Boston Letter.

DEAR POST:—I have long heard members of the Episcopal church complain of the cold reception they receive when they go from home and attend the services of the Church of England in Canada, or the Protestant Episcopal church in the United States. It is true they usually see that you get a seat, but beyond this you seem to be entirely alone, no one seems to care where you came from, or who you are, whether you are a stranger, or if you have any church at home. Having travelled considerably myself, I have often observed the same thing, and have many times wondered why it was so. I have also noticed that in all dissenting churches that I have attended, and I have frequently heard from others the same thing, that they are ever ready to give you a hearty welcome, ask you to come again, and if you have no church at home request that you worship with them. I find they usually have a social meeting about once a month in the vestry of each and invite strangers to attend and become acquainted. These courtesies cost very little and do much to make a stranger feel at home and that he has a friend in the world, that these people are not only Christians in name, but in the spirit also.

As a member of the Church of England in Canada, I have an interest in the church, and I feel that this lack of courtesy has done much to lead many young persons from their old love into what seems to them more pleasant paths; and I think we all, both clergy and laity, should exert ourselves to correct this, to me, seeming error of our acts. Having attended several of the Episcopal churches, as well as many of the dissenting ones, here the present winter, I could not help but notice the very great contrast. I hope that this letter may be the means of making some at least of our communion more thoughtful about the matter and not to have the stigma of cold and heartless worship, &c., heaped upon us any longer.

On the evening of the 19th inst., I attended the church of St. John, near Roxbury Crossing, Tremont St., where the service was hearty and the sermon good. Here also was a surpliced choir that gave good assistance in singing; to-day I attended the 4 p. m. service, St. James St., in the Highlands, where the ordinance of baptism was administered to three adults, and we had a very hearty and solemn service, with a very excellent sermon by the rector, Rev. Percy Brown—respecting the duties of new and veteran Christians. But in both churches there was that lack of welcome that makes one feel as if he he was with friends and Christain brethren.

Some may think this matter not worthy of consideration, and old steady heads, staunch churchmen may go and get all the good from the service necessary, but young persons especially need the hand of welcome extended to them and the assistance of the church to keep them from falling away and going to other places of worship, or what is worse, ceasing to go at all, and finding some other way of spending the Sabbath, which perchance may lead to a vicious life, and in the end to eternal punishment. Let us all consider the matter and do what we can to make amends for the long neglect, and not be outdone in courtesy and Christian charity.

Trusting this letter may be received and read in the spirit in which I have written it, I am,

Yours truly,
X.

Carmen Saeculare.

TENNYSON'S ODE IN HONOR OF THE QUEEN'S JUBILEE.

LONDON, March 19, 1887.—Tennyson's jubilee ode is published to-day. It is entitled "Carmen Saeculare," and is in alternate three and eight line blank verse stanzas. The first and second stanzas are as follows:—

I.

Fifty times the rose has flowered and faded,
Fifty times the golden harvest fallen
Since our Queen assumed the globe, the sceptre.

II.

She, beloved for a kindliness
Rare in fable or history,
Queen and Empress of India,
Crowned so long with a diadem
Never worn by a worthier,
Now, with prosperous augeries,
Comes at last to the courteous
Crowning year of her jubilee.

Of the next five stanzas, the short sing the attributes of the Queen, and the long enjoin the nation to celebrate the jubilee with illuminations, festivals, charities, etc. The subsequent stanzas are as follows:

VIII.

You, the patriot architect,
Shape a stately memorial.
Make it regally gorgeous—
Some imperial institute,
Rich in symbol, in ornament,
Which may speak to the centuries,
All the centuries after us,
Of this year of her jubilee.

IX.

Fifty years of ever broadening commerce,
Fifty years of ever brightening science,
Fifty years of ever widening empire.

X.

You, the mighty, the fortunate,
You, the lord territorial,
You, the lord manufacturer,
You, the hardy, laborious,
Patient children of Albion,
You, Canadian, Indian,
Australasian, African.
All your hearts be in harmony,
All your voices in unison,
Singing, Hail to the glorious,
Golden year of her jubilee.

XI.

