HON. H. BOSTOCK LIBERAL LEADER IN THE SENATE

Ottawa, March 19—In the commons today another story was told of the care the Borden government exercises in making appointments. W. H. White, Liberal member for Victoria, Alberta, gave an instance in which it was shown that a law-breaker who had been convicted, was given a government appointment through influence. Ambrose Gray, said Mr. White, had been defeated as Conservative candidate against Hon. Wilfred Gariepy in the Alberta provincial elections. Two weeks later he was appointed homestead inspector for the riding in which he had lost. Now he was oppressing and making things troublesome for those who had voted against him.

Levi Thompson, M. P. for Qu'Appelle, added more troubles to those of Hon. Dr. Roche by referring to the appointment of J. K. Smith, a convicted perjurer at Moosejaw. Hardly any defence was offered from the government benches in either case.

Hon. Robert Rogers appeared in a new role in the house today. He pleaded for "cleanliness" and "purity" in elections, but the force and eloquence of his plea were lost because it was he who made it, and his record caused such utterances to be received with snickerings.

Hon. Dr. Roche introduced his act to amend the Indian Act which was given its first reading.

Third reading was given the bills respecting merchant shipping and North Sydney harbor.

At a meeting of Liberal members of the senate this afternoon Hon. Hewitt Bostock, senator for Kamloops, B. C., was chosen leader to succeed the late Sir George Ross.

CARE OF FEEBLE MINDED

Capt. James F. Bagley, secretary of the Maine state board of charities and corrections, recently reported that 478 feeble minded or insane were cared for at the expense of cities or towns in the state during the year ending in 1913. These were the public charges of the cities or towns, not cared for in insane hospitals. Secretary Bagley stated that it is practically impossible to determine what percentage of this number are insane, as in some cases the physicians are unable to distinguish feeble minded from insane cases.

Nervous Prostration and Heart Trouble

For Three Years Doctors Struggled With This Disease, and in Vain—Cure Was Effected by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

The complete breakdown of the nervous system as in nervous prostration is usually the result of over-work, worry or "burning the candle at both ends."

There are always warnings if you will only recognize them. You find yourself easily fatigued and annoyed. Little things make you irritable. You do not enjoy your work or find yourself forgetful and lacking energy. Headaches may return about the same time each day; there may be nervous indigestion and distress caused by even the simplest food. Gloomy forebodings and hysteria are other symptoms. You may look strong and well and yet be on the verge of nervous collapse.

When threatened by nervous breakdown begin at once the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and escape such serious developments as nervous prostration, locomotor ataxia and paralysis.

Mrs. H. C. Jones, Scotch Lake, C. B., writes: "I suffered from nervous prostration for nearly three years. I had frequent headaches, had no appetite and was troubled with my heart. After consulting two doctors without satisfactory results, I began the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and was completely cured by the treatment. It is nearly a year since I was cured, and I want others to know of this splendid medicine. I now attend to my house work with pleasure and comfort and am glad to have the opportunity of recommending Dr. Chase's Nerve Food."

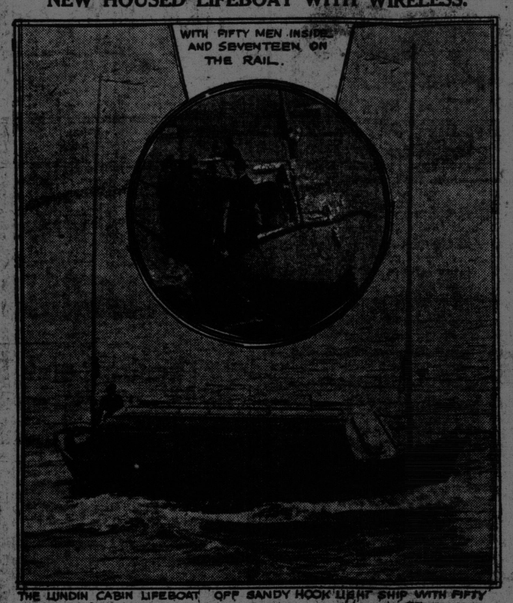
NEW HOUSED LIFEBOAT WITH WIRELESS.



