GIANTS DEFEAT CARDINALS.

New York, July 21.—In a poorly-played and long-drawn-out game today New York defeated St. Louis, 11 to 7. The St. Louis pitchers were ineffective and so was New York's. Bridwell's batting and Byrne's fielding were the features of the contest. An X-ray examination of Pitcher Mathewson's injured finger showed that it was mashed, not broken, as was first supposed. Mathewson will, according to the surgeons, be able to twirl by the end of next week. Score:

HANDED TO THE CUBS.

Brooklyn, July 21. — Chicago was handed the rubber game of the series, 3 to 2, this afternoon, by a cluster of three errors, two of them by Alperman, in the fifth inning. The home team fought hard after that, hammering Overall out of the box, but failed to land, although they made ten hits, including four doubles. Lennox batted for McIntyre in the ninth and cracked out a double with one out, but great plays by Hoffman and Evers prevented the tying run. The first four innings were marked by as many double plays, three by Brooklyn. Sheckard made half of the Chicago hits off McIntyre. The score:

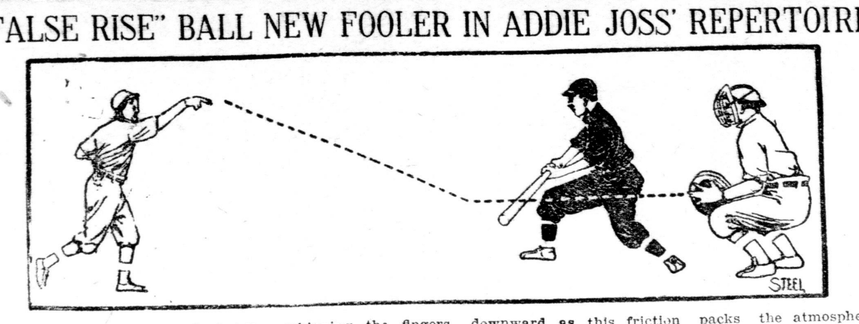
"FALSE RISE" BALL NEW FOOLER IN ADDIE JOSS' REPERTOIRE



Addie Joss, the Cleveland twirling star, has batters guessing with his "false rise" ball. The "false rise" is not new. It was a favorite with Radbourne, and at various times since that star's day pitchers having great speed have had the "false rise" in their repertoire.

The "false rise" is delivered as a straight ball, thrown overhand and released when the hand is at the crown of the arc described in delivery. The ball is thrown with a sharp backward spin, caused by whipping the fingers downward as the ball leaves the hand.

For 55 feet the ball shoots down an inclined plane, headed for the batter's knees. But the descent ceases about eight feet in front of the plate, and the ball travels to the catcher horizontally. In other words, the ball "breaks" from the downward to the horizontal.

The scientific explanation of this delivery is that the vertical spin given the ball at delivery produces air friction, and as the ball travels this friction packs the atmosphere beneath the revolving ball, until, following the line of least resistance, the ball loses its initial impulse, and travels, not through the cushion it has formed, but over it.

When mixed with his curve, fast ball, fade-away, and slow one, the "false rise" gives Joss a box of tricks unequalled by any other man in the business. And when his calculating brain is added, the human weather-strip becomes perhaps the most dangerous pitcher in baseball.

KING EDWARD'S STARTLER

Rides Roughshod Over Accepted Standards of Headgear.

London, July 20.—Once more King Edward has set a new style and given a momentary shock to fashionable men who pride themselves upon wearing only what is absolutely correct at certain times on certain occasions. A soft light-colored Homburg hat with a frock coat, these arbiters of style do not consider correct, and when the King at a house party not long ago appeared arrayed after this manner one Sunday, the men present gasped with astonishment, but the King can do no wrong, so of course they did likewise. The King's frock coat was worn with grey trousers, white waistcoat and black tie, but instead of the requisite top hat so sleek and shiny, there was an unpretentious but thoroughly comfortable light grey soft felt Homburg hat. The frock coat had always been crowned by the top hat before, and there are some bold spirits who are still questioning the possibility of changing so absolutely canonical a style. However, in the end the King's custom will be followed. It always is, and the Homburg hat he so favors may usurp the prerogatives of many kinds of headgear. Certainly it is comfortable, and that is a great deal.

HARVESTER SCORES AN EASY VICTORY

With "Pop" Geers Up Leads All Around Course — Gano's Fine Trotting.

