo, are wonderfully staged, and included in the thrills is a close-up of a rugby game. An all-star cast supports Dorothy Dalton in this vehicle.

"My Goodness," a Mack Sennett comedy of the funniest sort and Loew's Screen Pictorial conclude the film bill, while three excellent vaudeville acts round out a delightful program. Work and Mack present eccentric dancing and acrobatics which are new to Londoners and Jerome and Albright, two youths, offer original songs that please. Liola Shaw and company, the headline attraction, present an amusing satire on married life, entitled "There She Goes Again." The three persons in this number are accomplished artists, and the settings are very appropriate.

AT THE ALLEN.

Breathing the very spirit of Canada's great hinterland, "Nomads of the North" at the Allen Theatre the first part of this week, was witnessed by packed houses at the first showings Monday, and it undoubtedly will continue to attract big crowds throughout Tuesday and Wednesday.

The outstanding feature is a huge forest fire. The roaring flames are seen sweeping through the great forests of the north and forming an ever-closer circle around the little group of fugitives. Wild animals race through to safety, but for one of the little group the gallows waits if he escapes, while certain death faces him if he remains. It is a dramatic situation which could only be dealt with by James Oliver Curwood, on whose novel the picture is based.

Animal actors are used to an even greater extent than in "Back to God's Country." Bears, mountain-lions and other ferocious denizens of the north, play important parts in the great drama. Little Neewa, the bear cub, Brimstone the pup and other animal stars are more lovable and amusing than when they first made their bow to the public.

The principal roles are played by Lon Chaney and Betty Blythe, both of whom are artists of the first rank. The story deals with the efforts of a Hudson Bay officer and his blackguard son to thwart the love of Nanette Rowland, an orphan, for Raoul Challoner, a trapper. They succeed in having Challoner outlawed on a charge of murder and help Corporal O'Connor of the R. N. W. M. P., a former lover of Nanette's, to bring him to justice. Their plans are dramatically foiled.

The overture "Arctic Pictures" by the Allen orchestra is appropriate. The Christie Comedy is an exceptionally funny one, and other pictures make up an exceptionally good program.

TWO MEN SHOT.

Dublin, Jan. 3.—Two men who, according to a statement issued from Dublin Castle, were badly wanted by the police, were shot by soldiers yesterday while attempting to escape. They were David Tobin and Thomas Murphy of Ballingarry, County Limerick.

The statement says that as a military car approached Tobin's house he and Murphy ran out of the door. Tobin, after proceeding a hundred yards, took shelter behind a bank. With drawn revolvers the soldiers outflanked him and shot him dead. Murphy was brought down by a bullet and died later.

CURRIE APPEALS FOR SPIRIT OF SACRIFICE

Montreal, Jan. 3.—A stirring appeal was made tonight by Gen. Sir Arthur Currie before the Men's Club of the Church of St. James the Apostle for a continuation of the same spirit that had imbued Canada and her troops during the war, to win victories during the coming years of peace, so that further conquests might be made over the difficulties that face the country. He urged that a continuation of the spirit that had actuated the Camadian shock troops would mean that the Dominion would continue to establish the morale of the world in the reconstruction period, as it had during the war.

Look for the PARNELL LABEL

A number of our customers have informed us that bread which they bought, thinking it to be Parnell's, lacked that delicacy of taste and different texture they had become accustomed to, so in future every loaf of Parnell's Bread will be labelled on the bottom. Ask for Parnell's again, and be sure you have it by seeing the label.