THE LUNDIN CABIN LIFEBOAT OFF SANDY HOOK LIGHT SHIP WITH FIFTY MEN STOWED BELOW.

This boat, known as the Lundin housed lifeboat, can be entirely closed in by watertight iron doors and ports, and in tests of stability she carried fifty men inside the cabin with seventeen hanging to the guard rail on one side. Rowlocks just below the portlights permit of her being rowed with six sweeps. Her propeller works in a tunnel, well protected from drift. Forward and aft she carries large reels, on which life lines are wound, and they can be shot aboard a ship.

The boat's bottom is double, with air compartments and scuppers making her self-bailing. Such a boat, as the tests demonstrated, can pass a towline and pull a whole string of other life boats.

The sides of these boats are heavily padded with Balsa wood, which enables them to stand heavy bumping without damage. A small compartment within the cabin of the boat is virtually insulated, so far as sound is concerned, from the rest of the boat. This is called the silence cabin and is set aside for the wireless operator.

RICH YOUNG MR. BOND'S WILD RIDE IN AUTO

Bandit Style Caused Reign of Terror Near London

FINALLY CAPTURED

Attempt at Suicide Followed Arrest—At Revolver Point He Forced Chauffeur to do His Bidding

The cable a few days ago told of the wild automobile ride of rich young H. Lee Bond in London suburbs, holding up people right and left with revolvers. Here are details from the Weekly Scotsman:—

After an extraordinary motor journey of thirty hours through Wiltshire, Dorset, Hampshire, and Somersetshire, in the course of which he is alleged to have threatened a number of persons with revolvers, H. Lee Bond, a wealthy young man, aged twenty-nine, living at Lyndhurst, Hampshire, is under arrest.

Mr. Bond hired a motor car from a garage at Lyndhurst, the driver being a man named John Saint, aged nineteen.

In the course of an interview, Saint, said he was at the Mill House, Mr. Bond's residence, with the car about two o'clock on Saturday afternoon, when Bond told him to get ready to start. They went through Durley, Ringwood and Poole to Weymouth, where his suspicions were first aroused on account of Bond not saying where he was going, which was contrary to the usual practice.

"I was about fed up," said Saint, "and refused to go any further. Bond thereupon pulled out a revolver, and said if I did not go on he would shoot. He said he shot to kill, and that it would be best for me to go on. There were many people about but he hid the firearm under his coat, and no one could see what was taking place. Then we ran out of petrol, and that was the first time I got out of the car to fill up, but he kept me covered.

"We drove through Dorchester to Puddletown, reaching there about half-past four. Bond ordered some petrol and two head lamps, and the man wanted £6 each. Bond got into the car when the lamps were lighted, and, holding the revolver at my head, said 'Drive like fury' We went back into Dorchester, and then towards Bridport. There had been a fair at Dorchester, and there were a lot of people on the road. Some of them Bond 'held up' He seemed to prefer bylanes.

"Presently we came upon a young lady and a man, who wanted a lift, as they had three miles to go. Bond pulled out his revolver and said: "Your money or your life!" The girl ran away screaming, and the man ran in front of the car and warned the other people in the road.

Lady's Fright

"Then we overtook a young lady and a man on bicycles. Bond stopped the car and wanted to talk to the young lady. She backed away from him. The young man called her to come, but she would not do so, and Bond fired over her head. She was more frightened than ever, and ran down the road screaming, and jumped through a gap in the hedge and disappeared. I backed the car, but Bond made me go on again. The man had disappeared also, and the bicycles were in the ditch.

"We left about ten o'clock and went on to Blanford, where on the road Bond tried to get into a post office, but was unable to do so, and then we went on towards Wimborne and got to Shaftesbury in the early hours of the morning, where we got some petrol. We stopped at a farmer's place. Bond thinking it was a garage. The farmer said he had not any petrol, and Bond said if he did not give him some there would be bullets flying.

