10 MILES, ROSEDALE, IN 26.08

DAVE NASMITH'S PHENOMENAL BICYCLE RIDE.

Philadelphia Will Likely Lose to the Irishmen—Rosedale Cricketers Beaten By Brampton—The Canadian Amateur Athletic Records—The Baseball Record—General Sporting Gossip.

D. Nasmith, the crack long distance rider of the Toronto Bicycle Club, made an extraordinary record for 10 miles yesterday morning on the brick dust track at Rosedale.

Nasmith was out preparing for his trial on Thursday, when he will attempt to beat the world's records for all distances from 10 to 100 miles. Unfortunately there was only one watch held on him and the time cannot go as a record. Nasmith's trainer sent him off about 11 a.m., and the rider kept up a spurt for the entire distance. And at the conclusion everyone marveled at the phenomenal mark given out. The time announced was 26 min. 8 secs., and there is little doubt but that Nasmith will at least repeat the performance next Thursday, when he will start promptly at 1 p.m., and does not intend to dismount until he has finished his task. He will be paced by some of Toronto's fastest men, so that good time may be looked for. The affair is in the hands of the racing board of the T. B. C., which is a guarantee that everything will be properly arranged.

IT'S CLEVELAND SURE.

The final lawn tennis match between W. A. D. Grant and F. G. Anderson for the junior championship of the Rosedale Club was played yesterday afternoon, when Mr. Grant won. Score:

Grant beat Anderson 5-7, 7-5, 8-6, 1-6, 7-5.

THE CRICKET CREASE.

Brampton Defeats Rosedale By 176 to 161—Some Good Scores.

The cricket match between Brampton and Rosedale on the Toronto lacrosse grounds yesterday resulted in a victory for Brampton with an exciting finish. The feature of the game was the heavy scoring done by both teams. For Rosedale Forrester got 66 and carried out his bat Montgomery, Garrett and Bowbanks were the other double figure scorers. For the visitors Thauburn and Loosemore enjoyed a very lucrative partnership, earning 82 runs between them. Roe, Thredgold and Gallop also put together good totals, which swelled the total to 176, just 15 ahead of Rosedale. The wicket was a perfect one, which augurs well for the creases that will be played on next year at Rosedale. As usual the local men were slow in making their appearance in the field, and after, playing two substitutes finished the game a man short. The score:

THE AMUSEMENT WORLD.

Roland Reed at the Grand.

The admirers of Roland Reed were out in full force last night in attendance at the opening of his three nights' engagement at the Grand Opera House. The play "Lend Me Your Wife" has been produced here several times, but it was received with as much hearty laughter as at its first production. Mr. Reed and his company were all in good form and gave a capital performance of this highly amusing farce-comedy. At the end of the second act, when Mr. Reed was called before the curtain, the gallery did not miss the opportunity to call for one of his "funny speeches." Mr. Reed heartily thanked his audience for their kindness in receiving himself and company so well. He had always been well received in Toronto and his plays always went with animation in this city. It was an important thing for an actor to be en rapport with the audience, especially one performing farce-comedy. It was a satisfaction to his company and particularly to himself, a so-called comedian, to meet with such a hearty response. "For even a dog won't wag his tail," said Mr. Reed, "unless he gets some encouragement." He went on for a while, keeping the audience in the best of humor.

The Great Scharwenka Coming.

Every music student knows the name of Scharwenka, pianist and conductor, and composer of the world-wide known "Polish Dances" for the piano. The Messrs. Suckling announce this morning that they have arranged for his appearance here next Monday week in the Pavilion. With him will be her highness the Princess Lilly Dolgorouky, violiniste to her majesty the Czarina of Russia, and Sig. P. Delasco, basso, late of the Abbey-Grau Grand Italian Opera Company, and a grand orchestra of 40 performers under the direction of Mr. F. H. Torrington. A subscribers' list will be opened at the Messrs. Suckling' warerooms to-morrow morning, and those who put their names on it will have the first choice of seats and in the order of their subscription. No doubt Scharwenka will have a splendid reception upon this his first appearance in Canada.

Roland Reed in His New Play.

