Definite Political Action Necessary to Antagonize the Liquor Traffic.

A MOST ATROCIOUS PUBLIC OUTRAGE.

The march of civilization has involved such rapid strides in general education and such extraordinary progress is made in the arts and sciences, that the latter part of the nineteenth century stands out as the wonder of all nations, and marks this age as the greatest epoch in the world's history. But the machinery of government still hitches and creaks with numerous imperfections, and to make it work smoothly and effectively in the interest of the people, many improvements are absolutely essential.

An old maxim says: "Necessity is the mother of invention." Urged by necessity and with high moral aspirations for our country's welfare, we are led to inquire, does the magnitude of the injury produced by the sale and use of alcoholic beverages justify the invention or formation of a new combination of the people to oppose it?

In the first place, we ought to realize the dangerous and injurious character of the liquor traffic, and the terrible injury produced in society everywhere by the use of alcoholic beverages. In the second place, we know that all revolutionary reforms must of necessity come through an awakening of the people to their personal responsibility. The people must therefore learn the important and significant fact that the liquor traffic is the great octopus on society, the monumental curse of our country—a curse without one mitigating feature; that this traffic embodies diabolism unparalleled by any other evil, and certainly is the most dangerous, destructive and intolerable nuisance that has ever been allowed to exist in a civilized country. [illegible] human life and happiness that bears any comparison to this hideous curse of alcoholic poison. Wherever it lifts its hydra head of criminal horrors it dwarfs all other outrages and shames into silence the most aggravated crimes of history. No age or condition in life is safe from its terrible ravages; no character or position in society is too exalted to be reached by its baleful influence. Our homes, religion, education property, and all the most sacred ties of wives and mothers, and the endearing claims of childhood are blasted and blighted by this vile monster of vicious selfish cruelty. It is a self-evident fact that the devil, with all his infernal ingenuity, can never devise a more subtle and terrible array of evils to degrade humanity and curse the world than those caused by the use of alcoholic beverages.

What aggravates the outrage of the liquor traffic and intensifies the evil is the fact that the people themselves are wholly responsible for the existence of this terrible scourge. The only practical method, therefore, that will reach and destroy this monster of crime and misery is the people's fiat of prohibition and entire suppression by law, and the only effective way to secure the enactment and enforcement of that law will be found in a combination of the people for this purpose at the ballot-box. Every important and vital interest of the nation therefore, demands that the liquor traffic be outlawed, and outlawed immediately by a rally for its entire suppression by the strong arm of the law faithfully enforced.

But how easily could a combination exterminate this monster of viciousness! The people in the majesty of their political powers could hurl this terrible evil of liquor selling into annihilation, and this, too, with one stroke of their mighty will. Will they do it? It must come, and come now. Every day, every hour, a cry of anguish goes up from desolated homes, ill-treated, diseased and beggared children, uttering piteous appeals to "save the perishing."

The traffic now dominates society because liquor-sellers know and act on the assumption that moral suasion only, even with earnest entreaties, sermons and prayers, does not count. Their only dread is "penal statutes, hedged about by legal measures of prevention" or, more definitely expressed, absolute prohibition by law. Therefore, as life, property and personal safety are wholly dependent on the methods we employ to preserve the purity and dignity of the franchise, and as the traffic debauches the voter, pollutes the ballot and corrupts elections, we must suppress the saloon for the sake of good government by the ballot. A community that depends on law for protection should and must insist on having the kind of law that will protect. Therefore demand is made for prohibition of the liquor traffic as the imperative need of society, and the only method to save our homes and country from its destructive ravages must come and only will come through the political action of the people.

MILLIONS FOR DEFENCE!

NOT ONE CENT FOR TRIBUTE.

SAFETY OF CANADIANS ASSURED

When Paine's Celery Compound is Used.

It has ever been the boast of Britons, that they never shall be slaves. The Briton's heart warms to freedom; his blood is aroused when human beings become mere chattels—bought and sold like animals. British subjects will suffer patiently even extreme taxation for the raising of millions for defence; but, never, never will they pay tribute to any foreign master.

British subjects—men women and children—are slaves too often! What do we mean? Just what we say—that we are too often miserable bondmen and bondwomen, when we might reval in freedom and strength.

Thousands of us are slaves to some trouble or disease that makes this earthly pilgrimage burdensome and oppressive.

