WARRANT FOR BROKERS

Two Cobalt Mining Men Are Charged With Embezzlement.

Cobalt, Ont., April 24.—Warrants have been issued for E. P. Kadleck and M. W. Crane, brokers, trading under the name of Kadleck & Crane. It is alleged that they have embezzled between $4,000 and $5,000, all in hundreds and from poor people.

The firm took an office in Cobalt about New Year's, and began to trade in Porcupine and Cobalt stocks. Making some profits for holders, they attracted many clients. They took big chances, and when the Porcupine boom burst they could not pay for the stock, and a writ was issued for $25,000. Kadleck, the head of the firm, on one pretence or another, held back certificates for which checks had been given, and it is estimated that between $4,000 and $5,000 is owing in town today.

Kadleck left on Good Friday, telling the clerk that he was going to the King Edward Hotel, Toronto. He was last seen checking a trunk to Buffalo. Both men have been in camp for years. Crane formerly held a responsible position position at the Nipissing mines, while Kadleck figured in the early days of the camp as a promoter and made several good stakes.

He comes of a good Cleveland family. Crane was last heard of in Montreal.

PORTUGAL AND CHURCH.

Lisbon, April 24.—A meeting of the bishops of Portugal has been called for May 2. It will be held in the patriarch's palace at San Vicenzo under the presidency of the patriarch of Lisbon, and will discuss the attitude to be taken on the recently promulgated law respecting the separation of the church and state.

A telegram has been received from Rome stating that the Vatican is awaiting the decision of the Portuguese bishops before determining upon what action it shall take. The separation law was promulgated on April 21, and as its provisions are already known, it was received with indifference.

The law provides for entire liberty of all sects, and cedes to the clergy free of cost all property necessary for the celebration of public worship.

SERVICE OF PRAISE IN ST. ANDREWS'

Artistic Event Last Night Under the Direction of Mr. C. E. Wheeler.

A very large number of local music lovers enjoyed one of the treats of the season last night at St. Andrew's Church, when the choir, under the direction of Mr. Charles E. Wheeler, rendered the beautiful sacred cantata, "Olivet to Calvary." The soloists were Miss Edith de Muth, soprano, of Detroit; Miss Lou McDonald, contralto; Mr. Ernest Atkins, tenor; Miss Libby Smith, soprano; Miss May Mason, contralto, and Mr. W. A. McCutcheon, basso.

Appropriate to the season, the choir loft and pulpit were beautifully decorated with large Easter lilies and the young ladies all wore white.

Splendid Programme.

The programme throughout was splendidly rendered, and the work of the choir was faultless. Their rendition of the cantata brought out all its wonderful beauty.

"Olivet to Calvary" recalls simply and reverently the scenes which mark the last few days of the Saviour's life on earth, and some of the reflections suggested thereby. The rejoicing of the multitude with hosannas and psalms, the view of Jerusalem from the steep of Olivet, the lament over the beautiful city, the scene in the temple, and the lonely walk back over the mount at night, form the chief features of the first part.

Part II. opens with the Supper of the Passover, at which Jesus washes his disciples' feet, and gives to his friends the new commandment of love for one another as the sign of true discipleship. From this the scene passes to the infinite pathos of the Garden of Gethsemane, the sudden appearance of the hostile crowd, Jesus forsaken by his disciples, his utter loneliness among ruthless foes, the tumult before Pilate in the judement hall, the passage of the cross, the tragedy and triumph of Calvary.

Artistic Solos.

The solos were, without exception, most artistically rendered, and harmonized perfectly with the beautiful choruses. It was the first time a London audience has had an opportunity of hearing Miss Edith de Muth, who is soloist in the First Congregational Church in Detroit. Miss de Muth has a voice of unusual richness, and her work last night won for her the admiration of all who heard her. Her rendition of the aria, "I Will Extol Thee," was one of her best numbers.

One of the greatest favorites of the evening was Miss Lou McDonald, whose beautifully rich contralto voice was heard to great advantage in a variety of numbers, which brought forth its splendid qualities. Her singing of "The Cry of Rachel," "Eye Hath Not Seen," and "The Child's Prayer," were all most artistic. Her singing was a positive sensation.

Miss May Mason took a number of the solos in the cantata most acceptably.

The fine soprano voice of Miss Libby Smith was heard to great advantage in a number of pieces requiring much skill.

The work of Mr. W. A. McCutcheon, soloist at St. Andrew's, was very fine. He has a splendid bass voice, and it was heard in a number of very beautiful solos.

Mr. Charles E. Wheeler, under whose direction the numbers were rendered, and who played several fine selections on the organ was the recipient of the very heartiest congratulations on his excellent work.

RULES OF ROAD FOR ALL VEHICLES

No One Can Hold the Center of the Highway to Keep Rig in the Rear.