Mr. Roland Reed was waited on by a World reporter at the Queen's Hotel last evening, where he is a guest, and upon being questioned as to the new eccentric comedy which he is to produce for the first time on any stage at the Grand Opera House to-morrow evening said: "Of course it is a very difficult thing for any artist to predict with certainty the absolute success of a play; yet I cannot but think that in Walter S. Craven's comedy, 'Innocent as a Lamb,' I shall make the hit of my life. The part of Tobias Pilkington of the New York Exchange is one that I feel I can do justice to, and one which will do justice to me. I have chosen Toronto for the first production because I know the critical nature of the audiences here, and I feel if it will please them in Toronto it will be a success anywhere in America. The comedy is not a one-man play, every character stands out distinct from the other, and yet the combination is so judiciously interwoven that nothing seems out of place. The plot is a strong one, the comedy brilliant and the dialog bright. It will be presented with the utmost care, the ladies' dresses being marvels of beauty. In fact," said the great comedian, "I have left nothing undone that careful management and art could do to place it before the Toronto public in a thoroughly first-class and artistic manner."

"My Jack" at Jacobs & Sparrow's.

There was a large audience at the Toronto Opera House last evening and Walter Sanford's melodrama "My Jack" never received a more enthusiastic reception. The play is one that excites general interest wherever performed. The cast in this production amply met the requirements of the drama. F. Aug. Anderson as the Greek, Charles Prew, Frank R. Mills and Elizabeth Garth were heartily applauded for the gook work. The play is especially fine in its scenic and mechanical paraphernalia—the wreck and rescue on the open sea, an English ironclad man-of-war, and the explosion of the lighthouse on the Falmouth Rocks brought down the house owing to their realism. There will be the usual matinee to-day. "My Jack" will have a great run this week.

The Musee.

The Musee presents to its numerous patrons an unusually good program this week. Besides the stationary attractions the following are to be seen in the lecture hall: The Italian Gypsy Band discourses beautiful strains of captivating music peculiar to the gypsy race. There is a snake charmer, Mlle. Citc, who has a good collection of East India serpents and exhibits them most gracefully. We also see in this department Mr. James Wilson, surnamed the human balloon, the wonderful inflation of his breast breaking stout leather straps. In the theatre there is also a very good collection of artists. Among them are Tony Ryan, the mad musician, his specialty being a laughable burlesque on the xylophone. The Lowell Bros. perform feats of agility in the contortion line, and are followed by Miss Maud Revelle, in songs and dances. Mr. J. J. Morton closes the performance with his parodies on popular songs.

A Talking Horse.

J. H. Moore of Musee fame has wired Mr. Young, his local manager here, that he has engaged Mohamed, the talking horse, and that he will positively appear at the Musee Theatre during the week commencing Monday, Oct. 3. "Mohamed" is unquestionably the greatest marvel of the age, and is the only equine on the face of the earth since the time of Balaam that has been known to talk. Naturally enough people will think it incredible, yet that does not do away with the fact that it is absolutely true, just as much so as was the discovery of a boy who lived with two heads upon the one body. See this wonderful horse and be convinced.

Miss Alexander's Recitals.

Miss Jessie Alexander's annual elocutionary entertainment has become a feature in Toronto to those who appreciate refined and elevating platform declamation. Her success abroad during the past season in the fashionable drawing rooms of London must be gratifying to her many friends here, who will, no doubt, extend to her a hearty Canadian welcome on the occasion of her opening entertainment of the season at the Pavilion on Oct. 4.

ST. STEPHEN'S CHURCH Y.P.A.

The Winter's Session—Inaugural Meeting—Election of Officers.

The opening meeting of St. Stephen's Church Young People's Association was held last night in the capacious school room for the purpose of electing officers and committees for the ensuing year. The retiring president, Mr. John Canavan, who had occupied the chair for three successive years, delivered an eloquent valedictory, and was followed in the same strain by the energetic first vice-president, Mr. G. F. Lewis. A resolution of condolence was tendered the rector, Rev. A. J. Broughall, in connection with the sad death of the late Mr. Harry Broughall, who had been a bright and popular member of the association.

The election of officers was then proceeded with and the following were chosen:

President—J. Castell Hopkins.
First Vice-President—T. A. Andrews.
Second Vice-President—Dr. Dawson.
Third Vice-President—R. J. Brown.
Secretary—A. C. Johnston.
Treasurer—John Morrison.

Members of the standing committees were then elected, and the meeting was closed by singing the National Anthem.

Women and Missions.

The Woman's Missionary Conference in connection with the meeting of the Presbyterian Council will be held in Central Presbyterian Church, corner of Grosvenor and St. Vincent-streets, on Wednesday and Thursday. It will open on Wednesday at 10 a.m., when delegates from Great Britain and the United States will be received, and an address on training homes will be delivered by Miss Davidson, deaconess of the Church of Scotland. In the afternoon, beginning at 3 o'clock, greetings will be presented from the various woman's societies and addresses given by returned missionaries. On Thursday morning at 10.30 the conference will be continued, and subjects of interest to missionary workers will be brought before the meeting.

