INCIDENT.

SOME people in this town seem utterly incapable of appreciating a generous act, merely because a young man calls on a young lady half a dozen evenings during the week, and occasionally drops in between meals.

There are people mean enough to insinuate that it means something besides anxiety about the health of the sick mother or to see how the kitchen range is working.

But speaking of ranges that reminds me of the large stock I saw up in Chestnuts store of cooking ranges and stoves, judging by the stock on hand we came to the conclusion that firm does not intend to take any back seat in that line.

Should you require anything in that line just give Chestnut & Sons a call they can satisfy most any one.

ALL STARVING.

Pitiful Scenes in Nova Scotia — Hopeless Poverty Where Once Was Plenty.

HALIFAX, Dec. 12.— Poverty, desolation, starvation.

That is the actual condition of hundreds of families on the western shore, between Chebucto Head and Chester Basin to-day, says the Halifax Chronicle, and unless assistance of some sort is rendered there will be many cases of starvation during the coming winter months.

For the past two weeks reports have reached this city to the effect that the fishermen in the vicinity of Prospect were in dire circumstances, and on special investigation by the Chronicle the reports have turned out to be only too true.

In November, 1889, owing to a failure of the fisheries, the people of Terrence (or Turn's) Bay were driven by the pangs of hunger to appeal to their more favored fellow countrymen for aid. Halifax responded nobly.

From that time to the present the fishing industry along the shore has been gradually falling off. In the hopes that the fish might again "strike in," many of the men stuck to their boats and nets, but hundreds grew discouraged and left their homes among the rocks to try and make a livelihood in other waters or on other soil.

Five years ago Lower Prospect was a village containing some forty-five families. To-day it does not contain one human inhabitant. What is left of the little village presents rather a gloomy appearance. The windows and doors of the remaining houses are boarded up, while a number of the cottages have fallen into decay.

The inhabitants of the little village—Turn's Bay—stuck to their homes, however. They had faith, and by all appearances they are arranging to live on that commodity during the coming winter. They felt the cruel pangs of hunger in 1889 and the same experience is now staring them in the face. During the last few years they have managed to subsist, that's all. They caught enough fish during the summer to provide them with provisions sufficient to last through the winter, but the past summer was an unfortunate one for them — the fish failed entirely — and at least twenty families have not enough provisions to last them over Christmas. Several families have not enough to last them over Sunday.

Such is the state of affairs as found on investigation by a Chronicle reporter Wednesday.

Turn's Bay is situated on the Atlantic coast, about twenty miles southwest of Halifax by road. The village stands almost facing the sea, and the surroundings are most dreary. The houses of the fishermen are nestled among the rocks and the land under cultivation does not exceed ten acres. There is an Episcopal church here, and a Roman Catholic church about two miles distant. The Episcopal missionary resigned some few weeks ago and has taken his departure for new fields of labor. The Roman Catholic clergyman comes up from Upper Prospect about once a month.

This was the home of the late Warren Smith, the famous oarsman. His son Willie, a bright and muscular little fellow of ten years, bids fair to follow in his father's footsteps. He is very fond of the boat and can already pull a strong oar. With considerable pride he produced the belt won by his father in the Halifax harbor and felt proud when it was buckled around him.

During the summer months school is taught, but in the winter is locked up, as the children are unable to face the cold blasts on account of the want of clothing.

A Chronicle reporter spent all day Wednesday among the people. He visited from house to house and made such personal enquiries as would put him in a position to lay the true state of affairs before the public. There are several families who are fairly well off; there are a number who can pull through the winter; half the community have enough to subsist on till Christmas or New Year's, and about seven families are in actual want. That is how matters now stand.

One family of eleven members rejoiced in the possession of enough flour to last through the week. The bread winner has tried and tried again to induce the finny inhabitants of the deep to come into his net, but without avail. When the reporter called he was out in his boat. His wife, an invalid, was seated before a fire made of brush, in a rocking chair made out of a flour barrel, and said that hunger was the cause of her sufferings.

"Has the gentleman brought any bread, mamma?" This was from a little tot who entered the room in which the reporter was seated in one of the houses. The head of the house was in Halifax, looking for work, his wife said, and their dinner that day consisted of half a loaf supplied by a neighbor. "That is all the food I have in the house," said she, taking the heel of a loaf from the cupboard, "and it must do for supper. God only knows where breakfast will come from."

In another house were found five young children. They were endeavoring to kindle a fire when the reporter entered, and they said that their father had gone to the States and that their mother had walked to Halifax to try and get them something to eat.

"Yes, we are pretty hard up," said a young woman, "but we would rather have work than take charity. We will do anything to earn enough to keep us alive."

"I have a ton and a half of hay, and if I could sell that I could pull through," said the father of nine children. A ton and a half of hay down there would not be worth more than $15. On that amount he felt able to feed his family all winter. Still the men fish, or try to fish. Sometimes they catch a few cod which they sell. Fifty cents' worth of fish is now considered a good catch. Sometimes the men will labor for a week without capturing as much as a tom cod. One man said he had five nets out all summer and his total catch was seven mackeral.