Are there thunders moaning in the distance?
Are there spectres moving in the darkness?
Trust the Lord of Light to guide her people
Till the thunders pass, the spectres vanish,
And the light is victor, and the darkness
Dawns into the jubilee of the ages.

Greens.

The desire for fresh vegetables in spring, is not a mere fancy, but is a craving of the system for a healthful change in the diet. It is well known that sailors, who on long voyages subsist largely, if not solely, upon salted and dried meats, are attacked by a dreaded disease, the scurvy, for which fresh vegetables are a ready cure. The families of many farmers, are confined during the winter months, to a diet of salt meats, almost as exclusively as are sailors upon a protracted voyage. Salted meats are convenient; they afford a supply of animal food with little trouble, and the pork-barrel and the smoke-house are drawn upon from day to day, with little thought of the effect upon the health. As spring approaches, the desire for fresh vegetables becomes intense. The farmer is fortunate if he has a good supply of cabbages will preserved, as these if eaten raw, as salad or coldslaw, will go far to offset the scorbutic effects of continuous salt meat. A well regulated farm-garden—alas that there are so few, will supply except in three of the coldest and three of the hottest months, an abundance of spinach, the best of all greens. Also the German Greens, or Kale, an excellent non-heading cabbage, which is all the better the more it is frozen. If cabbages are wintered in trenches, or in a cellar, in such a manner as to preserve the stumps, these stumps, if set out in a sheltered place in the garden, as early as the ground can be worked, will soon produce an abundance of tender shoots, which are most excellent greens, and may be cut over several times.—American Agriculturist for May.

—An Albuquerque (New Mexico) editor, who expected a gang of lynchers to come for him about the middle of the night, took himself to the cellar, leaving a pet grizzly bear in his place in bed. The lynchers did not bring any light, but made a plucky attempt to get the bear out and lynch it, but gave up after three of them had lost an eye apiece, two of them had suffered the loss of thumbs chewed off and the other six were more or less deprived of skin. The man now has a reputation as a fighter, and the bear did not mind the work one bit. —San Francisco Alta.

—Recently the head of a great Bordeaux wine house called on Prince Bismarck, who for years has purchased most of his wines from that house. The man of blood and iron gave an order for a large consignment of wines, and then the Frenchman discreetly fished for an opinion as to the probability of war. "Tut, tut," exclaimed the Prince, "what put war into your head? Do you suppose I would order wine of you if I expected war? No, no; I would come and get it myself."—N. Y. Tribune.

—Among Queen Victoria's Jubilee gifts will be a magnificent dinner service of bright yellow Dresden ware, from the German Emperor. It will be profusely ornamented with medallion pictures of notable events and protraits of famous persons of her reign. It will contain in all 480 pieces.

—It is said the Local Government lose $61,000 by the Maritime Bank failed.

Personal.

—It is understood that Hon. J. B. Plumb has been appointed Speaker of the Senate.

—Hannah Battersby, the fattest woman before the public, weighs 728 pounds. She eats a half pound of candy daily.

—Premier Smith, of British Columbia, died on Monday afternoon last after an illness of a couple of months. A reconstruction of the cabinet will soon follow.

—E. P. Roe, whom some good people pronounce the greatest literary genius of the age, is working eight hours or more every day in his home at Santa Barbara, Cal.

—Rev. J. E. Hopper, of St. John is now the guest of Burdette, the celebrated humorist, at Ardmore, Penn. Mr. Hopper's health is improving, and he will not go to Florida.

—Next to Mrs. Cleveland, Mrs. Jenness Miller is said to receive more letters than any other woman in the United States. Mrs. Miller is leader of a woman's dress reform movement.

More Criminal Carelessness.

From the Merchant Traveler.

"Julia, did that young man who called on you last evening kiss you just before he left the house?"

"Why, mamma, could you hear?"

"I heard enough; too much for my own peace of mind. How often have I told you to beware of these men? Your conduct is inexcusable."

"I wasn't to blame, mamma. We were standing at the front door, and his mouth was real close to my face, and before I knew it—"

"That will do. I see you have no excuse to offer."

"Yes—I have," sobbed Julia.

"What is it, pray?"

