Terrible Destruction of the Hay Crop.—We regret to learn that recent high tides and most tremendous freshets, have swept away vast quantities of hay in various parts of the country, particularly in the fertile valley of the Shubenacadie. Besides the total loss of hundreds of tons which have been thus carried away, very extensive marshes and meadows, covered with standing grass, are even now inundated to the depth of several feet.—The loss will be more severely felt, as many persons were depending upon the sale of their hay for the purchase of bread—the main part of the wheat having been destroyed by the weevil.—Halifax Post.

St. John's, N. F., Aug. 25.—Our harbour for some days has exhibited a greater variety of National flags than is usually seen in a colonial port. H. M. Steamer Vesuvius, and the French Steamer Flambeau, were anchored within a short distance of each other, bearing the flags of their respective countries. Besides a considerable number of British vessels and coasters displaying the British flag, several Spanish vessels have arrived bearing their country's flag, and there being also some American vessels in port, the "stars and stripes" of the Union have added greater variety to the gay display of ensigns.

P. E. Island.—H. M. S. Electra, Com. Bouverie, sailed from this Port for Quebec, on Wednesday morning last. The Lieut. Governor proceeds in her to Quebec. We understand that His Excellency will visit Montreal previous to his return, in order to wait on the Governor General, the Earl of Elgin.—Islander, August 27.

Toronto, August 13.—The Emigration—its Effects and Consequences.—The city has for some time been almost deserted by the country people. Making all due allowance for the engagements of harvest, we have never known the city similarly deserted, with the exception perhaps of the years 1832 and 1834, when cholera prevailed. This arises no doubt from a groundless apprehension of the emigrant disease. The markets are very badly supplied, and business of all kinds is unusually flat.—What is to be the end of the barbarous policy now pursued, of pouring in to the extent of from 80,000 or 100,000 of the famished and diseased population of down-trodden Ireland into this Province, in one season, we cannot tell. Sickness now prevails extensively both in town and country, and we have reason to fear that it will not be mitigated by the setting in of the fall and winter.—[Examiner.

Fire, and Narrow Escape from Death.—About two o'clock this morning a fire broke out in building No. 31 Catharine street, occupied in the lower part by Mr. John Kirkman, as a soap and candle factory and store, and the upper part by him as a dwelling. Owing to the inflammable nature of the materials the flames rapidly spread, demolishing the whole interior portion of the building, with its contents. So sudden and rapid was the spread of the flames that Mr. K. and his family came very near being destroyed by them. One of his daughters, Miss Margaret Kirkman, a young lady about 19 years of age, only escaped, after being severely burnt, by jumping from the fourth story front window of the room in which she slept. It was for some moments a scene of the most thrilling and agonizing interest to those who had assembled in front of the burning building. At the window of her room in the fourth story Miss K. appeared, shrieking in alarm, the fire evidently behind her and the smoke pouring out over her head,—no ladders had yet arrived, and her destruction seemed inevitable—she tried, at first, to escape the flames, by which she had been already severely burnt, and got out on the sill of the window, but it was evident she must soon perish there, and the cry was raised for her to jump—other voices, among which, by this time, was that of her father, exclaiming "not yet, wait a moment till we get ready for you." A leather bed was instantly procured, held about three feet from the ground by six gallant hearts, who were in great jeopardy that she might fall upon and injure one or more of them, but they heeded not and cared not for that.—By this time Miss Kirkman, to escape from the smoke and flames, was compelled to let herself down, and was seen hanging by her extended arms from the window. "Jump, now," was the cry. Vast numbers of persons had now assembled, who were witnesses of the agonizing scene. The young lady soon let go her hold from that dizzy height of upwards of fifty feet, and in an instant was whirled towards the sidewalk. The heart of every person in that vast assemblage started in thrilling emotion and suspense, doubtful as to her fate. In a few moments the cry was raised, "she is safe," and three hearty cheers went up, which made the very welkin ring. The life of that young maiden appeared to be of more interest to the immense assemblage than ten thousand buildings. She was conveyed to the house of Mr. Bailey, corner of Henry street, nearly opposite, and a physician sent for. Although severely injured by the fire, her whole thoughts seemed fixed upon her father and mother, whom she said must be in jeopardy. The other children were from home on a visit, otherwise there would probably have been a loss of life. Miss K. states that on hearing the alarm she thought of the children, forgetting that they were away, sprang out of bed and went to their room, but was met by the flames in the hall—she rushed to avoid the heat back into her own room again and shut the door, but the flames soon penetrated. At the time of getting out the window she was so bewildered as scarcely to know what she did. She heard a confused sound of voices, and whether she remained or let herself fall, she thought she must perish. She is severely burned in the back and arms, though not dangerously.