MUST DIVIDE THE ROAD

When a Vehicle Wants to Pass You From the Rear, Pull to the Right Side Until it Has Gone By.

The motor "bends," after a winter of irritating inhagnation, are again coming into their own. The roads about the country are rapidly improving, and as a result of the last few days' traffic, the tire-damaging bumps have been worn off sufficiently to permit rides of any length the driver cares to undertake.

The Governor's road, Dundas street east, is really the best of the lot at present, particularly between Thamesford and Ingersoll, where the winter has failed to damage that beautiful and somewhat historical stretch of highway.

Dividing the Road.

The "going" of course on the average road is still rather rough when the motorist is compelled to give half the thoroughfare to another. A further difficulty is that some residents of the rural districts take a peculiar delight in holding the centre of the road. Autoists, with the exception of a few irresponsibles, abide by the rules of the road. Many people of the rural districts also conduct themselves in a perfectly agreeable manner, but there are a few whose actions result in many difficulties.

Room for All.

There is plenty of room for all on every highway, if common courtesy is displayed by drivers of motors and horses. Every autoist on approaching a nervous horse, especially in charge of women, should slow down to a walk or if necessary draw to one side of the road and "stall" his motor. It will be found that frightened horses will invariably quiet down when spoken to reassuringly by some occupant of the machine.

What To Do.

On the other hand, farmers on being signalled by a motorist of his desire to pass from the rear, should draw to the right side, allowing the autoist to pass on the left side of the road. Each, of course, should pass to the right when running in opposite directions.

The statutes relating to the use of highways provide a penalty for any person impeding the progress of another by refusing to give half the road, and should any person care to bring the matter into court, an example would no doubt be made, as this is an offence which constables find great difficulty in securing a complainant.

Follow the Rules.

These rules of the road are especially important in the early part of the season when the roads are in bad condition, and accidents may result from negligence.

ROUNDHOUSE DESTROYED.

Danbury, Conn., April 25.—The roundhouse, repair shop and three engines of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad Company at this place, were destroyed by fire this morning with a loss of $50,000. The fire started in the oil room of the roundhouse from an unknown cause, and spread so rapidly that the engines could not be removed.

CHAIN OF SLEUTHS USED IN PURSUIT

Shadowers of the Ironworkers Were in the City of Straits.

DETROIT MEN IN CASE

Burns Expected There Soon to Confer With Downey and Fox, Who Saw the Outfit.

Details of the chase which resulted in the capture in Detroit of Ortie McManigal and James McNamara, the structural ironworkers now on their way to Los Angeles to face many indictments, read like the most romantic novels. So intricate was the chain by which one pursuer followed another that the two ironworkers and the men who were following them did not come face to face until they met in the same hotel here. And yet the men who were wanted were right where they could be located, while they were travelling from Chicago to Toledo and from Toledo to Detroit.

So ticklish was the job that "stool pigeons" were made the connecting links, after McNamara and McManigal had been located in Chicago. When they left there, they were followed by a single "stool pigeon," but he in turn was shadowed by a second "stool pigeon," while Raymond Burns, son of William J. Burns, kept him in sight.

Recognized by Handkerchief.

At Toledo, it was thought by the younger Burns, these two men would be met by three others who were wanted in connection with the Los Angeles Times dynamiting, Dave Kaplan, H. A. Schmidt and John J. McNamara. He hurriedly telegraphed the chief of police in Chicago to send two detectives at once. Detective Sergeants Bettinger and Reed were called up at 11 p.m. and told to catch an 11:30 train, which they did. They were to be recognized at Toledo by the fact that one of them either carried a handkerchief in his hand or else had his wrist bandaged.

All three detectives then sat down to watch the hotel in which McNamara and McManigal were staying and to await the expected arrival of the other three men whom they wanted. But the three did not appear, while the two already there suddenly left for Detroit.

They were trailed to this city in the same way as from Chicago to Toledo. All five reached Hotel Oxford, on Woodward avenue, and registered in succession. Seeing that there was evidently nothing to be gained by a further delay, the detectives placed McManigal and McNamara, who was using the name of Sullivan, under arrest and hustled them to the Michigan Central station in an automobile.

Objected to "Kidnapping."

McManigal offered no objection to this, professing willingness to face the charge of safe blowing, which they were told was the one against them. Sullivan, however, had developed a mind to resist when the station was reached, and he made this so apparent that Patrolman Frank Carey, on duty there, approached and asked what was the matter.

"These fellows are trying to kidnap us," complained Sullivan.

