$100 A YEAR WILL PURCHASE A fifty-acre farm in the township of Dawn, county of Lambton, or will exchange same for city property. Tennent, McDonagh & Coleridge, London.

EARLY IN THE SEASON WE PREDICTED that the real estate market in city realty would be extremely active, and the many transactions on the local market prove that our prognostication was well founded. Even through our office alone over $100,000 worth of real estate has been sold. The tendency among buyers is still towards further investments. The extremely low rates now being paid on savings bank deposits will have a tendency also of increasing investments in real estate. To meet this looked-for demand we have secured a number of very eligible properties. We can only mention a few in this list, but if you will call at our office we will be pleased to give you full particulars of any property you think might be suitable for your requirements. We mention a few:

Dundas street—One of the best retail business blocks in the city, making returns of 8 per cent on investment. Price, $30,000.

Queen's avenue—A very fine 2-story brick residence, containing all modern appointments. Price, $3,200. Will bring in a rental of 8 per cent per annum.

Piccadilly street—2-story brick residence, containing 8 or 9 rooms; large lot. Price, $1,850 for immediate purchase. Will pay over 8 per cent.

York street—1½-story brick residence, containing 8 rooms. Price, $900. Will pay 10 per cent on investment.

Piccadilly street—2-story brick residence, containing all modern appointments; slate roof; built in 1896; a beautiful home at a low figure. Price, $2,700.

King street, near Wellington—2-story brick residence, all modern improvements, including hot water heating; assessed $3,500. Price on application.

Dundas street—Large 2-story brick residence, containing 11 rooms, all modern appointments, including hot water heating. Will pay 7 per cent.

Central avenue—That very eligible building site, occupying the northeast corner of Central avenue and Wellington street; will divide into two lots if desired. When this lot is gone you cannot duplicate it; overlooks the Park. Lots are getting scarce—secure it now.

Wellington street—Choice building lot, west side, near Hyman street; City Trust survey, lying between the residences of Mr. Magee and Major Hayes. This is a fine lot at a low price.

Also a large number of vacant lots, ranging in price from $100 to $3,000 each, and cottages ranging in price from $500 to $2,000.

Money advanced to purchase property, build, remodel or pay off old loans. No trouble to show property or give information.

Why Not Compulsory Arbitration, as in New Zealand?

That a conflict extending over two months, has occurred, and is still in progress, in which a street railway company, a considerable body of employes, and the general public, have been each caused great loss and inconvenience, seems to suggest the need of preventive measures as regards the future. Not alone, however, in London, seeing that every other city having street railway facilities is liable to the same loss and the same interruption of convenience.

The Advertiser's advocacy of arbitration is familiar to our readers. Had this journal's early advice to both parties in the dispute been taken, the whole trouble would have been over six weeks ago. But when the blood gets up, it is often, unfortunately, too much like throwing water against the wind to talk of arbitration.

What, then? Is so common-sense and Christian a principle to be given up? By no means. Partial arbitration—arbitration only when neither party sees fit to object—evidently is not the remedy adequate to modern needs. What is wanted is compulsory arbitration in certain cases—such cases, to be specific, as those concerning companies with large track-laying and carrying privileges over public streets—semi-public franchises, as they might be termed.

In New Zealand, the principle of compulsory arbitration is applicable by law to almost every form of dispute between even private employers and employed; and, from all we have heard, with satisfactory results. It has been found that substantial justice has been the usual outcome, and that it has equalized conditions as between employers.

It would, then, not be possible for either party to say, "There is nothing to arbitrate." If, when the compulsory arbitration had been held, it clearly appeared there had been nothing to arbitrate, that would mean one side entirely in the wrong, and the other side entirely in the right. There are few such cases of dispute, in which one side is entirely in the wrong and the other entirely in the right. But, assume, for the sake of argument, that in a given case it should be so found. Immediately would begin the influence of public opinion against the side that had been shown to be so entirely in the wrong—and public opinion is the strongest thing in the world; stronger than maxim guns; stronger than private detectives; stronger than additional policemen; stronger than the subsidized services of any and every open and hidden tool of autocracy whatever and wheresoever.

The next session of the Ontario Legislature should not be allowed to come to a close until a measure has been enacted which shall provide for compulsory arbitration, in such cases of disagreement as that which in this pleasant and progressive capital of Western Ontario has temporarily deprived the people of the free right to use—with good conscience—the streets of which they themselves are supposed to be the ultimate owners.

That this view of arbitration is not confined to The Advertiser, is shown from the following remarks on the Cleveland strike, from the editorial page of the Indianapolis Sentinel. Our contemporary says:

"The public has given up its streets for the benefits of cheap and rapid transportation, and it is deprived of what it contracted for, because the two direct parties to the controversy cannot or will not come to an agreement. Furthermore, the public has to bear the expense and trouble of attempting to preserve the peace and protect the company in running its cars. Is not this absurd? Nobody pretends that such a question as this can be justly settled by force any more than any other question and the public has the right to provide by law for the settlement of disputes of any kind. It provides courts for the settlement of nearly all disputes but those of this character. And why not these? Why should not the company and its employes be brought before a competent tribunal for the settlement of their differences? It is a reflection on civilization that such crude and barberous systems of adjustment of disputes are permitted to exist."

When representatives of the ancient Finnish nation tried to wait on the Czar to ask consideration of what they considered their rights, the Czar did not even receive them. He simply waived them nay. He had nothing to arbitrate.
