The Silver Question as It Is.

The present law (act of July 14, 1890) requires the purchase, monthly, at the market price, of four and a half million ounces of silver, of which two million ounces shall be coined monthly, for the period of one year, into silver dollars; after that date only such silver dollars need to be coined as may be required for the redemption of the treasury notes issued in payment for the silver purchased. The silver dollars coined under these various acts since 1878, although not containing a dollar's worth of silver, have been maintained in domestic circulation at par with gold by causes not necessary now to be considered. The silver question, as it now presents itself, means "free coinage of silver" in the United States concurrently with the free coinage of gold, at the ratio in coinage of 1 to 16 (exactly 1 to 15.988); that is, that individuals may take silver of any kind or description to the mints, and have every 371¼ grains stamped, free of charge, into a dollar, which dollar shall be a full legal-tender, for its face value, in the payment of debts and obligations of all kinds in the United States. This is the right as to gold; why not as to silver? There is an important difference. The minting of gold adds nothing to the value of the metal contained in the coin. It is simply a certificate to the public of the weight and purity of the piece. As a matter of fact, fine gold bars sell in New York at a slight premium above full-weight gold coin, being preferred for shipment and industrial uses. How is it with silver? The commercial, or bullion value of the silver contained in the silver dollar is to-day 80 cents. Here, then, is an important difference which did not exist prior to 1873, when we had free coinage of silver. In this difference lies the whole difficulty. Can it be overcome?—E. O. Leech, Director of the Mint, in North American Review for March.

THE CONFLICT OVER!

The Fierce and Tempestuous Sea is now Calm!

EXCITEMENT SUBSIDES!

SCENES AFTER THE STORM!

A Life Boat Sent Out to Rescue the Wrecked and Weary!

The political ocean of Canada for the last few years has been so calm and tranquil, so smooth and clear, that even the frailest and most unseaworthy craft could, at all seasons, ride with safety on its expansive bosom.

For four years its waters have scarcely shown a ripple, and the vessels of contending politicians and their crews have passed to and fro on its vast surface without having experienced any catastrophe worthy of note.

Two months ago, however, ominous mutterings presaged a terrible storm. These storm indications at first were almost unheeded, and the warnings of the wise and knowing ones were received with indifference and incredulity by the great majority of the rank and file of the army of professional politicians and their friends, who were calmly and peacefully floating on the great political sea.

Suddenly, the mutterings were heard again, but louder and deeper than before, the thunders were let loose and reverberated from hill to hill. The waters were lashed to fury and the great storm was at its height.

The bugle call of leaders was sounded for the marshalling of forces; and craft of all sizes, and various builds, were soon seen on the raging and billowy ocean, with their red and blue flags unfurled to the ever-increasing gale,—all putting forth herculean efforts to escape the treacherous rocks and shoals, which at all times makes the course to Ottawa a perilous and dangerous one.

Never can the onlooker forget the terrible scenes that were then presented to view in the mighty conflict. Men wild with excitement, and oblivious to the dangers around them, were frantically calling upon their respective crews for greater efforts. Men ago ized and wrestled with each other for vantage ground; and the weak, as a consequence, fell before the strong. It was a conflict wherein friend smote friend; brother lifted up the battle-ax against brother; and son wielded without mercy the sword against father.

"The weak fought valiantly but lost;
The stronger won at fearful cost."

Our oldest inhabitants in their calm and dignified moments, speak of this conflict as the most terrible ever beheld by them.

To-day the din of battle has ceased; the storm has abated; the thick smoke has passed away; the atmosphere is clearing; and thoughtful, contemplating men are enabled to make a survey of the vast political sea, whereon the great action took place; and are enabled to form a just estimate of the fearful loss on both sides.

We use the word "fearful" not because any direct fatalities have occurred. We thank Heaven that such consequences have been averted! Still there is no intelligent man who dare deny the fact that this hard-fought struggle has brought upon us many serious and direful results. Such a struggle as the one just passed through—a continuous day and night battle which raged incessantly and without interruption for nearly two months—must of necessity have its dreadful and shocking effects on some.