Editor World: Rapid transit is a most important thing now-a-days and I hope you will on this question as always be on this side of progress. Our good friends who think the trolleys travel too fast are wrong—they travel too slow. It is the duty of the people to accommodate themselves to what is certainly in the best interest of the city and its commercial prosperity. Note how soon the horses have become accustomed to the trolley. A few weeks have made them quiet and tractable where at first they were alarmingly obstreperous at sight of the novelty. Surely the human animal is not less intelligent! Life is all too short for what most of us have to accomplish, therefore why waste half an hour in a street car fifteen minutes should do? Time is money especially in a busy place such as Toronto is. Let the railway people and the council save us business men all the time they safely can and they will be doing the right thing for everybody. The suggestion to stop at the near side of crossings is quite right. By doing this there should be no danger of accidents as the cars would always be at slow speed going across intersecting streets. Array yourself on the side of rapid transit and use your valuable influence to bring the public into line with you. Yours,

RAPID TRANSIT.

Queen Victoria's German Side.

I heard an amusing story about England's Queen the other day. I don't think it has ever been published, but the authenticity was touched for. It seems that an English woman, whose name was given to me, is on quite intimate terms with the royal family, though she is without title; just a plain "Mrs.," and from a country family. One time she, with her little child, three years old, was lunching with the Queen. At the table were Princess Beatrice and several others. The Queen, in the course of the lunch, took up a chicken wing in her fingers. While she was enjoying the sweetness of the meat next the bone the little child looked up and quickly said:

"Pig-ee! Pig-ee!" Every one was horrified. The mother felt as if she would like to sink out of existence. The Queen went on for an instant with the morsel which she was holding in her fingers and then said:

"You are right, my dear. An English lady would not take a chicken wing in her fingers, but you must bear in mind that I am a German woman."

And she calmly finished the wing. The rest breathed a low sigh of relief and the mother and child were, on taking their leave, invited to come again.—Chicago Interocean.

Give Baby a Drink.

An eminent children's physician is reported as saying that infants, generally, whether brought up at breast or artificially, will, in warm, dry weather, take water every hour with advantage, and their frequent fretfulness and rise of temperature are often due to their not having it. In teething, spoonfuls of water given every hour or oftener cool and soothe the gums, and this with larger cooling evaporation, often stops the fretting and restlessness so universal at this period.

In teething and other disturbances the feverish condition demands more water to meet the extra evaporation from skin and lungs to keep the body cool. The young child may be parched with thirst, but be unable to tell or make known its wants. It is well to always test this; that is, whenever a child is uneasy give it a few teaspoonfuls of water, and if this is at all quieting, immediately, or after a few minutes, give more as often and as long as it is accepted and appears useful. If the water is reasonably pure no harm can come if not enough cold water is taken at one time to produce a chill of the internal organs of the body.

Orchestra in a Prison.

One of the largest orchestras in the world is at a prison in Pennsylvania. Here a nightly concert is given by what is probably the strangest orchestra ever known, consisting of about 300 performers who never see one another. This prison is perhaps the only one in the world where the inmates are allowed to cultivate the art of music and the privilege is deeply appreciated by them. The music begins precisely at 6 o'clock every evening and ends at the stroke of 7.—Pittsburg Despatch.

GREAT SNAKES.

Be Thankful That You Do Not Live Where These Reptiles Crawl.

Pythons are abundant in the Philippines, the species being identical with that found in Borneo. During our stay of 18 months in these lands we have heard many accounts of the enormous size attained by these snakes, and recently have obtained three fine specimens. The smallest of these measured 19 feet 11½ inches in length and 18 inches in greatest circumference. It had evidently been without food for some time and was in an emaciated condition, but was still a heavy load for two men.

The next in size measured 22 feet 6 inches in length and 24 inches in greatest circumference. The head was 6 inches wide at the angle of the jaws, and the mouth opened 13 inches without danger of the stretching of the skin or displacement of the bones, of which it is capable. The third specimen measured 22 feet 8 inches in length and 22 inches in greatest circumference. The gape was the same as the second specimen. In each case the stomach was entirely empty, and one familiar with such animals can easily form an idea of the enormous increase in size that would take place if gorged with food.

