UPROAR AT KIEV

Troops Invade University and Break Up Students' Revolutionary Meeting.

Kiev, Nov. 18.—A cordon of police and soldiers was thrown around the Kiev University yesterday, while a conference of the southern social revolutionary organization was being held in the building, in the guise of a student meeting.

The meeting was broken up and every person who could not show matriculation papers was arrested.

After the departure of the policemen and the troops a mob of students broke into the university and demanded that lectures be suspended as a protest against the invasion of the university precincts by the authorities. To put an end to this disorder the buildings were surrounded by troops a second time. Two hundred students were arrested and the names of a thousand others were taken down. Cossacks occupied the streets leading to the university and no one was allowed to pass the building.

CREW HELD NOT TO BLAME FOR FATAL HORSESHOE WRECK

Engineer and Conductor Are Acquitted By Jury at Brampton Trial.

Brampton, Nov. 16.—After being out an hour the jury in the case of Engineer Hodge and Conductor Grimes, of Toronto, charged with manslaughter arising out of the Caledon wreck on the C. P. R., Sept. 5, returned at 8:50 o'clock a verdict of not guilty.

Both of the accused men took the stand at the morning session of the court.

Conductor Grimes in a straightforward and pleasing manner answered the questions put by Justice Magee. He explained that the schedule laid out was perfectly easy to make. Any high speed would be made on the good part of the track. He was sure the brakes were applied at the proper point and did not pay any attention to the speed. He did not know how fast the train was traveling.

To Mr. Davidson he stated that he had never seen a bulletin regarding the running of a train on the horseshoe curve. He was busy taking tickets on the way from Caledon, and looking out for order boards. The witness added that he would not like to swear to any slowdown. He thought he felt the brakes applied about a quarter of a mile away.

Hodge admitted he had little experience as an engineer on a passenger train. It was his first trip down the Caledon grade as such and he had never been warned as to the speed there. A quarter of a mile from the scene of the accident he had applied the 7-pound air pressure.

T. C. Robinette, K.C., made a strong plea for the prisoners in an address lasting one hour and ten minutes. He spoke of the defendants as two young men who keenly felt the death of the passengers, but it was not right to hold them responsible for the accident when perhaps "the system" was equally or more to blame.

He dwelt upon Hodge's inexperience with a passenger engine, which he had been ordered to take out. On the fatal grade he had applied the air brake pressure sufficient for a freight train, but not for a passenger train. This was a sin of omission. It was not an offense against the law. Where reasonable doubt existed on such a point the code declared that the prisoner was entitled to the benefit.

The crown had not proved that the accused had deliberately run the train at an excessive speed. The men had been doing their duty as they saw it. If Hodge knew that a fast rate was dangerous he would also know that if an accident occurred he would likely be the first to be killed. That he had escaped was an act of Providence.

Mr. Robinette dwelt upon the possible effect a broken brakeshoe on the engine would have at such a time, and closed with an appeal that the jury should not punish two young men for a mistake. To err was only human.

N. F. Davidson, K.C., the crown prosecutor, dwelt upon the evidence to show that the train had been going at least 30, and he thought 35, miles an hour down the grade. The conductor had said a fast rate was necessary to make the schedule at Mono Road.

The evidence of Engineer Galvin, who has, under the stress of intense emotion, felt compelled to testify against a comrade, that in his opinion the speed had been excessive, had been the most pathetic feature of the case. Not a witness called by the crown had wanted to give evidence that would do an injustice to the accused; rather, their sympathy was with the men. He warmly criticised the evidence of County Constable Smith and commented that Smith "would not give up dead people's property until he had to."

The coroner's jury, after a thorough inquiry, had declared the two men guilty of negligence, and this their evidence went to prove.

Justice Magee addressed the jury at 5:30.

"The railways," he argued, "carry thousands of lives every day, and the public relied upon railway employes for protection from any danger to life and limb.

"It did not follow, however, that the first person called before a jury of his fellow-citizens should be punished, but it is clear that carelessness and negligence in the discharge of duty must be so dwelt with as to give a warning to others.

"When one sent for a doctor or a veterinary he expected to be given the best service. It was in their power to give and to exercise their best caution.

"If the accused had left anything undone which might have prevented the accident," his lordship said, "then they were guilty of negligence and liable under the criminal code which covers the offense."

The history of the accident was reviewed and the evidence analyzed.

The judge commented upon the disappearance of the train bulletins at Orangeville and Toronto.

Kaiser Nice To Pressmen

London, Nov. 18.—Emperor William, who came to London today from Windsor Castle to receive numerous deputations at the German embassy, was especially cordial to the newspapermen, who presented him with an address. His majesty said:

"The power you wield is great and most beneficial when exerted in the direction of promoting feelings of friendship among the nations. Your address proves that you have this task at heart. I am glad to meet you, and I hope you will continue to foster the friendly sentiments between our two nations, which are so necessary to the peace of Europe. We are of the same race and religion, ties which should prove strong enough to keep us in harmony and friendship."

In conversation with the newspapermen the Emperor emphasized the great influence of the modern press, and the facility with which international misunderstandings were fomented in the newspapers. He added that he thought what was needed was simply a little good sense on both sides.

Regarding Anglo-German relations, his majesty deprecated attaching too much importance "to the utterances of excitable people in either country."

LEMIEUX EXPECTS GOOD RESULTS FROM TRIP TO JAP CAPITAL

Not Proposing Any Change in the Present Treaty With Japan.

Tokio, Nov. 17.—Hon. Rudolph Lemieux, Canadian postmaster-general and minister of labor, who is here to consult with the Japanese authorities regarding emigration from this country, has established an office at the British embassy and is in frequent conference with officials of the foreign office. He expects a favorable outcome of his mission.

To a representative of the Associated Press he said:

"I am not proposing any change in the existing treaty, but desire to reach an agreement with a friendly nation looking to the adoption of a programme for the future which will be beneficial to both countries concerned."

The minister will be entertained by the municipality of Tokio on Tuesday next, and the Government is preparing an elaborate programme for his entertainment during his stay in Japan.

The foreign office has notified the emigration companies that 400 Japanese will be allowed to enter Hawaii during this month and December. It is understood that the Government intends to exercise a close supervision over those going as students to San Francisco. There is reason to believe that considerable fraud has been practiced by registering laborers as students, and that this has escaped the scrutiny of the emigration inspector.

American Ambassador O'Brien has had a conference on this subject with Minister of Foreign Affairs Hayashi, who has issued most stringent instructions to the inspectors, and it is understood that further restriction are under advisement.

The Japanese Government is said to be considering the advisability of shutting off all emigration to the United States and Canada for the present on the ground that economic conditions render it inadvisable for citizens of Japan to visit foreign countires unless they are able to show that they are amply self-supporting.