"His mouth—was—awful close to my face—and—I—didn't know—it was—loaded."

What's in a Name.

Husband (John by name)—Who was the man I met in the hall as I went out? Good-looking chap.

Wife—Oh, that was Reynolds, or Reginald—some such name—Tracy. He has just had a cup of tea with me. By the way, may I pour you a cup.

Husband (opening Post and speaking from behind it)—Yes dear, thanks. This is cosey.

Wife (looking absent-mindedly out the window)—Here's your tea, Reggy. Reggy, don't you hear me, dear?

Husband—Reggy! Reggy! My name is John—or Tom—or some such name.

—An attempt to re-establish the saloon in Nova Scotia has signally failed. Under the new licensing law bars are declared illegal. This is a severe blow at the liquor business, the full effects of which are only just being felt. In order to ward off the blow a bill was introduced into the Legislature providing that where two-thirds of the voters in any ward or municipality petition for a bar, the petition shall be granted and the bar opened. It was pleaded that this was practically allowing the majority to rule. But this specious appeal was without effect, the Legislature throwing the bill out by a vote of three to one. Nova Scotia is the first Province to abolish the seductive bar. It would have been too bad had it taken the proposed step backward.

—The importance of live stock to successful farming in Maine is plainly enforced when we consider that when $200 of wheat are sold at present prices, $57 of plant food are sold and taken off the farm in it. When a horse worth $200 is sold, only $7 of fertility leaves the farm. When $200 worth of butter, at twenty-five cents per pound, are sold, only fifty cents worth of plant food are sold. This fertility is the basis of everything to the farmer, and must be conserved to the greatest practicable extent. Live-stock farmers always have a good farm and are prosperous.

—One correspondent, who claims to have been on the ground when the Prince of Wales make his alleged indifferent reply to those who called to him to get up the night of the earthquake, insists that His Royal Highness did not say: "Since the shocks are over and the house still stands, I will remain where I am—in bed." What the Prince did say, this fellow insists, was: "The earthquake be d—d." And those who have had the pleasure of even a passing acquaintance with H. R. H. will readily accept the revised utterance as the more likely of the two.

—A woman named Marie Soum is under arrest at Toulouse for drugging her cousin, Bertrande Salage, and then cutting the form of the cross on several parts of her body for the purpose of exorcising an evil spirit, the woman Soum believing that she was under her cousin's malign influence.

—It is estimated that the United States produces enough lumber each year to load 1,428,581 railway cars, each averaging 7,000 ft. This would make a train 8,500 miles long, or about one-third around the globe.

—The temperance people of Colchester, N. S., want the Scott Act repealed, now that the province has a stringent license law.

GENERAL NEWS.

—Mary Ann James, a colored lady now living in Portland, Maine, is said to be the oldest person living. She was born in Annapolis, N. S., in 1776, and is consequently 111 years old. Dr. H. Merill, of Portland, writes to Annapolis to have the records searched so as to verify the old lady's statement, but there are on cords so far back as 1776, consequently her statement will have to be taken. The doctor says her looks indicate Indian blood.—Annapolis Spectator.

—Recent advices from the representatives of the Ball heirs in England are of the most encouraging character. The widow of the late Alexander Ball, who was about to contest the heirship of the estate, has withdrawn her claim to the property, and now all that remains to be done to get possession of the immense fortune is for the representatives now in England to prove that they are the heirs of the late John Ball. N. Y. Herald.

—Senator Howlan has submitted plans and estimates of the proposed subway across Hillsborough river between Charlottetown and Southport, to members of the legislature. The company represented by the senator proposes to put a subway similar to that contemplated between the capes, across the river, with tracks for foot passengers, carriages, railway trains, etc., for the sum of $250,000, to be paid in debentures of 4 per cent. interest when the work is completed to the satisfaction of the Government engineer.

