Inspector Murray Seems to Have Solved the Murder Case.

THE SECOND GRAVE WAS DUG TUESDAY.

Theory is That Mrs. Orr Was the Victim of the Young Man's Lust.

Strong Evidence Against the Hired Boy Given by the Husband of the Murdered Woman at the Inquest Yesterday—The Young Man Upon Whom Suspicion Now Rests Wholly is But Seventeen Years of Age—He Turned Deathly Pale When the Body Was Found—The Horrible Condition of the Woman's Body as Shown by the Post Mortem Examination—Revelations Are Expected at the Inquest To-Day.

Galt, Ont., Aug. 18.—(Special to The World.)—The prospects of solving the murder of Emma Orr are brightening every hour. In fact, Detective Murray is now wearing the smiling face of a man who has achieved his purpose. Suspicion is now centered entirely upon James Allison, the hired boy, and that the Crown authorities are working towards him was clearly shown by the evidence given at the inquest to-day. While yesterday three theories were seriously considered, to-day there is but one theory, and that is that James Allison killed Emma Orr and that it was a lust murder. The boy's full name is James Alfred Allison. He was born within two miles of Glen Morris on May 20, 1880, and is consequently 17 years and 8 months old. His father's name is Alexander Allison. He was born in Freeport 42 years ago. His mother's maiden name was Annie Elizabeth Hance. Her mother is dead and her father, a respectable old man, is still living in Galt. There are four other children, James being the eldest. They live in a frame house on the banks of the river, a short distance from Main-street. The father is a carter and James worked with him until he got the job at Orr's in March last. This is the first time he ever worked out. His younger sister Maggie worked at Mrs. Orr's for a few weeks this summer. Allison's mother says that James was a good boy; that she never had much trouble with him, and that both Anthony Orr and Mrs. Orr said that he was the best boy that ever worked for them. He went to school very little and his mother says he can neither read nor write. She says he can make some marks that look like his signature. Every eye was on Allison when Chief Ahearn brought him into the court room to-day, but this did not seem to disturb the boy in the least. He glanced about, sat down and was about the most unconcerned person in the room. His head and face are a study. His low, retreating forehead and close-set eyes tell of a low intellect and animal cunning. Heavy jaws, large mouth and thick lips indicate determination and sensuality. He had only been in the hands of the police once before and that was when he was 7 years of age and had a penchant for pears. He took a few that did not belong to him, but was let off by the magistrate. His father says he would get a little ugly when he licked him and that a scolding always did him more good than a licking. The most startling evidence at the inquest to-day was Anthony Orr's statement of how he shadowed Allison and overheard him talking to himself down in the field, and exclaiming: "Oh, my! Oh, my!" as though in great mental agony. The Crown's theory is that he dug the grave in the swamp on Tuesday morning, when he went for the cows, and came back half an hour after the cattle arrived at the barn. It is thought that he hid the spade in the swamp the day before. Premising that Allison killed Mrs. Orr, it is still a question whether he committed the deed before or after going to Barrie's with the cow. It is all a question of time, and George Barrie's evidence at the inquest to-morrow will be very important, showing when Allison arrived at his place, how long he stayed, his demeanor and when he left. The Crown authorities seem to favor the theory that he killed the woman before he left for Parrie's.

AT THE INQUEST.

Anthony Orr Tells How Young Allison Acted When the Body Was Found.

Galt, Ont., Aug. 18.—(Special.)—The inquest on the body of Mrs. Anthony Orr was resumed in the Council chamber at the Town Hall before Coroner Radford at 1 o'clock this afternoon. The prisoner was taken to his home across the river before the inquest opened and allowed to put on his Sunday-go-to-meeting clothes. He appeared looking clean and tidy, and exhibited no signs of fear or emotion. Barrister John R. Blake appeared for the prisoner. Crowds sought admission, but as there was only room for about 200 spectators many were turned away. County Crown Attorney Bowlby appeared for the Crown, and Dr. Vardon sat beside Coroner Radford as associate coroner.

John Orr the First Witness.

John Orr, brother of Anthony, was the first witness. He lives on the farm next to Anthony. He last saw Mrs. Orr alive on Sunday afternoon, the day before the tragedy. He found the dead body in the corn patch. His attention was first called to the spot by fresh earth thrown up on either side. He called Douglas Lillico's attention to it, and several persons in the house came out. He simply took out one spadeful, when he saw part of the dead woman's dress. He then went to notify the police. When the body was exhumed it was found to be in an advanced state of decomposition. Witness knew nothing about how she came by her death. The body was lying face downward in the shallow grave. He sent for Allison, who was at the barn when the body was found. Allison came and looked at the grave and turned pale. Mr. Wilks remarked to witness: "Did you see how he looked?"

