

the shell
that separates the university from the society reality from dreams order from confusion is as thin as that which protects the unborn from the coldness of the world as fragile as that chance which put you here and him in Biafra, Vietnam, Harlem . . .