The "Triumph" Returns With the Largest Sealing Catch On Record.

The "Pioneer" Brings a Big Lot of Pelts From Copper Island.

The records of all the sealing catches in the history of the industry have been broken this year by E. B. Marvin & Co's schooner Triumph, Capt. Clarence Cox, which returned home yesterday morning from her Behring Sea cruise, where, in a little over a month's hunting, she secured the almost incredible number of 3,240 skins, giving her the grand total of 4,560 pelts for the season. This is far ahead of all previous catches, the nearest approach to it being that obtained by Capt. Dan McLean some years ago when sealing restrictions were not known, the catch then taken being 4,262. Had it not been for the fact that the Triumph ran short of salt, Capt. Cox said that he could have secured 5 000 skins quite readily. What he has, however, are the choicest of skins. The Triumph carried seventeen canoes, which though more than are generally taken, proved to be exceedingly advantageous. The Indians manning them were all picked men and not only did they distinguish themselves during their last expedition but when the Triumph was hunting on the coast, early in the season, they took a greater catch than any other crew. The schooner continued sealing until the 9th of September and the following day started for Victoria; but with adverse weather had a very tedious passage. On the way down she touched at Ahouset and Clayoquot and when off the latter place spoke the Seattle schooner Ainsworth returning home from the Copper Island coast with a catch of 1,100 odd skins. The Ainsworth had run short of provisions, and on heaving to was given a sufficient supply by the Triumph to last her till her voyage was ended. Capt. Cox says there were four or five schooners following him in but he could not say which they were. A vessel ahead of the Triumph was carried by the tide towards San Juan island. Among the sealers reported by the Triumph are: The Ainoka on September 9 with 1,300 skins for season; the Sapphire on September 1 with 1,500; the Henrietta on 7th or 8th with about 700, and the Kate. The Mary Ellen and others were heard from indirectly by the Triumph, but early in the season. Apart from the accident to one of the crew named Gallagher, which has already been chronicled, the principal item of news reported by the Triumph is that of the grounding of the U.S. man-of-war Adams on one of the Pribyloff Islands already heard of and soon to be the subject of inquiry at Mare Island.

The expectations that Captain Baker would come home from the Copper Island coast with the largest catch ever secured there proved right last evening when his schooner, the Pioneer, arrived with 1700 odd skins. Of these all but 423 skins were taken on the Russian coast, where Captain Baker has in former years been very successful. Having cruised along this coast early in the season, Capt. Baker on getting as far north as Sand Point struck straight across for the Copper islands some time in May. After reaching there disagreeable weather prevailed for weeks, but a change finally came and allowed the schooner finally to lower her boats, seven in number. On September 13 the schooner started for home and came in sight of the straits seventeen days later. On the 25th of the same month a terrific gale was encountered. In it the vessel's stern boat and davits were carried away as was also some of the railing aft to which was attached the log.

A CHANGE FOR THE VANCOUVER.

Within the last few days the tug Vancouver has changed ownership. She was formerly the property of J. D. Pemberton, but is now owned by Chas. Spratt. Capt. Cavin, who until recently had charge of the tug Velox, has been appointed master, and yesterday the Vancouver cleared for Nanaimo for a scow load of coal, it being now about two years since she has been in regular service.

THE CITY.

GEORGE CANNING, a popular member of the carriers' staff of the Victoria postoffice, died at his home in this city yesterday after a very brief illness.

THE choir of the First Presbyterian church will render the two anthems "Rock of Ages" and "Protect us Through the Coming Night" next Sunday evening at the special services for sealers and sailors.

ON their return from Seattle Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Gowdy found that someone had broken into their house on the Esquimalt road and stolen $40 from a bureau drawer. The police have been informed.

THE U.S. revenue cutter Grant is likely to be transferred to San Diego while the Wolcott goes to Alaska, with headquarters at Sitka. The Perry has sailed from New York for service in Puget Sound.

VERY MANY attended the special Salvation Army Jubilee held at the barracks on Broad street yesterday evening, when special music was made the feature, and greatly enjoyed by all who were present. Salvationist are now in high glee over the promised visit of General Booth to Victoria, the dates set for which are January 2 and 3.

A CLOSELY contested Association football game was played yesterday at the Canteen grounds between the teams of the Royal Arthur and Victoria college, the match resulting in a victory for the Navy by two goals to one. Owing to the weather several of the college team failed to put in an appearance, thus making the game short-handed throughout.