The Woman's Husband.

Anthony Orr, husband of deceased, was the next witness. He testified that he was married twelve years ago last June. His wife lived with him constantly, except for a few days about four years ago when she ran away with Mulholland. There were three children. He had never quarreled with his wife, and she was a good housekeeper. Allison had worked for him since March 15. Witness was the first person up on the morning of the tragedy. Allison was called and sent for the cows. Mrs. Orr prepared breakfast, which was partaken of about 6.30. Allison hitched up the team, and witness and his little son drove off to Andrew Orr's with the sow. He left Mrs. Orr, Allison and the two children at the house. He had instructed Allison before leaving to take two cows to George Barrie's. Witness left at about 7 o'clock and returned at about 10.15. He met Allison and his oldest girl. The baby was on the verandah. Allison was standing at the small gate

SCIENTISTS MADE WELCOME.

Reception at the Pavilion Could Not Have Been More Cordial to the Visitors.

CANADA'S LOYALTY BRINGS FORTH CHEERS.

Proved to Be Just the Right Key Before This Loyal Audience of Members of the British Association.

Welcome Addresses on Behalf of the Dominion, the Province of Ontario and the City of Toronto—Mayor Shaw Makes a Good Speech—Many Distinguished Guests on the Platform at the Pavilion—Happy Remarks by Lord Aberdeen, Lord Lister and Lord Kelvin—Sir John Evans Delivers His Opening Speech in Massey Hall—The Sections Go Into Full Blast To-Day.

This great Dominion, this, its banner province, and this, the Queen City of the West, have severally welcomed the scientists of the great Empire of which they are a part. And a decided patrician flavor, such as this country is not accustomed to, pervaded the reception meeting. It was held in the Horticultural Pavilion, and never before, and perhaps never again, will the old hall hold within its walls so much that is distinguished by reason of birth, of knowledge and of political and municipal honor. The addresses, both those of welcome and those of reply, were unique in at least one particular. Never before has a Toronto audience heard a speaker arise in one of her forums and begin with a salutation couched in such terms as "Your Excellency, Mr. Mayor, My Lords, Ladies and Gentlemen."

It was, indeed, a goodly array of talent and a stately galaxy of femininity. It is scarcely necessary to mention that the hall was profusely decorated. It goes without saying that where so much that was British was to be looked upon, the old flag could not be missing. Around the walls and in every conceivable nook and corner were tastily arranged Union Jacks, and, what is uncommon, Union Jacks exclusively. The ground floor was given up entirely to the members of the association, while the galleries were occupied by curious and interested non-members.

Their Excellencies Arrive.

The expectant audience gazed with an amusing disregard for the rules of etiquette at the various British ladies as they sauntered in and occupied a double row of easy chairs at the front of the hall. Finally, everybody arose in respect, for the representatives of majesty were approaching. His Excellency advanced to the chair on the platform, followed by Mayor Shaw and the Right Hon. Lord Lister. Her Excellency the Countess of Aberdeen arrived and took one of the centre chairs, immediately beneath the chairman. Lady Kirkpatrick sitting beside her. The vice-regal party were heartily applauded and Glionna's Orchestra rendered the National Anthem, with all standing out of respect.

The Distinguished Guests.

In addition to those already mentioned, there were on the platform: L F Vernon Harcourt, London; Major P A Macmahon, Artillery College, Woolwich; Prof Edward S Morse, Salem, Mass.; G Griffith, assistant general secretary, Harrow, Eng.; Prof Henry T Bovey, McGill University, Montreal; Dr Donald MacAllister, St. John's College, Cambridge, Eng; Prof A MacAllister, Cambridge, Eng; Prof Ayrton, City and Guilds of London Central Technical College, London, Eng; Hon G W Ross, Minister of Education, Toronto; Prof Ira Remsen, Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, Md; Prof Wyndham Dunstan, Imperial Institute, London; Hon G W Allan, Moss Park; Prof J V Jones, F R S, University College, Cardiff; Prof John Perry, F R S, Royal College of Science, London; Prof George F Barker, Philadelphia, Pa; Hon A S Hardy, Premier of Ontario; H P Bowditch, M D, Boston; Sir James Grant, Ottawa; Dr Simon Newcomb, Washington; Chancellor Burwash, Toronto; E Sidney Hartland, F S A, Highgarth, Gloucester; Sir Sandford Fleming, Arthur Harvey, Toronto; Prof M Foster, Great Shelford, Cambridge; Charles S Minot, Provost Trinity College; O A Howland, M L A, Toronto; Capt H F Wyatt, A D C; Paul Carms, Chicago; Prof Loudon, Toronto University; Sir William Turner, Edinburgh; Dr McCallum, Col Sweny, ex-Mayor Kennedy, R T Coady, City Treasurer; John Blevins, City Clerk; Adl Crane, Saunders, Lamb, J K Leslie, Preston, J J Graham, R H Graham, Hubbard, Beale, A F Rutter, William Burns and P G Close.

