Steady Growth in Popularity of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Made by Cures Like That of Simon V. Landry—He Tells About it Himself.

River Bourgois, Richmond Co., C. B., June 26.—(Special).—Among the many men in this part of Canada whom Dodd's Kidney Pills have relieved of aches and pains and weakness and made strong and able to do a good day's work is Mr. Simon V. Landry. Mr. Landry has numerous friends here who can vouch for the story he tells of his cure.

"I was bothered for over a year," he says, "with lame back, weak legs, palpitation of the heart, general weakness and shortness of breath; in fact I could not work and was a total wreck.

"I could not get anything to help me till I tried Dodd's Kidney Pills. But they did me good and no mistake. I used three boxes and I'm back at work again."

It is the cures they make that make Dodd's Kidney Pills so popular. Their popularity has grown steadily for thirteen years. It must be well founded.

King's Trial Near Close.

Edmonton, June 24.—King's trial is drawing near its end. Yesterday morning, Dr. Alexander Primrose of Toronto University, and Government expert, testified and positively swore that certain bones were parts of a human skull, and local doctors corroborated him. The defence is putting up a stubborn fight. The taking of evidence will probably be concluded to-night.

A SUCCESSFUL HORSEMAN

Never allows his horse to suffer pain. He always uses Nerviline, which is noted for curing stiffness, rheumatism, swellings and strains. Nerviline is just as good inside as outside. For cramps, colic, and internal pain it's a perfect marvel. In the good racing stables Nerviline is always used,—because it makes better horses and smaller veterinary bills. Twenty-five cents buys a large bottle of Nerviline. Try it.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED.

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

THE PASSENGER PIGEON.

An Interesting Description of Bird Common in Canada Decades Ago.

I have been thinking for some time of sending you a description of the passenger pigeon. No doubt, many of your readers have never seen this bird, and have no idea of the countless numbers seen by the early settlers. I write this sketch to recall to the memory of some of our early settlers, and also to give to our young natural history students an idea of a bird so very numerous forty years ago, and which is destined ere long to become totally extinct.

The passenger pigeon is a handsome bird, belonging to the same family as the dove, and has been noted for its vast migrations in North America. The male bird is much brighter plumaged than the female, and noticeably larger. The breast and extending to the middle is of a distinctly light brick red; the back variegated slate and bluish. The head and part of the neck are beautifully iridescent; the beak soft and slightly curved; the eyes mild and bright, with red iris, and having a fold of skin which the bird can put over the eye like a winker, whereby the danger of injury is much lessened in its flight through the thick woods. Its length is about seventeen inches, and the wing about eight and a half inches, and it is capable of flying rapidly through a thick forest, turning and dodging past obstructions with great ease, and able to take very long flights, sustaining them for nearly a day at more than locomotive speed, or about sixty miles an hour. It lives entirely on vegetable matter, such as fruits, grain, nuts, seeds, bulbs and plants. I have taken from the crop of one more than a good handful of beechnuts, which would be packed so tightly that it must have seriously incommoded its flight. When nuts and grain are scarce they will eat nearly anything in the vegetable line, such as buds, tender shoots, grasses and some kinds of fungi. Although I have taken all I have named and more from their crops, I do not recollect seeing any animal remains, such as worms or insects, of which most birds are so fond. Mild and peaceable in a marked degree, it seldom—I might safely say never—shows any sign of fight unless in defence of its young, and is an easy prey to all carnivora.

The passenger pigeon is gregarious in its habits, living in enormous communities, whose numbers would baffle the wildest calculation, and to tell only the bare truth it is likely the writer will be charged by your readers with extravagant exaggeration.

In their migratory flights, as I have seen them here, they were usually flying northward in spring, or in the breeding season, going and returning their feeding grounds. These migrations often extended over some weeks, and in such numbers at times that, speaking loosely, as people often do, the sky was literally covered.

To see them when most numerous, as they flew angling across Lake Huron, the shadows of the great flocks were distinctly reflected on the clear waters, like passing clouds, and to say that one-third of the visible expanse was covered with pigeons would not be disputed by an onlooker. Could we not be mistaken? I answer no. Where they came from or where they were going none of us could tell, but there were the great flocks, one after another, each one comprising up to many thousands. For hours they would be no apparent abatement, and when evening came they would alight on the trees, and then go to the ground to make a meal of what suited their tastes, and were ready to start next morning, shortly after good daylight, on their northward journey. Blue hawks often flew with them, and would pick a pigeon from amongst them, and retire to a convenient place to devour it.—Written for The Globe's Nature Notes, by William Welsh, Kincardine.