AT a meeting of the local union of the Young People's Societies held in the Y. M. C. A. rooms last evening, arrangements were made for a series of socials to be held in the interests of the latter institution. The first of these entertainments is to be given under the auspices of the Epworth League of the Metropolitan church on Wednesday evening next.

AS AN example of how news is distorted as it travels, the following from the Cincinnati Inquirer is very interesting: "One of the most disgusting cargoes ever taken on board a ship can sometimes be seen on the line of boats plying between San Francisco and Darcey island," said A. B. Maitland yesterday. "I took passage on one of these steamers once, and two peculiar looking crates being taken on board attracted my attention. Upon inquiry I learned that they were leper Chinamen, crated up and shipped as freight to Darcey island, where a leper station has been established by the colony of Victoria. These crates are handled by the roustabouts like any other freight, and to see live human beings pitched on board head-first, then rolled over and over, does not look very humane. There are not enough of them, fortunately, to warrant the running of a special boat, it is said, and they cannot be accepted as passengers, hence the shipment in crates."

THE crew of H.M.S. Pheasant will be paid off about the beginning of next month and will return home by way of the C.P.R., her new complement of men coming by the same route. The Pheasant is now out for firing practice and to-morrow it will be the Champion's turn.

THE shipmates of young Reece, accidentally shot on board the ship Royal Arthur last Saturday week, are each contributing fifty cents towards a fund for his widowed mother in England. The officers are also helping out with subscriptions. The mother is a cripple and has a ten year old son to provide for.

THE United States lighthouse inspection office has issued the following notice to mariners: "Fox rock (Orford reef) whistling buoy, Oregon. Notice is hereby given that the whistling buoy painted red, and lettered Fox rock in white, is reported to have gone adrift from Fox rock (Orford reef), near Cape Blanco, Oregon. The buoy will be replaced as early as practicable."

"THE Century Club's social event of the season took place at the club house, Sutter street, Wednesday afternoon, and was in the nature of a reception. Miss Jennie Norelli, Miss Rina Hoving, Miss Emy Tourbie and Miss Minna Norelli, the ladies of the Swedish Quartette, were the honored guests of the occasion, they sang the "Pheasant's Wedding March" from Soderman, the "Morning Song" by Abt, the "Last Night" by Kjerulf, and the "Folk Song." Miss Norelli rendered with great expression a soprano air from the opera of "William Tell." The singers received an ovation, were encored many times and overwhelmed with flowers"—S. F. Daily Examiner, May 25, 1894. The Swedish Ladies' Quartette will give two of their delightful concerts at the Victoria theatre to-morrow and Saturday evenings, and also a grand matinee Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The price of admission for evenings has been placed at 50c., gallery 25c. No extra charge for reserved seats. Saturday matinee 25c., gallery 10c.

INSPECTOR CONSTANTINE, of the Northwest mounted police, who was sent up to the Yukon country last June by the Dominion government with a view to stopping smuggling operations now said to be carried on there, has returned. He made his way inland from Juneau, Alaska, and traversed a considerable portion of the very rough country into the gold diggings, making as much of his trip as possible by the river route. Of the three hundred and thirty odd miners who went in by the beginning of July all but sixty are spending the winter at the mines. Miller and Davis creeks, on the boundary line, are considered the most profitable mining ground at present. In the Yukon between ten and twelve thousand dollars have been taken out by four men this season out of the whole output of $300,000. Returning to St. Michael's, Inspector Constantine was taken by the U.S. cutter Rush to Ounalaska, and from there came home on H.M.S. Pheasant. The whaler Mars, of San Francisco, was spoken in Behring sea. The Inspector left a sergeant of the mounted police in the Yukon country, and it is possible that a regular post may be established there.

THE CITY MARKETS.

This being fair week gives business an abnormal impetus, but merchants report trade as gradually on the increase. All, they say, that is required to make the improvement more apparent is finer weather. Recent changes in the conditions prevent farmers from finishing their harvest, and in consequence some anxiety is being felt about the standing grain. Very little is as heard yet as to the potato crop from the outlying districts; but it is generally believed to be fair, while roots in places are said to be excellent. The demand for fresh meat is improving owing, no doubt, to the natural demands of the people, to the number of warships in Esquimalt harbor, and similar causes. Game is becoming more plentiful in the market, but the variety of fish is, comparatively, not so good. Fruits are advancing in price, and in some lines are becoming scarce.

