Fast driving of late has become a public nuisance as well as a prolific source of accidents.

THE CITY CORNET BAND EXCURSION to Fredericton to-day was the largest excursion that has gone out of St. John for a long time. The train, which was drawn by two locomotives, consisted of sixteen cars all apparently filled to their full seating capacity with people who felt confident of spending a pleasant day. IMPORTED LABOR IN CAPE BRETON.—Blazing fires in front of a rough windbrake by the roadside are now a common sight of an evening in the vicinity of the line of construction of the Cape Breton railway. They are the sleeping places of the imported Italian laborers, who prefer to live thus in uncivilized Gypsy fashion than pay their board like white men. The native Mic-Mac Indians, it is said, make far better and satistactory laborers, and quite a number are employed at different points.—Island Reporter.

The body of an Italian laborer was found in the river at Bay Verte on Friday. The body was nude with the exception of one sock and one boot and a knife was sticking in the throat. The man is supposed to have been murdered by two of his countrymen.

Baptist Conference.

The forty-fourth annual meeting of the Baptist convention of the maritime provinces opened in Fredericton last Saturday morning. The attendance from all parts of the maritime provinces was large. After the transaction of routine business and the appointment of committees, Rev. Mr. Foshay read the report on obituaries. The report mentioned the deaths of Rev. Edmund A Crawley, D D, I. L D, Rev. James Israel DeWolf, Rev. L B Gates, Deacon Jacob Bradshaw, Rev. P D Harris, and Rev. Geo H Beckwith.

Rev. Dr. Sawyer submitted the report of the board of Ministerial education. It showed that 33 young men holding license had received assistance from the board during the year.

Rev. Dr. Higgins read the report of the board of governors of Acadia college. In the enlargement of Assembly hall there had been an expenditure of $1,365.83. Of this sum $600 had been donated by Messrs. Payzant and Churchill, of Windsor, leaving a balance of $765.83 to be provided for. He said it would however, be very gratifying if the friends of the institution who have ample means would round out the jubilee celebration by making the proposed jubilee offering of $50,000 as complete as the jubilee itself was. Measures were adopted in November to give increasing efficiency to the sientific department of the College. A special grant was made for apparatus, etc., and Prof. Caldwell reports as follows; "The addition made last summer to the college building has greatly increased the facilities for work in the science department. Twelve tables have been put in for practical work in chemistry, and last winter 26 students elected this subject with very satisfactory results."

The attendance at the seminery for the past year has not been so large as was hoped. There were enrolled 59 students. The hope was expressed that some brethern or sisters would give a $50,000 endowment each to Horton academy and Acadia seminary. Even $20,000 each would be a great boon and prepare the way for the larger amount as the development goes forward. The report referred to the death of Rev. Dr. Crawley, one of the most faithful and prominent of the founders of the college.

The Spirit of Manual Training.

It is believed that the specific purpose of education is to cultivate character, to induce sound thinking and to make a necessity of scientific inquiry. Its highest end is ethical. Of great value, but secondary to its supreme purpose, are the skill and the information which would be the natural result of such cultivation. The aim of the school is to prepare for completeness of life. The central thought in its entire organization is always the boy himself, and everything that is done, every study that is taken up, every influence that is brought to bear, has for its sole purpose his development. In this view of its proper function the school is a purely educational institution, and is industrial only in making use of the tools of industry to accomplish its chosen purpose. The manual work, like the work in science and literature, is simply a means of development. It bears the same relation to the process of education that a railway train does to travel.

One may select slower modes of approach if he choose, in his delight at the rapid transit, he must not confuse the journey with the end for which the journey is made. Those who hold this view of manual training watch with sincere regret any encroachment of that spirit which places the inanimate product, however ingenious and beautiful it may be, above the human product. The object of manual training, they believe, is the production of thoughtful, self reliant, honest men.—Professor C. H. Henderson in Popular Science Monthly.

The Shah's Treasures.

The shah of Persia has a museum in his palace that is described as a curious place. It contains jewelry and treasures of different kinds worth a fabulous amount. The so called Peacock throne, carried off from Delhi 150 years ago, is alone valued at many millions. In this museum you may also see vases of agate in gold and lapis lazuli, said also to be worth millions; and alongside of them empty perfume bottles of European make, with gaudy labels, that can be had at four cents apiece. You will see priceless mosaics and exquisitely painted cups and cans and vases, which were presented by some European potentate; and side by side with them you will notice horrible daubs, veritable ten cent chromos picked up no one knows how or where. You will perceive glass cases filled with huge heaps of rubies, diamonds, emeralds, sapphires, turquoises, garnets, topazes, beryls of all sizes and kinds, cut and uncut; and cheek by jowl with these your eyes will see cheap music boxes, jewsharps, squeaky hand organs. The shah must also be in a condition to "bull" the market on pearls, for here is, for instance, a big glass case, twenty-four inches long by eighteen inches wide and high, which is more than half filled with pearls (mostly from the Persian Gulf fisheries) of all sizes and degrees of loveliness.—Exchange.