"At length we reached the garage and took in some petrol and left the empties When the man went to get the bill Bond made me drive off. We then went towards Salisbury, and at Wilton a police officer tried to stop us and Bond pointed a revolver at me, and one at the inspector and said—'Drive straight on; stop for nothing.'

"Nothing occurred on the Salisbury road except that Bond stopped and examined the way. He decided to go to Warminster, and we left Salisbury on the right, but turned off before we got to Bournemouth. He told me he wanted to get on the North Road.

"At times he appeared to be dozing, and I worked my way back to Frome, but nothing happened, except that when he was awake he occasionally said: 'Be careful, Saint. I have got you covered.' We came back through Shaftesbury again and I managed to work my way round into Ringwood and through Pylewell, near Lymington, and eventually got to Mill House in the evening. He let me to go to the garage, where the police were awaiting me."

A Dramatic Arrest

The details of Bond's arrest show that observation was kept upon Mill House for several hours, and Bond was seen pacing the lawn, but it was not until about eleven o'clock at night that an opportunity occurred to capture him. Superintendent Wakeford, taking a powerful acetylene lamp, entered the garden and approached Bond, followed by Police Sergeant Long and Police-Constable Poling, the former covering Bond with a revolver. As the superintendent drew near Bond swung round, whereupon the superintendent sprang forward, and seized him, holding his arms close to his body. The sergeant and the constable advanced at the same time and took two loaded revolvers from the hands of the captive.

Bond was removed in custody to Lyndhurst Police Station and it was intended to convey him to Dorchester. Before doing so some lunch was ordered for him from a local hotel. It is said that when the police handed him the tray they did not notice a knife on it but Bond detected one beneath the cloth, hastily seized it, and drew the edge across his throat before he could be prevented. Police-Constable Poling, who endeavored to wrest the knife from Bond received several severe cuts on the hands.

It was noticed that Bond had inflicted a deep wound in his throat, and after he had been attended by the police surgeon, Bond was removed to the Southampton Hospital, where he is said to be making satisfactory progress.

Royal George Arrives

The Royal mail steamer Royal George arrived in port last evening, docking at No. 3 berth about 7.15 with 19 saloon, 118 second cabin and 595 third class passengers, 1,535 bags and 318 packages of mail and about 1,100 tons of freight. Although the big liner was detained more than thirty-four hours, she made good time on her passage, despite the heavy weather and came through in perfect order. When off Cape Sable the George was detained thirteen and a half hours by fog, together with a blinding electrical storm.

The mail matter was discharged in two hours, fifteen minutes, a special train taking it, together with the first and second class passengers at 10.58 o'clock.

The saloon passengers were: Miss D. Carter, H. C. Cubitt, J. B. Fielding, W. G. Graves, Mrs. Graves, G. Hadley, A. M. Harker, Mrs. Harker, F. Howell, Miss A. T. Johnston, A. G. Johnston, H. M. WHAT? IN HALIFAX HARBOR?

(Halifax Echo.)

The ferry steamer Halifax, under charge of Captain Ozone and Mate Bowes, struck the north side of the Dartmouth dock while making her 6.00 o'clock trim to Dartmouth last night and badly shattered the head of that wharf.

The steamer left Halifax at 7.45 o'clock for Dartmouth and although it was not absolutely clear, it was by no means thick and the lights at the head of the dock could be seen at some distance. But the man at the wheel evidently left his turn into the dock too late and struck the wharf cutting a number of the large piles away. They fell with tremendous force on the bow of the boat, but fortunately there was no one near when the logs fell and the only damage occasioned to the steamer was the breaking of the iron gates, which tottered and fell under the heavy weight.

In New Haven there is exhibited the earliest known skate, roughly fashioned out of the bone of a horse. It is at least 700 years old, is about twelve inches in length and was found in an excavation made in the city of London.