Ladies on the Platform.

Beside and behind Her Excellency the Countess of Aberdeen and Lady Kirkpatrick sat Lady Kelvin, Lady Evans, then the Misses Lister, Mrs. Hardy, Mrs. E. B. Osler, Mrs. Byron E. Walker, Mrs. Roberts-Austen, Hon. James and Mrs. Bryce, Mr. and Mrs. Goldwin Smith, Capt. A. T. Kirkpatrick, Principal Parkin and a host of clerical, legal and other local celebrities.

Welcomed by the Dominion.

Mayor Shaw, immaculately attired, announced that the British Association was to be welcomed by the Governor-General on behalf of the Dominion. He regretted to announce that illness had prevented the expected attendance of Lieut.-Governor Sir George Kirkpatrick.

His Excellency was cordially received as he arose. He had observed that the people of Canada were not forgetful of the proper way to entertain strangers, and more particularly distinguished strangers. To strangers personally a cordial welcome was always granted, but to an association of such distinction as the one before him the welcome would, he felt assured, be more than hearty. He expressed, in continuing, his regret at learning of the illness of Sir George Kirkpatrick, whose name had become a household word throughout Canada. [Applause.] It was not in a formal or conventional manner that the public would express their sorrow. The manner in which he and Lady Kirkpatrick had already entertained a number of members of the association was a fit token of their appreciation of the work of the whole association. The occasion of the visit of the association to the far-off town of Aberdeen had left pleasant recollections in his mind. He knew, therefore, what pleasure the people of Toronto might anticipate. He hoped the members of the British Association would long store up in their memories their visit to Toronto.

LORD KELVIN.

On Behalf of Toronto.

His Excellency having been generously applauded, His Worship Mayor Shaw arose to convey the civic welcome. He delivered himself of his duty admirably, speaking as follows:

Your Excellency, My Lords, Ladies and Gentlemen,—The British Association for the Advancement of Science was pleased to accept the invitation to hold one of the annual meetings of its members in Toronto. This is the second time the members of the British Association have visited Canada in a body. Once, in 1884, they met in the City of Montreal. Now, in 1897, the Jubilee year, the City of Toronto is honored by their presence. We believe the impulse given to science in Canada by the meeting in Montreal will be repeated here.

It is my pleasant duty to welcome the

THE FIGHTING IN INDIA.

At Least 3000 Tribesmen Were Engaged on Tuesday.

THEY WOULD NOT RISK CLOSE QUARTERS

And Scampered Off When They Saw Their Line of Retreat Threatened.

Lieut. Greaves of the Lancashire Fusiliers and Lieut. Maclean, Adjutant of Guides, Were Killed, and Capt. Palmer Was Seriously Wounded—The Whole Border in a State of Fanatical Unrest—General Blood Directed the Attack and the British Column Carried the Entrenchment With Great Dash—A Further Advance of the British Probable—The Afridis and Orakzais Have Risen, and the Situation Is Somewhat Serious.

London, Aug. 18.—A despatch to The Times from Simla says that at least 3000 tribesmen were engaged in yesterday's battle. The batteries prevented them risking a fight at close quarters, but about 1000 held on for some time. Then, as the infantry attack developed, they fled, and, when the other 2000 saw their line of retreat threatened, they moved rapidly away. Lieut. Greaves of the Lancashire Fusiliers and Lieut. MacLean, adjutant of guides, were killed, and Capt. Palmer was seriously wounded. Lieut. MacLean met his death while trying to carry away the body of Lieut. Greaves. The despatch adds: "The whole border still seems to be in a state of fanatical unrest."

General Blood directed the centre of the attack, Col. Meikiejohn occupying the heights to the right of the enemy's position. The Swatis were strongly entrenched and maintained a steady fire, but the British column carried the entrenchments with great dash and the enemy fled. It is believed that General Blood will order a further advance to-day (Wednesday). There is no longer any doubt that the Afridis are deeply involved in the rebellion, which as yet is in no wise suppressed. Such is the condition of things now that the slightest check to British arms would be the signal for a general revolt.

Two Other Tribes Have Risen.

