WHAT'S COMING?

For days and days now The Globe has been steadfastly in its own peculiar way discussing the railway situation in the Northwest. The statement in the news columns of The World yesterday that an effort is being made in Montreal to secure the Canadian Northern, or Mann and Mackenzie system, for the Grand Trunk, throws some light on the subject. So also does the picture of Mr. James Ross, published in The Globe yesterday on the first page. What special scheme the capitalists who control The Globe have in view we do not know, but it may be confidently expected within a few days. Perhaps The Globe will tell us.

INCREASE BANKING CAPITAL.

The important point touched upon by Mr. E. R. Clouston in his address before the Canadian Bankers' Association yesterday, was the inadequacy of the present Canadian bank circulation to meet the enormously increased requirements of our commerce. The business of the chartered banks has about doubled in ten years, and yet the total capitalization of our banks has not been at all enlarged. Ten years ago a bank circulation of $34,000,000 was found adequate for the requirements of Canadian trade; a year ago $56,000,000 sufficed, while to-day the margin available on the amount the banks are authorized to circulate is exceedingly small.

Mr. Clouston came out straight and strong against any radical changes in the fundamental principle of our currency system. He believes that any legislation looking to the provision of easy facilities for inflating the currency will weaken the stability of the banks and tend to impair the system which has been established. He would deplore any movement to permit the banks, as some have suggested, to issue circulation to the extent of their reserve or a portion thereof, as well as against their paid-up capital. Such a move would involve the loss of the double liability on capital stock.

It would, as Mr. Clouston says, be always possible in emergencies to obtain notes from the government by deposit of gold or Dominion notes, but this does away with the elasticity of the system, and if indulged in to any great extent will inevitably lead to periods of aggravated financial stringency, such as are not uncommon with our neighbors across the line.

In short, Mr. Clouston turns down all round-about solutions of the currency stringency, and says that the natural and the proper remedy will be found in a general increase in the capital of the banks. The banking capital has remained stationary for twenty-five years, and we cannot do our enormously increased business with the facilities that were found adequate a quarter of a century ago.

MORE ABOUT FARMERS' MAIL DELIVERY.

The Weekly Sun of this city is doing good work in advocating Rural Mail Delivery for Canadian farmers. It says the grange movement in the United States has contributed largely to the system being adopted over there. It is urging the Canadian farmers to demand the same system here.

The official report of the United States Postmaster General states that for the year ending December last, over 8000 carriers were engaged, at that date, in carrying United States mail to the doors of farmers, and the number of people benefited by the service was five and three-quarter millions. And this development had practically all occurred in three years. But this is only the beginning. Inside of four years from the date of the report (three years from now) it is expected, at the present rate of progress, that a million square miles of territory, with a population of 21,000,000 people, will be reached by the service.

The Postmaster-General says as to the beneficial effects of the system: It is "a potent educational force; it brings agricultural life into closer relation with the active business world; it keeps the farmers in daily touch with markets and prices; it advances general intelligence thru the increased circulation of legitimate journals and periodicals; it stimulates correspondence, quickens all exchanges, promotes good roads and enhances farm values."

How is the system worked? A carrier is employed for each route. This carrier is required to provide a horse and a rig suitable for all weathers. He is paid $600 a year, and delivers the mail daily, Sundays excepted. He covers 20 to 25 miles per day, and serves, on the average, 125 families. The farmers served have locked boxes, practically in their own yards, in which the driver places the mail intended for the farmer, and takes from the same place whatever has been deposited there for mailing. The box is so placed that the carrier can reach it without getting out of his rig. In order to further facilitate business the mail man is supplied with stamped envelopes and money orders, which he sells to those who ask for them.

The Postmaster-General will, it is announced, ask for $12,000,000 next year for carrying it on. But with this increase in outlay there has been an increase in revenue as well, and the greater part of the increase in receipts is due to the advanced policy adopted. In sections where free rural delivery has not yet been inaugurated, the postal revenue showed an increase in one year of 3 1-2 per cent., while in the sections covered by the free delivery there was an average addition of 11 per cent. to the revenue. Besides this, the saving effected by discontinuing minor postoffices, and old postal routes between offices, amounted to one-sixth of the cost of delivery. Still, the extended service is not, apparently, wholly self-supporting; but the Postmaster-General says, "the net outlay involved in the complete development of the system will not be so great that it need deter Congress from the prosecution of this enlightened policy."

Moreover, while the public expenditure on the service exceeds the revenue derived therefrom, the private advantage to citizens as individuals far more than offsets the added cost to the public as a whole. Speaking on this view of the case, the Postmaster-General, in his official report, says that under the old system a representative from each of the 125 families on a postal route traveled from two to four miles in going to the postoffice. The time so occupied is valued at 10 cents per day for each family, or $12.50 for the whole. On the other hand, the government can perform the same service, thru one officer, for $2 per day. With nearly 6,000,000 families served, the aggregate saving is enormous, and the claim for the extension of the service becomes, as the Postmaster-General says, irresistible.