With armies and governments, the time of peace is not always the time of preparation and fortifying with them. Precisely so, with the thousands who fought on both sides in the political contest just ended. Thousands, we say, entered the struggle in a weak and sickly condition; nerves unstrung, brain clouded and weary, irritable, sleepless, morose, dyspeptic and rheumatic. All such must now be languishing on beds of sickness, or confined to their homes.

Even amongst those who were strong and robust before the toesin of battle sounded, there are now thousands who feel used-up, broken-down, tired out, sleepless and weary. With dull heavy eyes, confused brain and palpitating nerves. In the great struggle they have disregarded the unerring law of nature in regard to rest, eating and drinking, and, in addition to the ailments just referred to, very many have become dyspeptics.

Can any sane man truthfully assert that there are no dangers, no ills, or no losses to repair?

These ills and maladies would be slight indeed, and unworthy of this notice, if a few days' rest would suffice for recuperation and bring relief.

This, unfortunately, cannot restore the disabled and wounded sufferers. Unless some great effort is made, and that quickly, as a means of rescue, thousands of the fallen and wounded will go on blindly to the verge of brain softening, paralysis, paresis and insanity; while others will linger on with indescribable feelings of misery; showing haggard, weary and pale faces; and continue so for months perhaps, till nature becomes completely exhausted.

The great call of the hour is now for the "life boat," that vehicle of rescue, whereby the weak, weary and wounded ones may find that perfect safety and true deliverance which means health, strength, robustness, vigor, cheerfulness and the promise of long years of future usefulness for our young Dominion.

To the disabled and wounded of both political parties, it is hardly necessary to say that this great "Life boat," "Ark of Safety" is Paine's Celery Compound; a remedy as popular to-day as ever was a Sir John A., a Blake or a Laurier. While the great reputation of Paine's Celery Compound is world-wide, the names of many of our political chiefs are unknown, except in our own young country. Paine's Celery Compound has at all times brought peace, joy and contentment in its train. The political warrior may slay his thousands, the mission of the great remedy now referred to is to snatch its tens of thousands from the verge of open graves. Victor, vanquished and wounded will have cause to rejoice when they have tested its wondrous powers.

Let Us Have Will Power.

La Rochefocauld says:—"Nothing is impossible; there are ways which lead to everything, and if we had sufficient will we should always have sufficient means." "Will power," when properly directed, can overcome all difficulties, and level what by some are considered to be insurmountable barriers. "Will power" even in the hours of pain and disease, can help the sufferer to calmly and rationally consider his position, and will enable him to act promptly. Instead of giving way to fears and doubts and anxieties, the sufferer and victim of nervous debility, sleeplessness, run-down constitution, headaches, dyspepsia and indigestion will have the will and the courage to at once lay hold of that great modern discovery, Paine's Celery Compound; and by its use will renew himself mentally and physically. He will go on building up a strong and vigorous constitution, a keen and healthy appetite, a clear brain, and a cheerful disposition. Sufferers, remember that though apparent difficulties are in your way, rest assured that if you exert sufficient "will power" to use Paine's Celery Compound and throw all quack nostrums aside you can have all the joys and comforts that health can bestow.

Bridges of Aluminum Bronze.

Aluminum bronze of 10 per cent., it is claimed, has a breaking strength of 310,000 pounds, as against 80,000 pounds for steel; hence, when the time comes, which may not be far distant, for building bridges of aluminum or its alloy, we shall have a structure about one-third the present weight and much stronger.

The McAll Mission in France.

The regular monthly meeting of the Toronto Auxiliary, McAll Association, was held in the library of the Y.M.C.A. Mrs. Blake in the chair. Two letters from the stations supported by this association were read. Mrs. Brodie gave an interesting account of a Sunday spent in Paris. The treasurer, Miss Inglis, reported $40 short of the $1500 required for the stations.

Napoleon's Head.

Napoleon's head was of a peculiar shape, but that did not protect him against headache. Sick headache is a common and very disagreeable affection which may be quickly removed, together with its cause, by the use of Burdock Blood Bitters, the never-failing medicine for all kinds of headaches.