One old weather-beaten fisherman still had hopes of the fish returning. "They will come back, who ever lives to see the day," he said. "I can remember when the fish left us years ago, but they came back again." Thus hoping against hope the people have held on till the wolf is at their doors.

The alternative is to get out. The fishing failing, there is nothing for them to turn their hands to. They cannot farm for the simple reason that they have no land. Already this fall about eight families have left the place. They are now in Halifax, but are faring little better than those they left behind.

The men all seemed anxious to work. They said they could make nets and seines, and the women offered to make mats and do knitting. In spite of their poverty they generally manage to keep their little homes snug and tidy.

The fishing bounty will not help this locality very much. In order to be entitled to the bounty a man must catch 2,500 pounds of fish during the season. Thus the number of fishermen at this place, and indeed along the whole shore, who will receive the bounty of $3 each will be small.

The only grievance of the fishermen is that the steamers running along the shore destroy their nets.

CHINAMAN'S "YELLOW OATH."

One of the strangest judicial proceedings, perhaps, ever witnessed is that of the Chinamen taking what he is pleased to call the "yellow oath." The "oath," or declaration, is always written on a piece of "sacred" paper and is as follows:

"This is to call the spirits, both good and evil, to descend and watch over the trial of ——, who is charged with murdering ——. If I swear falsely and tell one untruth, or do not make statements according to the facts in the case, I humbly beg the celestial terrestial spirits to redress the wrong done to —— and to punish me immediately for having been a false witness; to arrest my soul in its flight; to make me perish by the sword, or to cause me to die while on the sea far from home. This is my true and solemn oath, uttered by my own lips, and signed by me this, the —— day of the —— month in the — year of the reign of the Emperor ——; and in proof of the earnestness of my declarations, may my soul be destroyed as I now destroy this paper, by fire."

Immediately after the witness finishes reading his "yellow oath" a lighted candle is handed to him and the paper is given as food to the flames. To the writer's certain knowledge this form of oath has been administered but once in an American court of justice — during the trial of Wong Ah Foo, who was accused of murdering Loi Ah Gou at San Francisco in 1885. In China the candle used in this extraordinary ceremonial is made from the fat of criminals who have undergone the death penalty.

PENNIAC.

DEC. 7.—The roads up this way are very rough again and everybody is anxious for snow, especially the lumbermen.

Jesse Manzer, of Mount Hope, who is lumbering on the Nashwaak, has been necessitated, on account of sickness among his men, to return home to get recruits.

Isaac Lawson cut a bad gash in his foot the other day while working in the woods.

There has been a considerable amount of sickness around here lately. Mrs. Jas. Dennison, Mrs. Henry Culligan and William Savage, who have been ill, are somewhat improved.

Mrs. Samuel Allen, of Gibson, is at present visiting her sister, Mrs. Culligan, of this place.

Geo. Price is paying a visit to his brother and other relatives here.

Several of our young people are taking advantage of the singing school in Marysville, and in some cases are "killing two birds with one stone."

A very successful candy party was held at the residence of Henry Moore last evening. Mr. Moore recently moved into his new house and the party served as a house warming.

Mrs. George Moore has for some time been in a rather critical condition. Her system appears to be all run down and her mind so weak that her friends have fears that she will lose her reason. Dr. Sharp is attending her, and we hope she will soon recover her former state of health.

Allen Walker is suffering from a severe attack of cramps. The doctor was speedily summoned and the patient is said to be a little easier.

In Banner council, R. T. of T., on Saturday evening last, one candidate was initiated and the following officers were elected by ballot for the ensuing term: C. N. Goodspeed, S. C.; Sada Walker, V. C.; Jennie D. Wade, chap.; Mable Walker, R. S.; Minnie Allen, F. S.; Alice Goodspeed, treas.; Mary Goodspeed, herald; John R. Barter, guard; Thos. Walters, sent. This council is still flourishing, although the meetings are not so well attended as formerly. York district council meets here on Saturday, 17th inst., when a large attendance is expected. The members of Banner council intend holding a pound party New Years eve.

Mr. and Mrs. Robinson, of Lepreau, have arrived and taken up their abode at Elmwood. We welcome them most heartily.

Rev. Mr. Kinghorn preached in the church at Lower Penniac on Sunday morning.

TEMPERANCE VALE.

DEC. 8.—Messrs. Scott & Stuart started for the lumber woods on Monday morning with a crew of the valley boys; his cook being George Draper. Their numerous friends wish them good health and success in their route.

The Union Sabbath school intend having an Xmas tree in the meeting-house on Xmas eve. All are cordially welcomed to attend.

Hoyt Scribner and son has, we are sorry to learn, sold their farm and will move from us in the early spring.

The ground in this locality has not frozen up yet, rendering work in the woods very disagreeable.

Every mother should have Johnson's Anodyne Liniment for cuts, burns and bruises.

LOWER PRINCE WILLIAM.

DEC. 8.—Sickness prevails in this locality; quite a number of our residents are confined to the house with severe colds and other sundry ailments.

David Parent, of Bear Island, passed through here a few days ago enroute to Macnaquack where he will attend the Baptist quarterly meeting which will be held at that place.