But the direct advantage connected with the delivery of mail is not all. There is the indirect advantage that has come in the way of road improvement. The Postal Department sent out letters of enquiry as to the condition of the roads traveled in delivering mail. The reports received in reply showed 666 roads in bad condition and 1814 as fair, passable and good. The postmasters in whose districts the bad roads were reported were instructed to urge the local authorities, as a means of facilitating the rural mail delivery, to improve the highways covered in delivery, and it was stated at the same time that full information as to the best means of improvement would be furnished from the Good Roads Department of the United States government. This suggestion, in a large number of cases, had the effect desired in bringing about improvement.

It is up to the Canadian farmers now to demand the adoption of a rural mail delivery in this country.

SEND IN YOUR DIRTY BILLS.

We print in this issue a letter from Mr. David Creighton, the Assistant Receiver-General, in which he takes up the question of the prevalent circulation of dirty and dilapidated Dominion government one and two dollar bills.

Mr. Creighton says the remedy lies with the public and the banks. If the people are anxious to abate the nuisance of filthy money, they can turn their used-up government bills into the banks, who will in turn exchange them at the Assistant Receiver-General's office for crisp new notes.

It is now up to the public and the banks to co-operate in raising the circulation medium to a standard at once sanitary and calculated to hinder the work of counterfeiters.

JAMAICA AND THE EMPIRE.

The World is in receipt of a communication from the editor of a Kingston, Jamaica, newspaper, stating that the question of the annexation of Jamaica to the United States has frequently been discussed there, and occasionally advocated by leading men; that there are many who think that it is the inevitable destiny of the island to become absorbed in "America," and believe that in this course lies the true solution of the many economic and commercial problems which beset the country; and that there are some of the Islanders who advocate as an alternative scheme federation with Canada.

European bounty-fed sugar having crushed the chief Jamaican industry, the finances of the island are in a bad way, and it cannot be wondered at that the inhabitants are casting about for a way out of their difficulties.

It would be a thousand pities, however, if Jamaica were lost to the empire. Owing to the pending construction by the United States of a canal across Central America, the island gains an enhanced strategic importance, and it is to be hoped that not only will the Islanders hesitate before they throw in their lot with the republic, but that also the British and Canadian governments will investigate the situation to see what they can do to prevent such a regrettable consummation.

The agreement of the European governments to abolish the sugar bounty system within two years should weigh with the Jamaicans in the maintenance of their allegiance to the Union Jack; and we would also suggest that improved steamship communication with and possible trade concessions from the Dominion of Canada might help Jamaica to loyally tide over the present winter of its discontent. And, as The World has before pointed out, the political and commercial absorption by Canada of Jamaica and the other British West Indies is well worth the consideration of the government at Ottawa.

DIRTY DOMINION BILLS.

Editor World: As there are a good many hazy ideas and much loose talk indulged in as to the issue of small notes by the government, perhaps you will permit me to correct one or two misapprehensions and to make an observation or two tending to abate the nuisance of the circulation of worn and dirty notes which the public complain of, but for which they themselves are largely to blame. This haziness of idea is well exemplified in a recent statement credited to a "leading chartered bank authority," that "too few of these bills are issued at too infrequent intervals, and consequently there are always in circulation quantities of these rational notes that present a filthy and dilapidated appearance." After this statement from such a supposed authority it may surprise the public to learn that there is no interval whatever, but that the issue of new notes is continuous, thousands of them going out every day from the office in Toronto to the banks all over the province, and as to the quantity it is simply regulated by the business demand of the country. Thousands of small notes are also daily cancelled and withdrawn from circulation at this office. But as the public do not as a rule have much to do with banks, and never visit this office, many notes which might be withdrawn still remain in circulation. If the public and the banks are really desirous of decreasing the circulation of dirty notes, let the former, when they receive such notes, try to get them into a bank for return to the Assistant Receiver-General, and let merchants and others having bank accounts, instead of paying out small notes promiscuously in change, cut out the dirty ones for deposit, only paying out the cleaner ones. If this was generally done it would very greatly abate the nuisance of dirty notes in circulation, and bring such circulation to a minimum.

D. Creighton, A.R.G.

Eve Tempted Adam.

And Adam has been tempting Eve ever since. Imagine a man selling a woman rancid butter while keeping her attention fixed on a "prize" given with the rancid butter! A woman may be tempted by "prizes" to buy common soaps, that she may not know will soon ruin her clothes and hands. But she soon finds out the difference between common soaps and Sunlight Soap. She finds Sunlight Soap—Octagon Bar—a prize in itself. Her clothes last longer, and her hands are saved from eczema. 220

MOSES AND THE TRUSTS.