THE MANNISH GIRL.

COUNTESS NORRAIKOW HOPES SHE HAS NOT COME TO STAY.

The Girl of the Shirt Front, Vest, Cutaway and Four-in-hand Is a Womanly Paradox—She Is Seldom Lovable From the Manly Standpoint.

[Copyright, 1894, by American Press Association.]

The present age, replete with the advancement of civilization, carries in its wake many peculiar products of "progressive" ideas. We now have the "brainy" woman more numerous than ever before, whom circumstances beyond her control have forced into the ranks of the world's workers. When conditions arose which compelled her either to work or starve, she put her shoulder to the wheel and quickly proved that she possessed both sense and pluck. The literary hosts now include a noble army of women, and too much cannot be said in their praise. As a body they are truthful, sincere, earnest and successful in their undertakings.

We have also the athletic girl, who runs entirely to the physical. Possibly she feels that therein lies her greatest strength, and as the Scriptures caution us not to hide our "light under a bushel" she is bent on cultivating her gifts to the highest point of development. She enters with the greatest zest into all manly sports, competes with her brothers in the swimming pool, beats them at tennis and ninepins, makes a fair showing in a rowing contest, and latterly she has taken to navigating her own or her father's yacht.

These accomplishments are all very well in moderation, but there is a lurking danger that in the end the feminine athlete will develop into a one sided young person and will scarcely become the sort of wife that the average man of these fin de siecle days demands as the sharer of his joys and sorrows. Managing a yacht skillfully requires one kind of tactics, while the management of a husband and home must be conducted on entirely different lines.

THE MANNISH GIRL.

Some such girls, however, once entered into the marital bond, gracefully yield to the altered circumstances and become happy wives and mothers. With others it is different. The yoke of matrimony often becomes a galling one to both parties, and the mismated twain finally settle their differences in the divorce court.

Perhaps the most interesting and least understandable of the young women of the period is this mannish girl. She is seldom on marriage intent. The chief desire of her life is to show much vaunted man what an utter contempt she has for the sex and how willing she is to dispense with the little attentions which have hitherto been considered her especial perquisites. The problem, however, which suggests itself to the reasoning mind is this: Why should a girl of this class, who evinces such apparent indifference to the opposite sex, seek to envelop her form with attire as nearly resembling that of a man as she can safely or consistently approach? This is essentially a womanly paradox, and it helps to explain why lordly man looks upon us as such illogical creatures.

The mannish girl affects to scorn the manliness of man, while she dons his shirt front, vest, cutaway and four-in-hand, and would, if she could, become his representative in the battle of life and of government. She is seldom a lovable girl from the masculine standpoint. She is apt to be too well versed in the topics of the day and to possess very decided opinions of her own, albeit they be narrow.

A girl's or a woman's life is made up principally of detail, for the reason that she has not heretofore been brought face to face with the great problems of life. It requires adversity to bring forth woman's latent and best powers. Can it be that the mannish woman, after all, possesses incipient talent of a high order, and that it is this hitherto unknown quantity which is bubbling to the surface and literally pushing her into the arena as a competitor of man, even to his dress? Mystics, students of nature and others of that ilk put forth many weird theories to account for this apparent reversal of the sexes, but they generally prove inadequate.

The Dolly Vardens, the Daisy Millers and many others advocating peculiar ideas have from time to time appeared amid the shifting scenes of urban life. Some of them were ridiculous, others were almost lovable for the sweet simplicity of their makeup and manner, while the most eccentric were soon hustled off the scene of action. The mannish girl, however, differs from all these in that her peculiarity is not merely assumption on her part. She appears unfortunately to have been born that way. Is it possible that a dual nature lurks within her breast, and that the contending principles are ever struggling for supremacy?

We are passing through a strange period of the world's history, and this may account for many of the vagaries which mind and matter are guilty of.

