AN EVENTFUL LIFE ENDED.

Death of Count de Chambord—Sketch of His Career.

PARIS, Aug. 24.—The Count de Chambord is dead. He was the head of the elder branch of the Bourbons, was born in Paris, Sept. 29, 1820, and was the son of the Duke de Berri, who was assassinated in March, 1820, and the princess of the two Sicilies, the famous Duchess de Berri. He was baptised with great pomp in water brought from the Jordan by Chateaubriand and was called the Child of Miracle. He proclaimed himself king under the title of Henry V. at Rambouillet in 1830, and soon after was compelled to quit France. He spent some time at Holyrood, then traveled on the continent, and finally settled down for a space in Belgrave square, London, where he made a kind of political debut. In 1846 he married the eldest daughter of the duke of Modena, but leaves no children. He issued several manifestos after the fall of Sedan, but beyond some passing agitation nothing was effected.

The republican journals speak respectfully concerning the death of De Chambord and unite in paying homage to the sincerity of deceased. The royalty papers appear with mourning borders. They are reserved in comments regarding the consequences of the count's death. The body will be buried by the side of that of Charles X.

Le Gaulois in announcing the death of Chambord said: Henry V. is dead; long live Philippe VII., meaning the Count de Paris.

LONDON, Aug. 24.—De Chambord's suffering before death was fearful, but he maintained his fortitude to the last. Friends and members of the household were admitted to the death chamber at 8 o'clock. They all kissed the hand of the count and were deeply moved. The body will be embalmed. The causes of death were cancers of the stomach, ulcers and atrophy of the kidneys and derangement of blood in the vessels. The legitimists propose to hold a grand demonstration at Ferits on the occasion of the celebration of the obsequies there. The republican papers in Paris unanimously pronounce that the French monarchy is dead.

A COLLINGWOOD GIRL'S CASE.

She Finds Herself Ruined and Deserted in Detroit.

Last evening, says the Detroit Free Press of Thursday, a comely Canadian girl, about 19 years of age, called at the Central police station and asked for lodging, saying that she was a stranger in the city and had no money.

The story of the cruel fate that caused that request to be made is pitiable and interesting in the extreme. Some months ago the young girl, who lived in Collingwood, and whose parents are very respectable people there, commenced keeping company with a young man named Frederick Ballston. He was not long in discovering that he had awakened the tender passion in the breast of the fair young girl, and being unscrupulous worked upon it to such an extent that she finally consented to run away with him. On Saturday afternoon they left Collingwood. Before going the girl had told her parents that she was going to visit an old aunt who lives a short distance out of town and that she would stay with her over Sunday. Well, they loitered around Hamilton for the few hours they had to spare and left on the Chicago express for the city of the straits, their destination. Arrived here early Sunday morning they went to a cheap hotel where they registered as man and wife. She urged upon him the necessity of immediate marriage, but with one excuse or another he managed to put her off. On Tuesday morning he went out as he said to look for work. The presumption is that he found it, but in some other city. At any rate he has not returned and has not been seen by the girl, from which she concludes that he has deserted her. Alone and friendless in Detroit she waited for a couple of days for her pseudo lover to turn up, but he failed to connect. She sought protection from the police, as has already been told, and as she was very respectable looking her appeal was granted. When the girl told her sad story to the policeman in charge at the station, he advised her to return home; but she strenuously objected, but expressed a desire to conceal her identity and whereabouts. She does not want to go back, she says, on account of the disgrace which has fallen on her and blasted her young life.

THREATENED IN RED INK.

What Frank James' Friends will Do to Witnesses Against Him.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 24.—A Gallatin despatch says a verdict of guilty is probable in the case of Frank James, and one of acquittal possible. Six jurors are ex confederates. Intense excitement was created about noon to-day when Judge Irving and Harfield Davis who were warned recently to be careful in giving testimony against James each received a letter from St. Louis saying: "Your evidence against Frank James will be watched by tried and true friends of the hero. No one but the writer and one other know how near Gov. Crittenden came to biting the dust in April. The Sunday afternoon he rode in a chair car from Jefferson City to St. Louis a pistol was cocked twice, and only policy prevented its use. Frank James has hundreds of friends that will never see him sacrificed, and will come to his aid at the proper time. If you are wise you will be careful.

(Signed) A. R. K.

The letter to Davis is written with red ink in a bold hand, and enclosed in an envelope of the Hotel Mesafe, San Antonio. It was evidently mailed at the Union depot. James' attorneys denounce the author of the letters.

Yesterday morning a farm laborer named Percy Flemming, aged 36, who lives near Deer park, went into "Little Mike's" on Yonge street and asked for liquor. Late in the afternoon his dead body was found in one of the ponds in the brickyards in the neighborhood. He was formerly employed in these yards. It is not exactly known how he came to get in the water, but it was said by some of the men that he went into bathe. He had his clothes on. Deceased leaves a wife and three children.

Pascoe, ex-president of the bible christian conference in Canada, who was sent to England to ask consent of the English conference to the proposed union, has sent a despatch to the Rev. E. Roberts of Toronto that consent has been refused by the English conference. The connexional committee was immediately summoned, and it was decided to call the ministers together in conference at Exeter to-morrow and Monday. As the English conference control the church property in Canada this action may block the way of the bible christians to union.