Simla, Aug. 18.—News has been received here confirming the report that the Afridis of the Bazar Valley and the Orakzais have risen. The latter are reported to be descending in force on the Kurramthull-road, on which is situated the Sadr Post. This post is held by a native officer and 30 Sikhs. A detachment of cavalry has left Kurram, with instructions to ascertain the movements of the Orakzais.

The reinforcements sent to Kohat have reached that place. If the Afridis rise generally, the British forces will be compelled to temporarily abandon Lundi and Kotal.

The force of British and Indian troops under the command of General Blood is now in camp at Kotal. The British cavalry yesterday pursued the enemy as far as Barikot, fifteen miles beyond Chakdara.

The defection of the Afridis is regarded as being especially serious, as they have been loyal during many Indian outbreaks, and guarded the Khyber Pass for the British during the Afghan War. They are one of the most powerful tribes on the frontier.

About one hundred insurgent tribesmen were killed in the attack made by General Blood, the British commander, yesterday upon the entrenched positions in the hills of the Swat Valley. General Blood brought his field guns into action against the stone entrenchments of the enemy, demolished these works and the insurgent tribesmen fled. About 3000 of the latter were engaged.

Afridis Threatening Jamrud.

Simla, Aug. 18.—It is believed 10,000 Afridis are threatening Jamrud, but the place is considered proof against attack by any force without artillery. Before venturing to attack Jamrud the Afridis, it is expected, will try their strength on the smaller forts in Khyber Pass.

Additional reinforcements of infantry, cavalry an dartillery have been ordered to proceed from Simla to Poshawar to-day, while troops are being moved forward to replace those sent to the front. The work of mobilization is proceeding smoothly.

The Porte Denies the Impeachment.

Constantinople, Aug. 18.—The Turkish Government issued a denial of the alleged understanding said to exist between the Porte and the Ameer of Afghanistan to foment an insurrection in India by preaching through the fanatical priests a holy war or Jehad against British rule in India.

FAURE OFF TO RUSSIA.

Bombs Were Expicded on the Route of the French President and Caused Great Excitement.

Paris, Aug. 18.—The departure of President Faure on his visit to the Czar at St. Petersburg to-day was marked by a scene of the greatest excitement, accompanied by the circulation of the wildest kind of rumors. After his departure a bomb exploded along the route the President had followed, and, although no damage was done, and in spite of the fact that nobody was hurt, the most intense excitement prevailed for a long time afterwards and the sensational reports had it that those who exploded the bomb had intended an outrage of a more serious nature.

The President received an ovation from the public when he started on his journey to Russia, large crowds of people lining the route from the Elysee Palace to the railroad station, and they greeted the President with enthusiastic cries of "Vive la Republique, Vive la Russe, Vive Faure!"

Ten minutes after the President's departure, while the crowds were returning along the route traversed by M. Faure, a bomb exploded at the corner of the Boulevard Magenta and the Rue Lafayette, in front of the Restaurant Duval. The report caused a panic in the neighborhood, and all sorts of wild stories were circulated, based on the statements attributed to Anarchists that their next effort would be an attempt upon the life of President Faure. Upon investigation by the police, however, it developed that the explosion caused but little damage and that nobody was hurt. The bomb was of cylindrical form, was covered with yellow paper, and appears to have contained a black substance, possibly coarse gun powder, mixed with large-headed nails, similar to those usually found in the roughly constructed infernal machines used by the less intelligent class of Anarchists. Fragments of the bomb were taken to the Prefecture of Police, where they were submitted to a thorough examination upon the part of experts, who pronounced the bomb to have been a comparatively harmless affair.

President Faure was accompanied on his way to Russia by M. Hanotaux, the Minister for Foreign Affairs, and by Admiral Besnard, the Minister of Marine.

Later in the day the officials of the Prefecture of Police, who had been investigating the fragments of the bomb, declared that it had consisted of an iron tube, 30 centimetres long and 5 centimetres in diameter. It was placed in an empty store, close to the corner of the Boulevard Magenta and the Rue Lafayette. Some of the nails contained in it were thrown a few feet on to the sidewalk. Scraps of paper were found about the scene of the explosion, inscribed "Vive la Liberte" and "Vive la Pologne," apparently pointing to the fact that the author of the explosion to-day was the same individual who caused the recent explosions in the Bois de Boulogne and on the Place de la Concorde.

That Pigeon Was From Andree.

Christiania, Aug. 18.—M. Mahuron, who prepared Herr Andree's balloon, says it was arranged to start the first carrier pigeon twenty-four hours after the ascent, and he believes that the bird shot between North Cape and Seven Islands by one of the crew of the sealing vessel Alken was probably the first sent out.