The mannish girl is more dreaded than beloved. The softer elements of woman's composition seem to have been eliminated from her nature. Hotel keepers at the watering places will tell you that they dread her solitary appearance more than a whole bevy of the noisiest, laughter loving girls that ever invaded their establishments. She ignores the etiquette of dress, we are told, declines to tip the waiter, frowns on the lighter amusements of her less intellectually exalted sisters and generally acts the part of a wet blanket on every form of entertainment devised. So earnestly is she bent on the reformation or transformation of her sex that she cannot stop to consider the petty details of daily life, but compiles for herself a little code of morals or of ethics whereby to judge the human race, religiously applying her own standard to all whom circumstances bring within her sphere.

Finally the mannish girl is almost as difficult to analyze as the great first cause which propelled this earth into space to become a common stamping ground for philosophers, geologists, scientists and publicists to exploit their different theories. That, like the planet, she has come to stay I refuse to believe. We do not find her declaiming among the woman suffragists, for, be it confessed to their honor, it would be difficult to find a more womanly, ladylike lot than those same equal righters. We can therefore only class the mannish girl among the many anomalies of these fin de siecle years and trust that with the century's death she will also have passed away.

COUNTESS NORRAIKOW.

A Man's "Don't" to Women.

Don't keep all your sweet smiles for us. We honor you when we see you can bestow them on your own sex.

Don't look at another woman's gown as you cross the street in front of a cable car. Some man is sure to risk his life to save yours.

Don't forget when you go to the theater in "a love of a bonnet" the man behind probably paid as much as you did for a seat.

Don't try to have a long waist if you were born with a short one. Men do not admire a laced figure.

Don't have your skirt come unfastened so your underskirt shows. We do not object to the extravagance of hooks and eyes.

Don't keep a man waiting half an hour when he calls. He will think you tidy only when on exhibition.

Don't stand in front of a tired man in the street car when there are empty seats at the other end.

Don't allow a casual acquaintance to pay your fare.

Don't block a ticket office window by dropping your change when at the head of a long line of impatient travelers.

Don't forget to keep an appointment to the minute with a business man.

Don't buy a man's neckties. It may tempt him to hang himself with your purchase.

Don't ask a man to mail your letters when it is a part of his nature to forget to do so.

Don't be playful at meals. Your favorite dog will snap at you while he is gnawing a bone.

Don't affect masculine attire, cigarettes or slang. Men adore femininity.

Don't forget a man wants to be considered a man and is not "a sexless replica."

Don't talk woman's rights to the average man.

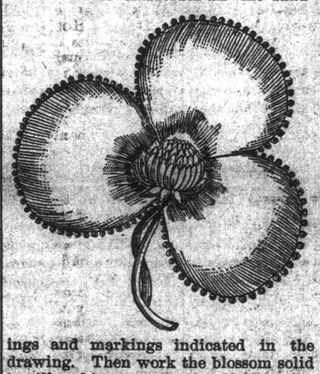
ASHTON JACKSON.

A Clover Pincushion.

Small pincushions and dainty pincushions are all the rage. The big, well stuffed cushion of one winter's time is hopelessly out of date. Today they must be small, attractive, æsthetic and useful, if you can make them so.

The clover leaf design is both new and really very pretty, besides which it promises to become popular in the extreme.

To make it first cut a pattern, then two foundations of fine cardboard. Select pale green silk and cut it somewhat larger than the boards. Then lay them on and mark exactly where they fall. With green filo floss of darker shades than the silk embroider all the shadings and markings indicated in the drawing. Then work the blossom solid in silks of its own peculiar pink shades.



When both pieces of silk are worked, press them with care and cover with boards. Then overhand the edges neatly together and attach a bit of green rubber stem. Stick pins of varying sizes round all the leaves, and you will find that the cushion, besides being an attractive object, is a serviceable one as well.

Just now, when suburban fairs and summer bazaars of all sorts are being held upon all sides, it can be turned to excellent practical account. The making entails very little of either labor or expense, yet it sells surprisingly well. At an affair of the sort recently given the pincushion taste scored a genuine success, and these dainty clover leaves were purchased by the score.

CLARE BUNCE.

There ought to be women doctors employed by the board of health in every city, as many women as men. So they would be if women had a vote.

Important Business Between the Dominion and Great Britain.

A Prison of Isolation to Be Opened in Connection With Kingston Penitentiary.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

OTTAWA, Oct. 3.—It is currently reported that Sir John Thompson will proceed to England in a few days to transact important business with the colonial office. In that event he will be sworn in as a member of the Imperial Privy council by Her Majesty.