The safety of his child more than compensated Mr. Kirkman for his loss. He laughed and wept alternately, and said he cared nothing about the destruction of his property—thanking God that the whole of his family had been spared to him.

A young man, named John Simmons, a clerk to Mr. K. who also slept in a room in the fourth story, had likewise a narrow escape from death. On opening his bed-room door, he found the hall and stairs on fire, and had to rush through the flames to the scuttle—through which he succeeded in getting to the top of the house, and thence to the adjoining building. His hands and legs were very severely burnt.

Mr. and Mrs. K. slept in the third story. They had barely time to escape. He called to those in the fourth story to make for the scuttle.—Mr. K. is a member of the Baptist church. There had been a prayer meeting at his house in the evening, and some three or four gentlemen remained talking with him in the store until about half-past 10 o'clock, soon after which himself and family retired to rest, at which time all appeared to be safe. There was a furnace in the building, by which the fire was probably caused.—[New-York Express, August 27.

Death of the Hon. Silas Wright.—Ex-Governor Wright expired suddenly, in a fit, at his residence in Canton, St. Lawrence County, in this State, on the 27th instant. He was one of the most eminent and talented men of the State of New-York, or the United States, and the eyes of many in the country were fixed upon him for the highest office in the Union. Death, however, has suddenly removed him from the stage of action, and thus added another proof to show the vanity of the, and of life's ambitious pursuits.—New York Paper.

Marriage of the Metals.—Scene.—Room in the Royal Institution.—Professor Smith (reading the Morning Post)—Very extraordinary! (to Professor Jones). Have you read this? No! Well, then, the Post says that the Duke of Wellington—the Iron Duke!—is going to marry Miss Burdett Coutts!

Professor Jones.—Nonsense! It can't be true.

Prof. Smith.—But if it should be true, what would you think of such a match?

Prof. Jones.—Think of it! Why, with the Duke and the heiress, I should think it a most extraordinary union of Iron and Tin.

DELL'S Hydro-Pneumatic Apparatus,

TO ANSWER EVERY PURPOSE OF

Warming & Heating,

Manufactured of various sizes and constructions as Hot Water Stoves, Carriage Warmers, Bed Warmers, Spare Bed Airers, &c. &c. &c.

A GREATER comfort or a more decided luxury can scarcely be conceived than results from the use of these Bed Warmers. Unlike all other attempts to heat beds by hot water, which confine the heat to the feet only, and warm the bed very inefficiently, however applied, in consequence of their warming merely the clothes, the feet, or whatever immediately touches their surface, DELL'S PATENT BED WARMERS depend for their decided advantage over all other plans ever before introduced, on the fact that they warm the air as well as the clothes; a difference so decided and remarkable, that invalids and others have invariably expressed their astonishment to find themselves in a complete warm air bath from the feet to the very shoulders the temperature appearing to remain undiminished, and the water still found warm enough in the morning to serve for washing, which to travellers and early risers is another advantage in favour of this apparatus; and will render their use indispensable in Club-houses, Hotels, Boarding-houses, &c. Professional gentlemen and all persons of sedentary habits will find this apparatus exceedingly desirable; placed in their apartment it acts like the hot water stoves, (heretofore noticed) keeping up, in small rooms, an agreeable and healthy warmth, as no vapour, smell, or other annoyance can possibly be experienced by using this contrivance for producing an agreeable summer heat.

Persons returned from hot climates, experiencing all the evils of cold, will find the equable temperature afforded by this invention particularly grateful; and all aged or other persons who are martyrs to cold will find their application so simple and effectual that they may place one or more on a couch, or in any easy chair, and thus receive the full benefit of the genial warmth communicated. And in cases of severe cold one of these Bed Warmers, covered with a flannel, and applied to the soles of the feet for two or three successive nights, will be found to give infallible relief. It is a well known fact, that numerous persons who have purchased, have never since passed a single cold night without one in bed.

One great advantage of these Bed Warmers is, they are so light and portable that they can, without the slightest inconvenience, be carried by persons travelling, who have only to order the Boiling Hot Water to be put in, and the apparatus placed in the bed previous to their going thereto, to ensure a warm and that greatest of desiderata—a dry bed.

The invention is already extensively patronised by the medical profession, and is being introduced into Hospitals and other public Institutions for the use of invalids.

In all cold climates abroad, in the Colonies, and in the East Indies, where Cholera, Ague, and like complaints prevail, these Bed Warmers will be found indispensable, and, indeed, must come into very general use in every quarter of the world.