Coles Jones, of Boston, is visiting friends in this vicinity.

David Ebbett, of Hampstead, Queens county, is once more in our midst.

We wish to call the attention of the public to our village store, kept by Miss S. Saunders in which will be found a first class line of goods. In connection with the store is a millinery department where orders in this line will be filled with promptness and despatch.

A farmers supper will be held at J. W. Smith's, on the 26th inst., for the purpose of raising funds to repair the F. C. Baptist church.

The trustees in the lower section of the parish are anxiously seeking a school teacher for the winter term. The boys are also anxious for them to procure a female teacher.

I. K. King passed through here on Monday enroute for the south to spend the winter for the benefit of his health.

Wedding bells are ringing. Dame rumor says that a young man of Boston who was formerly a resident of this place, and one of our popular young ladies will be married to-day and leave for Boston, their future home. Your HERALD correspondent wishes them a prosperous and happy voyage through life.

ONE OF NATURE'S FREAKS.

Sarah Jessop, of Augusta, Ga., was one of the most wonderful of Georgia's many natural freaks. She was a colored woman, and had a two-inch iron cylinder passing through her breast. When Sarah was very small this passage appeared as a simple dent or cicatrice; at the age of six years it was sufficiently large to admit the thumb of an adult and extended entirely through the child's body. At a later period, at about the age of thirteen, a local physician inserted a metal tube as a protection to the girl's internal antatomy. When the size of the cavity or passage increased, the cylinders loosened and then dropped out, whereupon larger ones were regularly inserted. When Sarah died (from other causes) at the age of twenty-three, the cylinder was a fraction over two inches in diameter and passed through her breast between the lungs, coming out at the junction of the shoulder-blades.

A FORTUNATE CAT.

A cat which patronizes the soda water fountain is an attraction of a drug store in sixth avenue, near Jefferson market. It it a fine plump animal, with a layer of fat for each of its thirteen years, but between its age and weight it is most deliberate in its movements. Its teeth are not what they once were by any means, and so it gets along most easily with liquid food. Long ago it discovered that the "cream" of the fountain suited its tastes, and it has a habit of going up to the counter and waiting until it is served with light refreshments in its own particular saucer. Then it sits in the sunlight and blinks contentedly, the envy of all the small boys in the neighborhood, whose visits to the fountain are limited by cicumstances over which they have no control.—New York Times.

HARVEY STATION.

DEC. 10.—The weather so far has been quite mild for the season with very little snow. We have had two or three light storms, but not enough for good sleighing.

Much sorrow is expressed here at the untimely death of Gardener Escenca, of Smithfield, who died last week of congestion of the lungs. Mr. Escenca was well known in this place and was much esteemed.

Samuel Gray, of Salisbury is here spending a few days, the guest of Dr. Keith.

M. Collins, of Fairville, was here on Monday buying cattle. He succeeded in getting a car load which was shipped on Tuesday.

Thos. Craig recently killed three six months old pigs, the average weight being 262 pounds. The heaviest one weighed 285 lbs. This is hard to beat.

Harvey council, R. T. of T., had their half-yearly election of officers on Tuesday evening. The following were elected for the ensuing term: S. C., J. W. Taylor; D. C., Maggie Robinson; chaplain, J. Craig; Rec. Sec., D Taylor; assistant Sec., Helen Hetherington; Fin. Sec., May Taylor; Trea., F. Robinson; herald, A. Taylor; guard, C. H. Ryder; sentinel, D. Dewitt.

Wm. Patterson, sr., is very ill.

BLACKVILLE.

DEC. 5.— MRS. Ward Underhill's many friends will be pleased to learn that she is recovering from a very severe attack of pleurisy.

The Baptist people of this vicinity have made such progress with their church that they will be able to hold services in it this winter, but it will not be formally opened till spring. Rev. James Porter preaches in it.

Dr. Wilson still makes his weekly trips to this place, coming on the train when it is too rough for him to drive from Derby. The people find it very convenient to have a doctor in the place every week for a day.

One of D. G. Schofield's men cut his foot very badly. He would have bled to death, only that Dr. Wilson was at the settlement when he was brought out and dressed his foot at once. He had cut one of the larger arteries.

SHORT SUGGESTIONS.

Use a small soft sponge to apply the blacking to a stove.

Tannin mixed with mutton tallow is good for chapped hands.

Put a teaspoonful of salt into a kerosene lamp once in a while.

A good sized sponge is nice for cleaning paint and washing windows.

A large soft sponge, either dry or slightly dampened, makes a good duster.

A paste made of equal parts of lard and powdered chalk will cure corns.

Throw a quantity of salt in the stove if the chimney is on fire and there is danger from sparks; if not let it burn.

Nitre is excellent for a cold, especially a feverish one. Use ten drops in a teaspoonful of water, according to age, once in four hours.

A bottle of flexible collodion is very useful for cracks in the hands, scratches, cuts, etc. Care must be taken to keep it well protected from the air.

Edna — What do you suppose makes Tom write such awfully gushing letters? Kate — Oh, I suppose he uses a fountain pen.
