QUEBEC BRIDGE TO BE COMPLETED BY NEXT MONTH

Famous Structure at Last Is Fast Approaching Finished State.

CENTRE SPAN 640 FEET LONG.

Will Be Floated to ts Appointed Place, Then Raised by Cranes.

The new Transcontinental Railway from Prince Rupert, B.C. to Moncton, N. B., comes to the bank of the St. Lawrence River at a point about seven miles above the City of Quebec. Here the track has to be carried over the great river on a bridge the largest of its kind in the world, which will probably be completed next month.

How gigantic it is can not be realized by seeing it, so confusing is the intricacy and yet the simplicity of the plan.

Told in Figures

It will be remembered that the first bridge, when about half erected, collapsed because of defects in the plan. Owing to the increase in width and weight of the new superstructure, the piers of the first bridge had to be removed and new ones constructed.

The main pier on the north bank was carried down 50 feet below the bed of the river and that on the south bank 85 feet.

This work, carried on below the river's bed, was made possible by the sinking of immense boxes, kept dry by air pressure, and technically known as caissons.

In building the two caissons, inside of which the two main piers were constructed, eighteen million feet of timber (board measure) were used.

Besides the construction of the two main piers, the masonry work included alterations to the abutments, built for the first bridge, the entirely new construction of one intermediate pier and two anchor piers. This masonry amounts approximately to 105,000 cubic yards.

The completed bridge will contain approximately 65,000 tons of steel.

Allowing 30 tons to a car it would require 2,167 railroad cars to move this material. The main pieces, or members of the bridge are so large and of such great weight that ordinary shops of equipment could not manufacture them.

Shops and columns and girders of unusual strength were required to carry the heavy cranes which handle the enormous members. Almost every piece of machinery used had to be of the largest capacity, and, in the majority of cases was specially designed for this job.

Great shops costing over a million dollars were especially constructed for the manufacture of the bridge.

Some Huge Parts

The main posts of the bridge are 10 feet by 10 feet outside area, and no less than 320 feet high!

The shoes on the main piers, on which these posts rest, are 21 feet by 26 feet and 15 feet high. Many a family lives in a house considerably smaller.

The main bottom chord or bottom beam, near the pier is about 10 feet wide and 8 feet high. If it were not for the interior webs and diaphragms six men could walk abreast inside this chord without crowding or fear of hitting their heads. This chord will weigh about 8,500 lbs. per lineal foot and is erected in sections weighing from 75 to 100 tons each.

The floor system is designed to carry two railway tracks and two sidewalks for pedestrians. No allowance is made for highway traffic.

The General Plan

The general plan of the bridge is this—from each bank of the St. Lawrence two huge cantilever arms reach out over the river, each 1,095 feet in length, and each supported on two piers—one at the shore end and one under the centre of the arm.

Between the outer ends of these two arms, and directly above the centre of the river, is a gap 640 feet in length. This gap has yet to be filled in, and when that has been done the bridge will extend from bank to bank, a distance of 3,239 feet.

This centre span, 640 feet in length and weighing over 5,000 tons, has been erected on steel "falsework" or staging in comparatively shallow water near the shore at Sillery Cove, two or three miles down stream. The staging is so arranged as to allow huge pontoons to float between its piers and under the "falsework."

When the span is completely erected and ready to be placed in its position in the centre of the bridge between the two cantilever arms, the pontoons will be placed under the "falsework" when the tide is low. As the tide rises the pontoons will lift the span off the concrete piers.

After the span has been towed to its proper position under the bridge it has yet to be lifted over 130 feet in the air and connected to the ends of the cantilever arms. This is done by means of hangers with slotted holes which can be quickly attached to the four corners by means of pins. After this has been done at highest tide the pontoons are floated from under, and the span is lifted in place by jacks at each corner of the cantilever arms.

When placed in position the lowermost parts of this centre span will be 150 feet above the surface of the river at high tide, giving a clear way for the passage of the largest ocean steamers.

Tide and Current

While the floating in of a bridge-span is not an uncommon occurrence in bridge erecting, yet, taking into consideration the length, weight and height of this span, and also the fact that there is a seven or eight mile current and a 20 foot tide at this point, it can be seen that this part of the work is also without precedent.

The supervision of the entire work is under the direction of the Board of Engineers appointed by the Government. Mr. C. N. Monsarrat is chairman and chief engineer, with whom are associated Mr. R. Modjeski, of Chicago, and Mr. H. P. Borden, of Montreal.

NETS ENCOUNTERED AND CONFISCATED

Government Cutter at Dover Often Finds Traces of American Fishing.

(From our own correspondent)

Simcoe, Aug. 21.—At a congregational meeting, held in St. Paul's this evening, W. P. Innes and J. B. Jackson were appointed commissioners to attend Presbytery at St. Catharines, and were instructed to inform Presbytery that while the people of St. Paul's regret that Dr. Day has been compelled, through ill health to ask for permission to withdraw from the work of the ministry, they will offer no objection to the granting of the request.

The Board of Managers was asked to arrange for a retiring honorarium in preference to an annuity.

Harry Gordon is lying in gaol on a remand from Squire Earl, with the theft of a pair of boots, five dollars in cash and a tie pin, $12.50 in all, from one Thos. Sparks, of Simcoe.

The men of the 133rd expect their last pass home within a fortnight, and a call overseas early in September.

The Vigilant is in port at Dover and several of the crew were up town to-day. The boys say that they continually run across an occasional lot of American nets. All of these with the catch, are brought in and sold, and the proceeds turned over to the Government.

At Port Ryerse

Rev. William Carpenter, of Delhi, has purchased a cottage lot at Port Ryerse and will erect a summmer house at once. Every cottage at this place is occupied. It is closest to town and many business men have been running down for the night during the past month.

Rev. H. C. Newcombe's family returned from Ryerse to-day.

Miss Mildred Johnson is giving a house party this week at the Edmondson cottage. Among the party are Misses Margaret Innes, Clara Fitton, Florence and Marjorie Gray, Edna Hodson, Gertrude Brooks, and Miss Houston. Several of the young ladies now at Ryerse are excellent swimmers.

Throughout the town and country, there linger Boughners, and others who have come a long distance to meet formerly familiar faces.

The Bell Telephone Company have begun the underground work in order to place the remainder of the wires in the central and business part of the town, out of sight.

Two Winnipeg women left the city the other day to help in the hayesting on a Morden farm.

Official reports say that no traces of black rust are to be seen in Saskatchewan or Alberta.

The summer school at the University of Saskatchewan closed July 28.