—News comes from Benacadie Pond that as one Philiy McKenzie was letting his cattle out to drink he left his horse standing while he called at the house of Michael Bryden, who runs a distillery. The horse wandered around till he came to the place where Bryden had been in the habit of emptying his malt, when he proceeded to eat his fill. On his way home the horse suddenly dropped down in the road. Mr. McKenzie, thinking the horse was dead, called his two sons and proceeded to skin him, which they soon accomplished, and then went home. But judge their astonishment when they arose next morning to see the horse standing at the barn waiting for admission. After they had got over their fright they took the hide and stretched it over its owner, and at last accounts he was doing well. We are not prepared to vouch for the truth of this story, but it will answer in the place of the usual sea serpent yarn.—Baddeck Reporter

—The April WIDE AWAKE opens with a very beautiful Easter Morning frontispiece of lilies and chanting children by W. L. Taylor, who also illustrates the quaint article by Mrs. H. G. Rowe, entitled "A Yankee Schoolmistress." A Canadian poet, Miss Agnes Macher, has an Easter poem, "Easter Lilies," and Mrs. Susan Archer Weiss, one of the most thorough of folk-lore delvers, an article upon old Easter observances, and Dora Read Goodale a funny little plaint entitled "Easter Wares," in which she bewails the decay of the race of hens who used to lay gay and beautiful eggs at Easter-time. Mr. Mason contributes an interesting article upon "Indian Dolls and their Cradles," with twenty-three illustrations by Chandlee. C. F. Holder has an intertaining paper upon "Homes Underground." Mrs. Bolton in her "Successful Women" series writes about "Marian Harland," of whom there is a portrait, and Miss Hewins talks most temptingly with the young folks about making "A collection of Pictures;" and the boys are told by another boy of fourteen "How to Make a Squirrel-Cage." Susan Coolidge has a charming Nantucket story, "The Shipwrecked Cologne bottle." Mrs. M. E. M. Davis a "La Rose Blanche" story, called "A Morning Glory," and Miss Guiney writes in her fairy papers of "Dear Brownie." The serials are entrancing: "Romulus and Remus," "Montezuma's Gold Mines," "A Young Prince of Commerce" and "Howling Wolf and His Trick-Pony." There are some delightful talks with the readers by Mrs. James T. Fields, Miss Guiney, Miss Harris and others, and charming poems by Mrs. A. D. T. Whitney, M. E. B., Emma Huntington Nason, Edith Thomas, Mary E. Wilking, Mrs. Clara Doty Bates and Anna F. Burnham.

Remarkable.

It is the great household remedy for pain, inflammation, lameness, and sorenes of every description, and can be used internally and externally.

—A novel temperance measure is being advocated in Virginia. It is proposed to prohibit the sale of intoxicants to all save licensed liquor drinkers. The license is to cost $1 a year and be non-transferable, and the proceeds are to go to the school fund.

Where the Danger Lies.

The chief danger from taking cold is its liability to locate upon some internal organ, as the lungs, the pleura, the bronchial passages, etc. Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam loosens and breaks up the cold, allays irritation and often prevents or cures pulmonaty complaints.

Cure for Imflammatory Rheumatism.

Procure from your druggist a bottle of Hagyard's Yellow Oil and use according to directions. J. D. Cameron, of Westlake, Ainslie, Cape Breton, was cured by this remedy after all other treatment had failed. It may be taken internally for coughs, colds, sore throat, etc., etc.

Constipation

Is a universal and most troublesome disorder. It causes Headache, Mental Depression, impairs the Sight and Hearing, destroys the Appetite, and, when long continued, causes Enlargement of the Liver, Inflammation of the Bowels, and Piles. Constipation is speedily cured by Ayer's Pills.

For a number of months I was troubled with Costiveness, in consequence of which I suffered from Loss of Appetite, Dyspepsia, and a disordered liver. My eyes also troubled me. I was compelled to wear a shade over them, and, at times, was unable to bear exposure to the light. I was entirely three boxes of Ayer's Pills. I have no hesitation in pronouncing this medicine to be the best cathartic ever made.—James Eccles, Poland, Ohio.

I suffered from Constipation, and, consequently, from Headache, Indigestion, and Piles, for years. Ayer's Pills, which I took at the suggestion of a friend, have given me effectual relief. I commenced taking this remedy two months ago, and am now free from Constipation, the removal of which has caused my other troubles to disappear, and greatly improved my general health.—W. Keeler, Amherst, Mass.
