Fahey had said, but every one felt there was no argument in his words. If a little wit would send Dr. Orton to Parliament Fahey might succeed, but they wanted more serious matter than that. There had been no attempts to meet Mr. Young's arguments, all that Mr. Fahey did was to laugh them by. He was sorry for the position Fahey had assumed. He had for years acted with the Opposition, and he could tell him he would remain in opposition for the Reformers were going to win. (Cheers.) He referred to the glorious victories the Reformers had achieved in North Norfolk, Brockville, and Grenville, and he hoped they would keep the ball rolling. It did not require a lawyer to tell them that the Government had acted unconstitutionally in the Nova Scotia case, for they all know that the British Parliament was the only power to alter an Act which had been passed by that body. There was great danger in thus tampering with our constitution, for if the Government meddled with the financial part of it, what was to hinder them tampering with the portion of it regulating our representation. One of the strongest objections Reformers had to the present Government was the assumption of power to which they were not entitled, as for instance in the case of the Pacific Railway, which was placed under the control of the Government, or in other words the Governor in Council. This was the true family compact style of governing. According to our constitution the Government can't pay a clerk's salary without the sanction of the people's repre-representatives. Yet we find them arrogating to themselves the power to spend thirty millions of dollars, and dispose of fifty million acres of land. None of the Conservative speakers had touched on these points to-day, and yet they were matters of deep interest to us, for every farm in the county was mortgaged for this money. What the Opposition demand is that if our farms are mortgaged for this money Parliament should have the right to say how it is to be spent. (Cheers). In this matter the Government was a good deal like the patent right peddlers, (laughter) who made great promises of the fortunes their machines were to realize, and as soon as they got the votes, the poor dupes might look in vain for their profits or even for the value of their money. No one would presume to say that Dr. Orton was a better man than Mr. Ross, and they had experience to-day that he was not a better speaker nor so good, (Hear, hear) and he would ask them how could they support a man like Dr. Orton, who would support men who will make any sacrifice, and waste any amount of money to maintain themselves in power. They had heard a good deal about the Treaty of Washington, but not a word was said by the Tories about the Fenian claims, which were of more importance to us than the Alabama claims. He did not believe in this mealy-mouthed policy, and he was astonished to find a warrior like Dr. Orton trembling all over for fear that if we had not accepted the Treaty, the Yankees would go to war with Canada. He was proud to say that the young men of Canada were not so chicken-hearted, and that they proved themselves better stuff at Ridgeway. (Cheers). He held that the Treaty was an eternal disgrace to Canada and to the man that signed it for us. It was nonsence for the Tories to try and defend the policy on the Intercolonial Railway, they might as well favour the building of a railway from Fergus to Toronto round by Collingwood. (Hear, hear). And the corruption of the Government was not confined to great matters. They had the cases of Walsh and Col. Gray in point. He said the British Columbia Act was an outrage on Ontario, for it in effect told us that every individual there was as good as eighteen men in this Province. He concluded his speech by saying that he was glad this contest was being carried on without sectarian or national prejudices being mixed up with it, and that the motto of the Reformers was the same as he read on the walls surrounding them "Success to Agricultural Interests, All Honour to the Pioneers of the Forest, and Canada for Ever." (Great cheering).

Mr. Chadwick followed, but as the hour was getting late and the people becoming impatient he did not get a good hearing. He bragged that the Tories would carry the North Riding, then the Centre, and then they would go down to the South Riding and carry it also, which boast was received with derisive cheers. After speaking a short time in favour of Dr. Orton he retired.

A vote of thanks was then given to the Returning Officer, and after three cheers for the Queen and the candidates, the meeting broke up.

All the candidates retired except Mr. Ross and Dr. Orton.

Guelph Evening Mercury

WEDNESDAY EVENING, AUG. 7, 1872

Reformers Attention!

Grand Rally of Reformers at Elora, on Friday Evening, 9th of August!

A mass meeting of the Reformers of the Centre Riding is convened for Friday evening, the 9th of August, at Elora, when either the Hon. George Brown or the Hon. Alex. Mackenzie, M. P.; also, Hon. Peter Gow, M. P. P., Messrs. Stirton, M. P., Young, M. P., and Robert McLean, of Galt, are expected to address the large assemblage that will most probably be present from all portions of the County; especially as there must be a large number of the electors who have not as yet had the pleasure of listening to the oratorical efforts of either the Hon. George Brown or the Hon. Alex. Mackenzie; and the speeches of these gentlemen cannot fail, at the present exciting political crisis, to be fraught with a more than ordinary interest. Let our Reform friends then make all necessary arrangements to give the contemplated meeting all the "eclat" such an important political gathering in the Reform County of Wellington is calculated to convey.

Tory Tactics.

AT THEIR OLD GAME—MR. MCKIM, M.P.P., GROSSLY OUTRAGED! AND PELTED WITH ROTTEN EGGS!

On Monday night Mr. Drew held a meeting of the electors at Wallace's Corners in Amaranth. At the conclusion of his speech, Mr. McKim, M. P. P., wished to reply, but the "lambs" of the Corners would not allow him to speak, and pelted him with rotten eggs! Verily, Mr. Drew and his friends must be getting dreadfully desperate and disheartened when they require to resort to such despicable means to prevent freedom of speech and discussion from having its proper influence on the minds of the electors. Such electioneering brutality must disgust all right thinking men of either party, and such contemptible tactics do more harm to the cause of the assailants than to the assailed. Large as we every reason to believe will be the majority of Mr. Higinbotham on Friday, we doubt not the conduct of the "Wallace Lambs" of Amaranth will greatly help to swell it beyond the expectations of the most sanguine.