Above the length of 19 or 20 feet these snakes increase greatly in bulk for every foot in length, so that a snake 10 feet long looks small besides one 21 feet long. It is difficult to estimate the weight of an animal of this kind, and we had no means of determining it accurately. A quarter of it was a heavy lift for a strong man, and it was all that two men could do to drag it a few feet along the ground, one man being unable to do so. The second specimen displayed its enormous strength by snapping in two by a steady pull one of its fastenings—a rattan between one half and three quarters of an inch in diameter. The snake being securely fastened by rattans around the neck, two men and a boy who attempted to hold the tail were powerless to do so.

From the log in which the third specimen was caught 89 eggs were taken. They were white and nearly round, about the size of an ordinary baseball, and were covered with a soft, leathery shell or skin. They adhered to each other, forming a large mass, which had to be literally torn apart to separate them. So far as observed all were fertile, each specimen examined containing a living embryo about four inches in length. When discovered the snake was coiled upon its eggs, apparently incubating. Upon being removed from the log the eggs dried up rapidly. As the temperature in the log was noticeably above that of the atmosphere it is probable that the close coils of the snake prevented evaporation.

A snake this size could bring down a medium-sized buffalo, and could crush out the life of a man in a fraction of a minute, and we have no hesitancy in expressing the opinion that it could swallow him. We know of the case of a snake about this size swallowing a full-grown buck with antlers, a male deer of this species being larger around the belly than is a man around the shoulders.

If the stories told here about large snakes can be believed, the specimens described are small indeed in comparison with really large snakes, but we find that such snakes decrease greatly in size when brought in contact with the deadly foot-rule. An intelligent half-cast recently told us that his brother-in-law had killed, measured and skinned a snake 44 feet long. We did not wish to question the man's veracity, but heartily sympathized with the remark of a Spanish gentleman that 44 feet were a great many feet.—Scientific American.

Dust, Upholstery and Disease.

Householders in furnishing would do well to remember that the ordinary practice of covering a floor with carpet is not without its disadvantages, even its dangers. The particles which give substance to the pure search-light of a sunbeam as it penetrates the window pane are of the most varied character. Harmless as are very many of them, there are also many more possessed of true morbific energy and capable of almost unlimited multiplication. Any one can see, therefore, how, when sheltered in dusty woollen hangings, their upholstery and carpets, they render these articles veritable harbors of diseases The less we have of such the better, especially in bedrooms. Some practical deduction, naturally suggest themselves. As to curtains and carpets, it is but rational that they should, as a rule, consist of the smoother and harder fabrics which will bear thorough and frequent brushing. If thicker floorcloths and rugs be used, they should be such in size and arrangement that they can be readily taken up and beaten. It is but part of the same argument to say that as much of the floor as possible should be either varnished or laid with oilcloth, so as to allow of frequent cleaning. Cane and leather, for a like reason, are incomparably superior to the richest upholstery when we come to speak of general furniture. Some, perhaps, may imagine that in making these observations we treat this matter too much as a hobby. Only one circumstance, however, is required in order to convince any such of their real and practical significance, and that is the actual presence of infectious disease. When this appears all forms of cumbrous comfort in the apartment must give place not merely to a freer and simpler arrangement, but even to bare, sunlit and airy desolation.—Lancet.

Woman's Cruel Revenge.

There is a story of jealousy and cruel revenge in the Kolnische Zeitung, which seems scarcely credible. It is stated that at Amay, in the district of Huy, in Belgium, a young man was about to be married to a young lady, when he engaged in a flirtation with another. This was objected to by the young man's betrothed. One day a trip to the forest was arranged by the offended lady, with three female companions. The promised bride invited her rival to accompany them, which invitation was innocently enough accepted. The forest was invaded by the little party, and at a given signal the four city beauties fell upon the unsuspecting girl. They beat her black and blue, and dealt her a dangerous wound upon the head. Then with a cord around her, they drew her up to the bow of a tree. A letter-carrier passing at the time interfered, but he was set upon, scratched and bitten, and driven away. A second champion soon came up, and with the assistance of the postman put the women to flight. Great was the surprise of the new-comer when he discovered in the lady his sister. The girl still lives, but the doctors consider her life to be in danger.

How It Went Off.

The first time the Queen was taken by Mr. Downey, the photographer at Newcastle, his friends were very curious to hear how the operations had gone off. But the imperturbable Scotchman was very little excited about it, outwardly, at all events. "What did you say?" said a curious friend, afterwards. "What did she say?" asked another. "Well," said Mr. Downey, "I took her Majesty just as I wad take anny ither parson, and when I'd settled her, I said—'Wad it please your Majesty to put on a more favorable countenance?' and she said, 'Sairtainly, Mr. Dooney.'"
