OPERA HOUSE FEATURE.

The feature of the Opera House programme opening next Tuesday, 28th, will be Lore, the girl mental marvel and mind reader, one of the most famous in her line now before the public. She reads the future like an open book,—answers all questions truthfully and rapidly, and has been the sensation of the year wherever she has appeared. She has wonderfully mysterious power, weird and uncanny,—and in her readings is far superior to Anna Eva Fay, Madam Ellis, Princess Wah Letka, all of whom have appeared here in the past. She will be here for three days opening Tuesday next.

QUICK LUNCH RESTAURANT.

Matthew A. Harding, widely known as a restaurant keeper and sportsman, is again in harness, having recently opened a modern type of quick lunch restaurant at 19 Paradise Row. For many years Matt. Harding's restaurant, Main street, was a sort of local institution, the genial proprietor enjoying a wide acquaintance in horse racing and other sporting circles. The excellence of his menu earned him a well deserved reputation and in his new place of business Mr. Harding will again give patrons the benefit of his years of experience. Especial attention will be given to all sea foods in season, with efficient service and congenial surroundings features of the new establishment. Two years ago Mr. Harding retired, as he believed permanently, but the lure of old business associations proved too strong.

INDIAN TRAINING BEST, SAYS BOSTON PROFESSOR

Boston, June 23—Professor Dallas Lore Sharp of Boston University believes that training children as the Indians were trained makes them alert and resourceful and fits them for the problems of life better than any other method. Professor Sharp is the man the late John Burroughs called "the greatest nature writer in America."

He has been working out an experiment in "nature education" with his four boys on his farm in the hills of Hingham. He says:

"Every child—boys and girls alike—should get a country background to fit them for the fullest kind of self-expression."

The boys are Dallas Jr., 20; Waitstill, 18, who have just completed their sophomore year at Boston University; Morrison, 16, and Huntington, 15, who will enter Boston University this fall.

"And so we came to live here in Hingham," continued Professor Sharp. "Two of my four boys were born here, and the four of them have had experience with everything that lives and grows on the farm and in the woods hereabouts. They have gone barefoot, trapped and fished Summer and Winter. They have traveled these hills, making acquaintance with all forms of animal life.

"That's the kind of background, it seems to me, that every child has a right to, and that's what is behind our educational theory. A second reason for our coming here was to give the boys an experience that would make them self-sufficient, introspective, capable of doing things on their own initiative. Nothing emphasizes a boy's personality more than to find himself frequently alone and forced to depend upon his own resources.

"If I had four girls I'd put trousers on them and let them roam these woods and do the things the boys do. Most girls are being brought up in a foolish, futile way. They are pampered and primked and ironed and starched until all their originality is gone and they think only of their wardrobe."

WAS IN 99TH YEAR.

Friends of Jeremiah Stout of Fairville will sympathize with him in the death of his mother, Mrs. Alderina Stout, which occurred in Bathurst on Wednesday. She was a native of Fair Isle, Scotland, and had lived to the advanced age of ninety-nine years, enjoying the best of health until very recently. She is survived by three sons, Hewson of British Columbia, Alexander of Bathurst, and Jeremiah of Fairville. The funeral will be held at Bathurst on Friday.

Every Merchant His Own Editor

A merchant talking with the writer said: "I consider my Daily Newspaper Advertising to be the most important thing I do each day. It is the only thing I do that the entire community are simultaneously informed about.

"I look upon my advertising space in a somewhat similar fashion, I imagine, to the way the editor looks upon the whole paper. He has so much space and so much copy to use. His job is to make his paper as interesting as he can, to as many people as possible.

"I haven't as much space as he has; therefore it is doubly important to me to make my space more interesting than his space—IF I CAN.

"Hundreds of people come into my store whom I can never hope to meet personally. So I figure that the next best I can do is to give them a definite impression of my personality through my daily newspaper advertising."

The basis of successful advertising for any local merchant is disclosed in that conversation.

PANDERING TO NEW YORK STYLES

Complaint at Convention of Ontario Retail Dry Goods Dealers.

Toronto, June 23—About fifty delegates are in attendance at the first annual two day convention of the Ontario Drygoods Section of the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada, which opened here yesterday.

A resolution favoring the standardization of certain articles of wearing apparel was passed and a committee was appointed to bring in a report on the matter.

Too much pandering to New York styles in the purchase of women's clothes and other wearing apparel was the complaint of G. S. McMichael, who spoke on "Canadian National Designing." He said that Canadian clothes were just as attractive in design and finish as any that came from the U. S. Because of the craze that possessed many women for foreign made goods, Mr. McMichael said merchants were often led to falsify the marks on their goods to give the impression that they had been made in the U. S.

MEXICAN TROUBLE

San Antonio, June 23.—Four detchments, comprising about 150 well-armed men, have crossed the border into Mexico near Laredo, and it is reported here are intent on severing rail communication between Neuvo Laredo and Monterey, or an attack on Piedras Negras.

The department of justice here announced the crossing of the force. The department has the names of three former Communist leaders who are said to be in charge of the band, but the names were not made public.

It is unofficially reported General Murguis is with the expedition.

PLOT TO PREVENT U. S. TAKING PART IN WORLD WAR

Report of Lusk Committee Reveals Widespread Effort by the Red Element—In League With I. W. W.

(Special Despatch to Toronto Globe.)