West Indies For Canada.

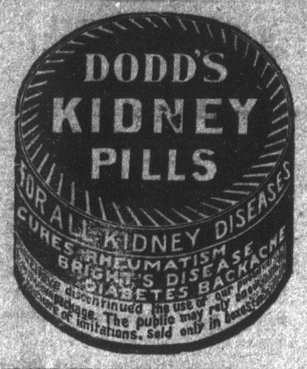
The Canadian Grocer says on this subject: If one is to judge from frequent expressions of opinion on the subject, sentiment in the West Indies is becoming more and more favorable to Canada. Only a few months ago a representative of The Grocer visited the islands; he found the trade there kindly disposed as a whole to their fellow-colonists away to the north, so much so that they prefered to trade with Canada, rather than with the United States, other things being equal. Prominent citizens went so far as to propose confederation with the Dominion as the most satisfactory solution of the future of the islands.

Such a move would hardly be looked at askance by the motherland. Only a week ago a speaker in the British House of Commons made the remark that he would "like to see the West Indian Government enter into negotiations with Canada, to find out whether at least some of the islands could not be better administered by the Dominion. If they were attached to Canada they would form something like a southern zone for the Dominion. The reorganization and revitalizing of the West Indies would result in an alteration which would add enormously to Great Britain's Imperial strength on the strategic highway of the world and in the commercial centre of the Western Ontario." What is more, the British treasury has just refused to continue the grant of $50,000 a year to the Agricultural Department of the West Indies, and the islanders are beginning to fear that Great Britain is losing interest in their welfare and progress.

Canada recently extended a substantial preference to all importations from the West Indies, with the result that a substantial and rapidly increasing trade has grown up between the two countries. From a commercial standpoint, it is in the interests of Canada to cultivate the islands, and it is to be hoped that the Federal Government will not be so forgetful of this fact as to withdraw or even curtail the financial support to the direct steamship service between Canada and the West Indies, which it has extended for the past twelve years.

The Archives Enriched.

Mr. L. W. Dorling, of Toronto, has donated to the archives of the Province a set of the Baptist Year Book from 1877 to 1900, copies of the Canadian Almanac for the years 1885 to 1896, a bound volume of The Globe for the years 1876-7-8-9, old maps of Hamilton and Ottawa, and one of the C. P. R., showing the original proposed route between Montreal and Winnipeg.



Fish Scale Jewelry.

The scales of the sea drum are extensively used in the manufacture of the sprays of flowers and other articles of fancy work which are sold at seaside resorts under the name of "fish scale jewelry." They are large and silvery and so hard that it is necessary to remove them from the fish with an axe or hatchet. The scales of sheepshead, tarpon, channel bass, etc., are also used for this purpose at times.

Nature has just one pigment on her pallette with which she produces all the marvellous tints of beauty, and that one pigment is the blood. The shell-like pink beneath the finger nails, the delicate rose of the cheek, the cherry ripeness of the lips, the irridescent brilliance of the eyes are all produced by the blood. Just as the permanence of a beautiful painting will depend upon the purity of the colors with which it is painted, so the permanence of beauty depends on the purity of the blood. Paint, powder and cosmetics won't avail to preserve beauty. Beauty begins in the blood. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is a true beautifier, because it provides for nature that pure blood with which alone she can paint. The use of this medicine will cleanse the skin, heighten the complexion, brighten the eyes, and give to face and form that radiance of health which is the greatest charm of beauty. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are very effective in ridding the system of clogging residuum, which accumulates with constipated habit.

The Curve of Health.

The expression "the curve of health," which was first used by Oliver Wendell Holmes, himself a physician, indicates in modern mathematical fashion the fluctuating changes in bodily health, of which all are at times aware and which may be expressed by varying curves outlined on paper.

Many imagine that the normal state of health is best represented by a straight line. This is by no means the case. There is a rhythmic undulation in the flow of our vital force. The dynamo which furnishes the working powers of consciousness and action has its annual, monthly, daily waves, even its momentary ripples. We have our bad times and good times. Some by careful observation of the rise and fall of this curve, have so adjusted their holidays and times of rest and activity as to conserve their energies and avoid the snares of disease. It is from his knowledge of this curve that the family physician can act successfully.