Why suffer longer? We have near us a mighty and powerful deliverer and rescuer known as Paine's Celery Compound, that quickly banishes our assailing and tormenting enemies that come too often in the form of rheumatism, neuralgia, dyspepsia, indigestion, constipation, heart disease, nervousness, sleeplessness and blood diseases.

Why encourage and pay tribute to such death dealing masters? Our bodies should be free, clean, pure, and fitted for the full enjoyment of true life. That world-renowned prescription, Paine's Celery Compound, gives perfect health, strength and life. It removes every trace of disease from the body, and purifies the blood.

This is the season to banish every weight and oppression. Let the renovating work be commenced now, so that summer and the hot weather may be met with strong and vigorous bodies and clear heads. Paine's Celery Compound has in past spring seasons saved thousands of sufferers; it will do the same for you to-day, weary and sick mortal.

When you decide to use the great health-giver, see that your dealer gives you the kind that CURES. Ask for Paine's Celery Compound, and see that it has the trade-mark, the "stalk of celery." No other preparation will suit your case.

Bicycles and Roads.

It is estimated that 500,000 bicycles will be sold the present year, to such enormous proportions has the craze for the "wheel" attained. I do not suppose that any great number of these will go into the hands of farmers, and yet the farmer is likely to be as greatly benefitted by this piece of mechanism as any other class of citizens, for while country people have for generations been dragging along over poor, rough and muddy roads, no sooner has this great army of bicyclers arisen than there has arisen a powerful movement [illegible] try for better roads. Never before has public attention been so sharply drawn to this matter of wretched highways and, what is more to the purpose, substantial progress has been made, not only in arousing public opinion, but in actually forcing a beginning to be made in scientific road construction. In many instances states have taken hold of the matter and are constructing state highways, while elsewhere counties have undertaken the same work. Nothing succeeds like success, and the experience with these new roads is sure to lead to the building of others near them, and so the good work will spread.

A New Club.

Name Suggested for a New Social Organization in London.

LONDON (special) April 27—It has been facetiously suggested that a new social club in process of organization in this city should be entitled "The Dodd's Kidney Pill Club" as the present members are all enthusiastic advocates of that remedy, and in common with many other citizens declare that in all cases of kidney trouble no other agent has been found so completely effective. Most Londoners have at their fingers' ends the particulars of the many marvelous cures through the use of this specific. In every drugstore in the city the medicine is kept in large quantities and warmly recommended.

Over the triple doorway of the Cathedral of Milan, there are three inscriptions spanning the splendid arches. Over one is carved a beautiful wreath of roses, and underneath is the legend:

All that pleases is but for a moment.

Over another is sculptured a cross, and these are the words underneath:

All that troubles is but for a moment.

But underneath the great central entrance in the main aisle is the inscription:

That only is important which is eternal.

I am here, gentlemen, explained the pickpocket, as the result of a moment of abstraction.

And I, said the incendiary, because of an unfortunate habit of making light of things.

And I, chimed the forger, on account of a simple desire to make a name for myself.

And I, added the burglar, through nothing but taking advantage of an opening which offered in a large mercantile establishment in town.

But here the warden separated them.

Some years ago, when a new railway was opened in the Highlands, a Highlander heard of it and bought a ticket for the first excursion. The train was about half the distance to the next station when a collision took place, and poor Donald was thrown unceremoniously into an adjacent park. After recovering his senses the neighbors asked him how he liked his ride. "Oh," replied Donald, "I liked it fine, but they have an awfu' nasty quick way in puttin' ane oot."

An Irishman with his donkey wishing to get over a bridge where there was a toll of a penny, and not having the penny, thought of a plan to get over free. Un-harnessing the ass, he put him up on the cart, and, taking the donkey's place between the shafts, proceeded to cross the bridge. Upon being asked for the usual penny, Pat, pointing to the donkey on the cart, replied, "Begorry, sur, an' wud ye moind axin' the driver?"

Scraps for Odd Moments.

Conductor—Did I get your fare? Passenger—I guess you did. I didn't see you ring it up.

Yeast—Did the Colonel draw his sword in defence of his country? Crimsonbeak—No; only a pension.

City man—What do you think is the hardest thing to raise on a farm? Hayseed—The money to work it.

Mrs Scrapleigh (during the fight)—Now, have I made myself plain? Mr Scrapleigh—No, you were born that way!

The reputation of Ayer's Sarsaparilla as a blood medicine, is maintained by daily cures.

I suppose your wife keeps things in order at home? Yes, she keeps me and my hat on the rack most of the time.