Windsor, July 22.—The Harvester had the 2:08 trot all to himself at Windsor yesterday. The 4-year-old was never bothered, and won the two heats that made up the race by merely leading the other three entries all the way 'round.

He was relentless as a pacemaker, and in the first heat pulled the entire field into a break before they reached the first turn. When Geers saw that he was clear of all possible trouble he let the colt jog along. It was only in the last sixteenth of the second heat that the phenomenal young trotter was pushed at all. "Pop" had given him his time all the way around, but in the stretch Lady Jones snowed a burst of speed, and The Harvester ended the heat under the whip.

There was more than a little speculation as to what the youngster would do in with the old heads for the first time. His followers well knew the long string of 3-year-old futurities he pulled down last year. They knew of his consistent, honest performances—with the colts. But they did not know how he would act with the old heads. This doubt, however, was not strong enough to keep the Milwaukee horse from being a hot favorite.

Harvester Goes Ahead.

The youngster was in fast company all right. Lady Jones, of the Thomas W. Murphy string, with a mark of 2:07¼, and Carlokin and Genteel H., both 2:08¼ horses, were the other starters in the second day's feature event. But that didn't seem to make a bit of difference. Geers sent the colt out into the lead. The splendid brown scorched away down the stretch, hugging the rail and biting into the mile with his wonderful stride. Genteel H. broke before the leader had covered half the distance between the wire and the first turn. Then Lady Jones went up in the air. Carlokin did likewise at the first sixteenth. And The Harvester boiled on ahead. The half was reached before the field had begun to pull up on Geers and the horse, but their grill gained them nothing, for the brown trotted under the wire in 2:10½, going easily all down the stretch. Lady Jones broke again in the stretch, but regained her stride in time to save second place from Carlokin.

The second heat was another pie for the Milwaukee horse. Lady Jones hung on all the way around, heading into the stretch a length behind. Geers evidently thought there was no danger, and did not drive until well toward the wire. He won going away.

George Gano Takes Three Heats.

The pacing event—2:12 class—gave Murphy's horse, George Gano, a chance to display some real stretch racing. The bay, with Murphy up, let the others pace their heads off all down the back stretch and around the far turn. Then he came around the bunch and raced home. Three successive times the horse turned the trick, and although every finish was close, he was going with lots of steam at the end of every round.

Boton De Oro was distanced in the

COVERPOINT JOLTS

The reports state that Hans Wagner has not made a hit in four days. This may be true, but one fine afternoon he will begin breaking the rear fences, and then the natives will wonder who started the story that the awkard Dutchman could not hit. Ain'd id so?

S. Ketchell shows every sign of a champion pugilist. He is there with the press agency lay. Envious of J. Johnson, the Senegambian who ran into a tree with an auto, S. K. comes through with a story that he is the real sky-larking rascal, because he ran his noise-maker into a common wagon. You simply can't keep a good man down to the ordinary card.

Mr. Berger, one of the assistants in Jim Jeffries' stable once gave the advice to Mr. Jeffries. "Keep your mouth shut, and grab the mazuma. For some time the Boy Boiler-Maker followed this advice, and he did well collecting much coin. Now he has allowed his tongue to wander, and there is some trouble in the camp. Jeff cannot get into shape, and he cannot fight in his present form. The answer ought to be easy.

Canadians are playing cricket in the United States, but if darkness ends the combat it does not much matter how far the Canucks are behind, they get a draw. Fine game. There should at least be a decision on points.

Geo. Gano, the fast wiggler in the C. of C. stake showed that he had some class yesterday by winning the Windsor race in jig time. He is a dangerous fellow for the coin.

Jack Chesbro is to retire. He is due for the minors now, as he has done practically nothing in three years. There was a time when Jack merely had to toss his mitt on the mound to win a game, but that day has gone. It comes to them all sooner or later, mostly sooner.

Detroit, July 22.—Because "Eddie" Summers was invincible and Mr. Hughes, of the visiting team, quite the other way, the Champions were enabled to take the rubber game of the series concluded yesterday with the Yankees of George Stallings.

The score in the last contest of five played with the Yanks was 2 and 0. The result therefore entitles Summers, the hero of the 18-round battle at Bennett Park last Friday to even greater glory, for in the last 27 innings pitched by the Detroit twirler, his opponents have been unable to secure a single run on him.