New York, June 18. — Revelations which tend to show the existence of a concerted effort on the part of certain educators and preachers of revolutionary doctrines in this country aiming to halt participation of the United States in the world war are contained in the report of the Lusk Legislative Committee, which investigated seditious activities in this state. In the report as printed, correspondence is supposed to sustain the charge that the opponents of the war had some willing aides in the war department, on the federal bench and in congress. In some respects, the efforts were allied to those of I. W. W. and Socialist agitators.

Among the many mentioned in the report are Miss Lillian Wald of the Henry Street Settlement; Miss Jane Addams of Hull House, Chicago; David Starr Jordan, former president of Leland Stanford University of California; Senator La Follette and former Representative Claude Kitchin. Others mentioned prominently are: Scott Nearing, Morris Hillquist, "Big Bill' Haywood and Victor Berger. In the report is published much correspondence showing activities and opposition in the promotion of the war, which causes the Luck Committee to make this general charge as to their purpose.

Suggestive of Mass Action.

"A drawing together of the radical forces of workingmen, suggesting mass action, a plan of Soviet representation and international co-operation with the Socialist forces of Europe."

The prime movers were said to be Louis P. Lochner, who was the aide of Mme. Schwimmer, the Hungarian representative of Germany in this country prior to the war, and who arranged for the Ford peace party, and Roger Baldwin, who served a year in jail for violating the Selective Draft Act, and was at the head of the National Civil Liberties Bureau of 75th avenue. In a letter of September, 1917, Baldwin wrote as follows:

"We want to look like patriots in everything we do. We want to get a lot of good flags, talk a good deal about what our forefathers wanted to make this country, and to show that we are the folks that really stand for the spirit of our institutions."

The correspondence published shows one letter in which the writer claims that he can influence a federal judge in behalf of I. W. W. defendants who had been indicted for violation of the Espionage Act.

A claim on the part of Roger Baldwin was that Secretary of War Baker was showing considerable sympathy for the conscientious objectors, adding that "the men all will be freed as soon as the war is over."

Move in Germany's Favor.

This latter, in large measure, happened. A letter is quoted in which the charge is made that Victor Berger, the Milwaukee Socialist, knew that the Russian revolution of March, 1917, would result in Russia withdrawing her support from the Allies; that Mrs. Sergeant Cram of this city, wife of the former Public Service Commissioner, was making her home the headquarters for the conscientious objectors; that Dr. Jordan was lobbying in Washington against the Selective Service Act as well as the Espionage Act, and to prevent the president from being given a blanket authority to prosecute the war, and to prevent Liberty bonds from being non-taxable; that Frank F. Walsh, co-chairman with William Howard Taft on the War Labor Board, gave letters of introduction to two I. W. W. members of the Defence Council who were engaged in stirring up sympathy for Haywood and others under indictment in Chicago.

The report shows Lochner as the moving genius in efforts on behalf of Germany through the American Neutral Conference Committee, which was a development of the Ford peace party, the Neutral Conference Committee giving way to the Emergency Peace Federation on the day that von Bernstorff was handed his passports.

This Emergency Peace Federation later became the first American Conference of Democracy and Terms of Peace.

Among the organizing committee to the People's Council were Morris Hillquist, Eugene V. Debs; Bishop Paul Jones, Episcopal Bishop of Utah; Mas Eastman, Prof. H. W. L. Dana of Columbia; Algernon Lee, head of the Rand School; Scott Nearing; A. W. Ricker, publisher of Pearson's Magazine; Rose Schneidermann, Irwin St. John Tucker, David Starr Jordan, and ex-Senator J. D. Works of California.

Jordan's Lobbying.

Although Dr. Jordan reported directly to Lochner, the latter looked to Mr. Hillquist as his mentor. One of the most startling letters is that written by Jordan to Lochner, under date of June 10, 1917, in which he says:

"My course in university extension for statesmen goes on nicely. Friday night, under the lead of Huddleston, I had numerous members of the house. Monday I had a seminar of senators under Vardamann. I have never been received with such deference before. But it is also clear that I must not stay around so as to be regarded as a lobbyist. Thus far, all this has been received as a personal favor and the men asked me to visit them. Kitchin has asked that for Monday."

Some of the movers for the people's conference (which later was refused asylum in Minnesota, but found a friendlier spirit in Mayor Thompson of Chicago) began to show alarm when it was planned to send Emma Goldman and Alex. Berkman as delegates to this gathering. The situation was such that Lochner wrote:

"As for Berkman and Goldman, I do hope they will not be elected. If we have these two splendid fighters for liberty with us, that may be too big a burden to carry. Personally, I have only the highest regard for the two."

Home Made Bread

Home made bread is without doubt the cheapest and most healthful food that can be produced for human consumption. It is the most completely digested solid food in the world, over 90% of it being transformed into health and strength. It yields nearly twice as much nourishment as rice or potatoes, and is ten times as nourishing as an equal value of meat. No bread is more truly wholesome or more perfectly satisfactory than that baked at home in which Royal Yeast Cakes are used.

ROYAL YEAST CAKES

It was known many years ago that yeast is an excellent thing for constipation, anemia, boils and pimples. Lately eminent scientists have been investigating the matter thoroughly and their conclusions point to the fact that the beneficial effect of yeast has not been overrated. The yeast treatment is very simple and economical—and altogether harmless.

Before each meal eat a Royal Yeast Cake, or take a cake dissolved in water or fruit juices. The scientific investigators say that the curative elements in yeast are the vitamines and nuclein which it contains. It is certainly well worth a fair trial by those who suffer from any of the ailments mentioned above.