Mother—And are you sure that he loves you? Daughter—Of course I am. Can't I see how he stares at me whenever I am not looking at him?

Star Boarder—There is an interesting article in to-night's paper, Mrs Jones. Landlady—What is it? It is a notice of a bargain sale of blankets.

Minards Liniment is the best.

Waiter (to guest who is absorbed in the menu)—What do you wish to eat, please? Absent-minded Professor—I haven't time to talk now. Ask me after dinner.

First Citizen—Jones is a howling Jingo. I wonder if he'd go to the front in an emergency. Second Citizen—He would, if the emergency consisted in an attack on the rear.

Tommy—Paw, what sort of orders are sweeping orders, that the papers talk about? Mr Figg—Just wait till your mother gets to house-cleaning.

Leading medical authorities indorse Ayer's Sarsaparilla as the best blood medicine.

Irish Father—Shtop that noise! Ditto Child—I ain't makin' any. Irish Father—Well, be gobbs! make some thin. Don't be shtandin' quietly there makin' me out a liar!

She—Marry John Smedler! If there wasn't another man in the world I wouldn't have him. Uncle George—Considering the opportunities that would give him for selection, I think you are right.

Boy—Teacher, I wish you would make that girl stop winking at me. Teacher—Why don't you look somewhere else? Because if I do she'll wink at some other boy.

Young Hopeful (to his sister)—I say, Nell, pass me the butter. Nell (in a tone of sisterly reproof)—If what, Johnnie? Johnnie (goaded to desperation by the [illegible]

Tramp—Here's a pie I stole off your windy, mum. I want to bring it back. Housekeeper—Well, I'm glad you've got some conscience. Tramp—Yes'm. I'm tough but I don't dare to eat a strange mince pie.

Minards Liniment Cures LaGrippe.

Teacher—Thomas, I saw you laugh just now. What were you laughing about? Tommy—I was just thinkin' about something. You have no business thinking during school hours. Don't let it occur again.

Well, here's the money you've been tormenting me for, said a rich uncle to his spendthrift nephew. Use it wisely, and remember that a fool and his money are soon parted. I don't know about that, replied the young scapegrace. I've been coaxing you more than a week for this.

Minards Liniment the best Hair Restorer.

Hicks—It would be a comforting thing if the dead could revisit the earth to tell us about the great beyond. Wicks—I don't know about that. Why, when a man returns from a few weeks in Europe he becomes a pestilential bore for years afterward. Could one return from heaven or the other place, there would never be an end to his gab.

The young man who had travelled began:

And there I stood, the abyss yawning at my feet.

Was it yawning before you got there, or did it begin after you arrived? asked the young woman who had never been away, and then the young man found that he had just time enough to catch the last car.

Mr Huggins and Miss Dimple had been discussing marriage in an impersonal manner, when the young lady announced her preference in the following way: The man I marry must be handsome, talented, amiable, courageous, and without a fault of any sort whatever. This is very sudden, replied Mr Huggins. I thoroughly appreciate the honor you have conferred upon me, but you will give me a week to consider, I suppose?

"Birdie," said Mrs McGinnis to her fashionable daughter, "what were you sitting up reading, last night? Was it a novel? Tell your mother." "Yes, ma, it was a novel." "And who writ it?" "Dumas, the elder." "Now, don't tell me that. Who ever heard of an elder writin' a novel that you'd sit up half the night to read. You may be a new woman, Birdie, but you don't fool your mother any."

The latest story of a newspaper man at a Salvationist meeting is as good as the one which preceded it. It will be remembered that General Booth, once seeing a man rise near the platform with papers in his hand preparing to leave, asked him if he were saved. The individual said no, he was a reporter. This time the scene is laid in Melbourne during the General's Australian tour. A reporter rose at a critical point in the service to go out. Brother, cried the General, you will be dammed if you go now. Replied the reporter: I shall be dammed by the city editor if I don't go. But the Lord is greater than the city editor, said the General warningly. The city editor does not think so, was the retort.

In cases where dandruff, scalp diseases, falling and grayness of the hair appear, do not neglect them, but apply a proper remedy and tonic like Hall's Hair Renewer.

They ain't no such thing as a real Christian, said the man with the patched jeans. Don't you think they ain't, said the man with the soft hat turned up behind. I knowed one myself. Huh! What ever did he do? Never miss goin' to meetin? Oh, I ain't layin' so much on that as on when it comes time to work on the roads he went out and did a real honest day's work, just as if he was workin' on his own farm.