Brevities.

Michael Coffee, at the firm of Epps Dodds, & Co., died at St. George Saturday morning of typhoid fever. Mr. Coffee's manyfriends will learn of his death with deedest regret.

This evening Bishop Newman will deliver his famous lecture, "The March of Civilization," in Centenary church. The lecture is the product of ripened thought, fresh from the lips of an eloquent man. It should be heard by all.

On Saturday evening last, while Charles the 12 year-old son of Mr. Townsend Ross, was playing on the Market wharf, St. Andrews, he fell over the side on to the beach, a distance of about 20 feet. The lad received some ugly flesh wounds, but no serious injuries.

Wm. B. Barton, a seaman belonging to the schooner Essie C., was brought to the city on Saturday on the steamer State of Maine. On Friday the Essie C. and Lillie G. came in collision off Grand Manan, and Barton by some means got his head caught between the vessels. His face was bruised beyond recognition and presented a hard sight. Barton, who belongs to Queens county, was taken to the hospital.

The lodges of Good Templars turned out at the funeral of their late brother, Mr. Henry Brookings, who was buried yesterday afternoon. The members preceded the hearse, wearing mourning badges and white gloves. Rev. L. G. Stevens conducted the funeral services at the house and at the grave. The burial service of the order of Good Tempiars was read at the grave also.

The post office at Campbellton was broken into late Thursday night or very early Friday morning, as it was found open by the courier who called for the night's mails. It was found that the bags from Quebec side as well as these from down the coast made up for the Quebec clerks had been carried into the back yard and their contents examined. Six registered letters were stolen, but it is understood that only two or three contained any considerable amount.

FREDERICTON FALLS AGAIN.

Heavy stick work counts for much, and St. John pounded Burns in a terrible manner Saturday, making 12 base hits, with a total of 22. Cunningham occupied the box for the home team and was only found for five singles. Field work on both sides was good, and the large score is only accounted for by the heavy hitting. The score by innings stood:—

St. Johns	2	1	0	0	3	4	2	5	0	—17
Frederictons	2	0	0	0	0	3	0	1	2	— 8

Base hits, St John 12, total 22; Fredericton 5, total 5.

PROSPECTS FOR BATES.

Wilson of Bates has been pitching on the Wolfboro team this summer. Bates men are looking forward with a good deal of interest to the class of '93, and are anxious to know what kind of baseball material it will bring in. Daggett, Call and Knox have graduated, and Graves it is understood, does not intend to complete the course. It is expected that Wilson will be able to pitch next season. Pennell will likely be there, and if he comes will be a valuable man at second base and also at the home plate. A catcher is expected from Melrose, Mass. Several other men are booked for the class. Games will be arranged for this fall, although the regular team will not be selected until just before the league season opens. Eighteen men will take special gymnasium course this winter.

The concluding heat in the 2.45 class at the New Glasgow maritime province trotting circuit, was trotted Saturday morning. Wildflower, Gladstone and Speculation won two heats each on Friday. Capt. Kidd's Long Disembodied Spirit.

A ghost in the old Rock Hill estate at Medford is the subject for gossip in that vicinity. It is said to be the spirit of Capt. Kidd, and this belief is founded on an old tradition connected with the estate. It is one of the numerous places where the fabled treasure was hidden. Many have dug for it, and it is said that some struck the cover of the chest, but it had a trait of sinking lower whenever touched. Another theory is that the midnight visitor is the spirit of a New Hampshire farmer who was robbed and murdered there. The majority of people, however, have no story at all and will believe in none. The visitor has the usual characteristics of a ghost, and has disturbed all the inhabitants in the vicinity.—Springfield Republican.

Friendly Advice.

I came across a trio of reminiscent managers the other night just in time to hear the following, which the narrator, Ben Stern, of the Carleton company, says he has never seen in print:

"Andy McKaye was managing 'The Seven Ravens' when they got stranded in Chicago. He didn't lose his appetite over the event, however, and he sat in a restaurant eating one night when Wainratta, the rope walker, who was one of the company, came in in great distress and asked McKaye how on earth he was to get back to New York. It was the first time he was ever stuck in this way and he couldn't stay in Chicago and starve.

"'Well, there's nothing to keep you from going back to New York,' said McKaye; 'the company's broken up and the way is open.'

"'But, great heavens, I haven't a cent!'

"'Now, look here,' said McKaye; 'aren't you the greatest wire walker in America?'

"'Of course,' Wainratta said.

"'Well, there are wires all the way from here to New York. I'd advise you, by the way, to travel at night; the telegraph company charges only half rates then.'"—Philadelphia Press.

MANCHESTER, ROBERTSON & ALLISON

The temple of the sun at "Tadmor" in the wilderness has fallen; but the traveller slakes his thirst at Jacob's well, a striking illustration of the survival of the fittest. Just here it can be said that our IDEAL SOAP still pursues the even tenor of its way, while other brands which have had a short run have fallen into ruins, and the survival of the fittest is sure to succeed.