Dr. William G. Moorhead of the Xenia, Ohio, Theological Institute, has been writing for The Chicago Record-Herald on the subject of Mosaism. He finds that the great Hebrew lawgiver had, as a part of his system, an effectual preventive of the growth of trusts. Dr. Moorhead says on this point:

"When they come to deal with the duties and rights of the individual, the family and the community Moses' laws transcend the legislation of his age and the ages succeeding down to later Christian times. Indeed, some of his provisions outrank anything found in our modern civilization. The laws regulating business, property and money-lending are superior to those of most nations of the present day. Combinations of capitalists, so as to control any product of the commonwealth of Israel, were impossible under Moses' system, for every 50 years (jubilee) all the land reverted to the original heirs of the tribes, their inheritance being absolutely inalienable. Besides, the jubilee struck off the bonds from every Hebrew servant and released every debtor and it reunited the separated members of the same family. In short, from this legislation accrued to the people the utmost public and private good. It tended to equalize the wealth of the community. It minimized poverty. It preserved the liberties of the people, it fostered a true charity and it tended to suppress worldliness and self-seeking. There is no legislation in the world to-day that proves so strong a barrier to greed. Yet this is only a section of the wondrous legal system established by the man Moses more than 3000 years ago.

Going to Extremes.

The majority of men have very little respect for a miser; they consider it folly to deprive oneself of the necessities and comforts of life in order to amass a fortune. Equally unwise is the man who is putting by nothing for the days when old age will render him unable to provide for his needs. The proper course lies between these extremes of saving and spending.

By investing a comparatively small amount each year as a premium on an endowment assurance policy in the Imperial Life Assurance Company of Canada you can provide for your old age without depriving yourself of the comforts of the present. For full particulars apply to the head office, Toronto, or to any of the company's agents.

East End Wedding.

A pretty wedding was celebrated at St. Enoch's Church yesterday afternoon, when William Broderick of Winnipeg was united in marriage to Florence Ough of this city. The groom was supported by Elmer C. Phipps of Brantford, while the bride was supported by her sister, Miss Amy. The bride was attired in a blue suit of broadcloth, with white trimmings, white beaver hat, trimmed with white silk, and carried a magnificent bouquet of roses. The bridesmaid wore a blue suit, pale satin blouse, black velvet hat, and carried a bouquet of pink roses. The happy couple left on the evening train for Haliburton and other points, after which they will proceed to Winnipeg, where they will reside.

Police Court Record.

In the Police Court yesterday, Leopold Bostock, a vagrant, was sent to jail for 60 days. James Daly is alleged to have sold liquor illegally. He will appear next Thursday. James Hornshaw, who was given a chance to leave town and did not, was fined $50 and costs or five months. Ethel Fleming of Chippewa, against whom there is a vagrancy charge, was remanded till the 17th.

Good Roads in Lindsay.

The town of Lindsay want to submit a bylaw to the ratepayers for $100,000 for permanent improvements to roadways, and A. W. Campbell, Deputy Commissioner of Public Works, will address a public meeting there next Monday evening in favor of doing so.

AN EASY WAY

To Keep Well.

It is easy to keep well if we would only observe each day a few simple rules of health.

The all important thing is to keep the stomach right and to do this it is not necessary to diet or to follow a set rule or bill of fare. Such pampering simply makes a capricious appetite and a feeling that certain favorite articles of food must be avoided.

Prof. Wiechold gives pretty good advice on this subject; he says: "I am 68 years old, and have never had a serious illness, and at the same time my life has been largely an indoor one, but I early discovered that the way to keep healthy was to keep a healthy stomach—not by eating bran crackers or dieting of any sort; on the contrary, I always eat what my appetite craves, but daily for the past eight years I have made it a practice to take one or two of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets after each meal, and I attribute my robust health for a man of my age to the regular daily use of Stuart's Tablets.

"My physician first advised me to use them because he said they were perfectly harmless and were not a secret patent medicine, but contained only the natural digestives, peptones and diastase, and after using them a few weeks I have never ceased to thank him for his advice.

"I honestly believe the habit of taking Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets after meals is the real health habit, because their use brings health to the sick and ailing and preserves health to the well and strong."

Men and women past 50 years of age need a safe digestive after meals to insure a perfect digestion and to ward off disease, and the safest, best known and most widely used is Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

They are found in every well regulated household from Maine to California and in Great Britain and Australia are rapidly pushing their way into popular favor. 35

All druggists sell Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, full sized packages at 50 cents, and for a weak stomach a 50 cent package will often do $50 worth of good.

THAT GLEN-ROAD BRIDGE,

Vexed Question of Its Maintenance Again Before Government.

The long standing dispute over the Glen-road bridge was the subject of another conference on Thursday between the Attorney-General, Hon. J. M. Gibson and the interested parties. A. L. Howard and T. L. Church represented the Toronto Lacrosse Club; County Councillors John Wanless, Wallace Maclean and W. Sylvester, York Township, and H. M. Mowat, the ratepayers, who live across the bridge.

The latter said his clients were willing to maintain the bridge and keep it in repair, but they desired to do so under the municipal machinery, but the Council refused to pass the necessary bylaw.

Mr. Bull, for the township, held that the Scottish Ontaria Land Co. built the bridge to benefit their property, and made money out of it, and it was only by special legislation that the question of its maintenance could be solved.

Nothing definite was done, and the Attorney-General's parting shot to the deputation was to try and settle the dispute between themselves. He advised the township to facilitate matters.