E. Marceau of Montreal, has been appointed superintending engineer of the Lachine canal.

Dr. Lavelle, warden of Kingston penitentiary, is here to arrange with Sir John Thompson for opening the prison of isolation, in connection with the penitentiary. It will accommodate 114 incorrigibles. The fact of the prison being built has already acted as a deterrent on prisoners.

McKinley Stumps Kansas and Delivers Thirteen Speeches in Fourteen Hours.

HUTCHISON, Kan., Oct. 3.—The citadel of Populism was visited to-day by McKinley, and the miners, farmers, laborers, business men, members of the various Republican clubs, and school children turned out in tens of thousands to greet the great champion of high tariff. During the fourteen hours ending 10 o'clock to-night he delivered thirteen speeches to audiences that aggregated not less than 100,000 people, and which were gathered from the country tributary to two hundred miles of railway, as the crow flies.

THE CZAR OF RUSSIA.

VIENNA, Oct. 3.—A dispatch from St. Petersburg says the marriage of the Czarewitch to Princess Alix of Hesse has again been postponed. This latest postponement is due to the illness of the Czar. No subsequent date is given but it is expected that the marriage will not occur until next June.

LONDON, Oct. 3.—A dispatch to the Standard from Berlin states that Professor Leyden has expressed himself regarding the Czar's condition as decidedly unfavorable to the imperial patient. The doctor thinks His Majesty may possibly recover if he is kept in good spirits and his strength is maintained. Professor Leyden diagnosed the Czar's ailment as Bright's disease in an advanced stage.

On the other hand the Vienna Tegblatt maintains, on the authority of a Russian diplomat, that the Czar is suffering from neurasthenia, coupled with anæmia in addition to kidney disease. The Czar's condition, it is said, was made worse by a cold, which he caught two nights before leaving St. Petersburg. He went to the telegraph office in the winter palace at 1 o'clock in the morning and dictated a message to Abbas Tuman in the Caucasus concerning the health of his favorite son, George, and waited an hour and a half in the dark, bare office for a reply from the doctor. He was not satisfied with the reply, and returning to his bedroom threw himself into an arm chair and wept. He cried, "Oh, God, what have I done to be so severely punished?" The Czar could not sleep through thinking of his son George. During the first night of his stay in George's residence in Spala, the Czar arose from his bed, went to his son's room and watched his sleeping son for a long time. When returning to his room he went through a cold passage and was attacked with rheumatism, which made his condition still worse. It is said that he greatly prefers George to the Czarewitch.

Advices received by great financial houses in London are understood to confirm the worst news concerning the condition of the Czar of Russia. His Majesty's condition is said to be hopeless and his death can be delayed but a few months. The general opinion in this city coincides with that expressed in Paris and Berlin, to the effect that the accession to the throne of the Czarewitch will result in depriving France of a friend. Persons closely associated with the Czarewitch believe that when he ascends the throne he will materially alter the policy pursued by his father and will cultivate cordial relations with England and Germany and hold aloof from France.

The fluctuation in the price of French rentes during the week is attributed to the impression that the Czar's death would cause a tremendous fall in prices.

Saved Her Life.

Mrs. C. J. WOOLDRIDGE, of Wortham, Texas, saved the life of her child by the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.

"One of my children had Croup. The case was attended by our physician, and was supposed to be well under control. One night I was startled by the child's hard breathing, and on going to it found it strangling. It had nearly ceased to breathe. Realizing that the child's alarming condition had become possible in spite of the medicines given, I reasoned that such remedies would be of no avail. Having part of a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in the house, I gave the child three doses, at short intervals, and anxiously waited results. From the moment the Pectoral was given, the child's breathing grew easier, and, in a short time, she was sleeping quietly and breathing naturally. The child is alive and well to-day, and I do not hesitate to say that Ayer's Cherry Pectoral saved her life."

SEATTLE'S TELEPHONE SERVICE.

SEATTLE, Oct. 3.—The action of the city council in passing an ordinance regulating and cutting down the telephone charges has caused something of a commotion among the officials of the Sunset Telephone Company both here and at San Francisco, the head quarters of the company. It was reported yesterday that the company was about to retaliate by discharging its line men and other employes, and, unless the council backed down, closing the plant altogether, leaving the people without telephonic advantages. Louis Glass, one of the officials in San Francisco, has forwarded his report of the condition of affairs.