THE LAW EXAMINATIONS.

The First and Second Intermediate—The Plucked and Unplucked.

The first examination was held at Osgoode hall on Tuesday last, and the results were made known on Wednesday. Of 38 who wrote, some 12 were plucked. Those who receive over 75 per cent. are entitled to write for scholarships, there names being as follows: Brewester (Vic.), Hill (Tor.), Glass (Tor.), Godfrey (Trin.), Higgins and Cunningham.

The second intermediate examination was held Thursday. About 30 wrote. Of these 10 were plucked, and only two took more than 75 per cent. and were entitled to write for scholarships yesterday, viz., Smith and Patton. Of the law students who were up, the following passed without an oral: Mathewson, Jarvis, St. John, Jackson, Duncan and McDonald. Some of the papers were thought to be exceedingly "queer." For instance, the paper on real property was composed of seven question, and although Leith's Blackstone, the text book, is some 600 pages, still the examiner saw fit to only give four questions from it and three from the statute 107 R. S. O., which could be got up in an hour or so, which was not a very fair test of a student's knowledge, except to those who the said examiners "beuchants."

Lots Along the Don.

Ronald, Burgess & Co. will offer their lots on Morse street and Carlow avenue between the Kingston road and Eastern avenue for sale this afternoon at their auction rooms, 100 Yonge street. These lots have a splendid location, being within ten minutes' walk of the King street cars. The harbor commissioners have let the contract for straightening the Don so that the situation will not only be convenient but healthy and beautiful. The terms at which Messrs. Ronald & Burgess are offering their property are very low compared with the prices which are charged for property in other portions of the city. The value of property along the banks of the Don must greatly increase in value in a few months, on the completion of the improvements now in preparation. Considering the present low price of the lots and their future value, the investment seems a very profitable one.

Stupid Newspaper Blunders.

The Mail and Globe are stupid as well as clumsy. On several occasions recently they have referred to the missing Ludwig as a White Star steamer. The Ludwig belongs to a different line altogether, sailing between Antwerp and Montreal, while the White Star plys between New York and Liverpool. This annoying and inexcusable mistake caused temporary anxiety in the minds of a number of persons who had friends on the White Star steamers. Both blanket sheets should have a feast of mutton and cabbage for their stupidity.

The Engineers' Moonlight Excursion

The brotherhood of locomotive engineers held their annual moonlight excursion on board the Chicora last night. The many friends and members of the order showed up in fine style, as the crowded condition of the steamer attested. Everybody voted it a complete success, and indeed it was the most enjoyable of the many enjoyable affairs given by the brotherhood of engineers.

He Couldn't Keep the Bottle.

The conscience of the boy who stole the bottle of whisky, found on the body of the Indian Isaac Skye, seems to have troubled him so much so that he returned the bottle to Esplanade Constable Williams along with the following note:

ISAAC SKYE, THE INDIAN.

Trying to Learn Why He Committed Suicide.

The inquest on the body of the Indian Isaac Skye, which was found in the bay on Thursday morning, was held before Coroner Duncan and a jury at the morgue last evening. George Gibson, an Indian of Tuscarora, was the first witness sworn. The last time he seen deceased was on Tuesday in Caledonia. He was then on his way to Toronto to sell lacrosse sticks. He was sober at the time, but was in the habit of occasionally taking too much fire water.

John Harrington, who works in the Grand Trunk yard, was the next witness sworn. He stated that on Wednesday morning he saw deceased running from the Union depot towards the bay. He picked up his lantern and ran after him. After deceased crossed the railway track he fell and the switchman and Harrington held him down until he promised to go away quietly. They then let him up, but as soon as they did so he once more ran towards the bay. Harrington then ran for a policeman, and as he was doing so, on looking back, he saw the Indian stumble once or twice as he ran toward the water, but did not perceive him tumble into the bay. On returning to the wharf with a G. T. R. policeman they found a great deal of water splashed against the door, and surmised that the Indian had committed suicide.

Esplanade Constable Williams stated that on Wednesday morning he was informed that a man had been drowned in the bay at the foot of Simcoe street. Thither he repaired at 8 o'clock in the morning, but had not succeeded in recovering the body before noon. As the bay was very rough in the afternoon, search was discontinued until Thursday morning, at which time, after an hour's search, he recovered the body of the Indian about twelve feet south of Reeve's wharf. The body was then taken to the morgue, and on searching it with P. C. Breckenreid he found two bottles of whisky and a card stating that deceased's name was Isaac Skye of Tuscarora.

The jury, without retiring, gave the verdict that the deceased was drowned in the bay on the morning of August 23.

Enteric (typhoid) has taken a marked step in advance, amounting to two per cent. of all diseases reported. Typho-malarial shows likewise an upward tendency. Regarding the class of contagious zymotics, whooping cough is the only one appearing amongst the ten most prevalent diseases, and its tendency is downward. Measles, etc., have disappeared from the twenty most prevalent diseases. Amongst the diseases of which diarrhœa is the prominent sign a marked increase in diarrhœa itself is noted.