The detectives then showed their Chicago badges, but Sullivan said he wanted more than that before he would go. So the party went to police headquarters. When they had been taken to the detective bureau, Lieut. Lally assigned Detectives Downey and Fox to investigate the case. The Chicago officers were recognized by Lieut. Lally and others, and this, with their statement that the men were wanted in Chicago for five or six safe blowing jobs, was considered enough to hold the men.

Dynamiting Outfit.

It was not until they had been taken below, to the first precinct station, where they were registered and searched, that the keys to their suitcases were found. With these the three out-of-town detectives and Detectives Downey and Fox went to Hotel Oxford, opened the cases, and found the burglars' kit and dynamiting outfit. This consisted of five storage batteries, two magazine revolvers, a short rifle with Maxim silencer, two time clocks, special kodak, rolls of copper wire, rolls of bandages, wires with fuses attached, dry cell batteries, book with information as to principal cities, burglars' tools of all descriptions, insulation tape and cartridges. All these things were examined in the hotel and then replaced in the suitcases, which never went east of Woodward avenue.

Because they are the only Detroit men who were present at this examination, and also because they followed the case in its entirety in this city, Detectives Downey and Fox are expected to prove important witnesses in the case. It is largely for the purpose of seeing them that William J. Burns planned to come to Detroit.

Up to the time of the return of the detectives from the examination of the suitcases and their contents, Sullivan and McNamara had refused to sign an extradition waiver.

Case Against Them Here.

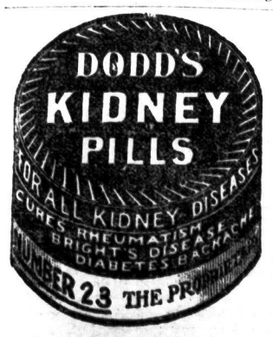
"We can't make you go back to Chicago," said Detectives Downey and Fox, "but if you don't want to waive extradition and go back with these officers, we will hold you here tonight and tomorrow go into court and get out a warrant for you for having burglarious tools in your possession. It's a dead case against you, and you will probably get as much for that as for these jobs in Chicago."

McNamara realized the truth of this and evidently decided to take his chances on punishment in Chicago, knowing that he could probably prove an alibi on any safe-cracking charge. Both men then accompanied the two Chicago city detectives and Raymond Burns to Chicago.

"It is not customary for officers to give out all their evidence when they go after prisoners in another state," said Detective Downey yesterday. "We often have to get men out of another state on some pretence."

Police authorities, however, resent the action of the outside detectives in not saying a word to the Detroit police until they were obliged to do so.

"Of course we would not expect to know all their secrets," said Capt. McDonnell, "but they came in and tried to take the men in our jurisdiction without saying a word. Detroit officers never go into another city or state and try to get men without at least notifying the officers there."



CONSERVATIVES WRATHY OVER THAT PREDICAMENT

Foolishly Emphasize Absurdity of Position by Debating Matter in House.

Ottawa, April 24.—The six members of the Opposition who at an early hour on Saturday morning placed themselves in the ridiculous position of voting for the amendment proposed by Mr. Sealey of Wentworth approving of the reciprocity resolutions with the exception of fruit and vegetable schedules succeeded tonight in emphasizing the absurdity of their position. In Billingsgate language on the part of some they attacked the Globe as the chief sinner for calling attention to their blunder in today's report, declared that it was "a deliberate, inexcusable, false and slanderous statement" of the proceedings, and in their anxiety to hit back called the Globe all manner of names, and even threatened to have the writer of the report haled before the bar of the House.

The answer to their attack came in clear-cut and unequivocal statements from the Deputy Speaker, who was presiding at the time of the vote in question, and from the Minister of Public Works and other members who were present at the time, to the effect that the report of the proceedings as printed in the Globe was absolutely accurate, and that the Globe's representatives could not be expected to interpret the intention of the Opposition who voted for Mr. Sealey's amendment other than as an indorsation of its exact wording.

ASK UNIFORM INCREASE

Toronto Firemen Not Satisfied With Board of Control Figures.

Toronto, April 24.—The members of the fire department are making a determined effort to secure greater salary increases than those recommended by the board of control. The schedule recommended for the minor officers and the rank and file included a uniform increase of $50, from district chiefs at $1,700 per annum, down to first-year firemen at $525.

The firemen affected by the proposed scale want a uniform increase of $75 per annum instead of $50.

They have organized, and have appointed committees to interview the members of the council to persuade them to change the board of control's recommendation. As the expenditure of money is concerned, a two-thirds vote will be required, but the interviewers declare that aldermen already have pledged their support.

The principal argument used is that the firemen are entitled to the same uniform increase that was given to the policemen below official rank. This was $75 for first, second and third-class constables.

THE FIRST BOATS.

Montreal, April 24.—The steamships Sicilian and Royal George are the first two boats to navigate the gulf this year. The former boat was reported 90 miles southeast of Cape Race at noon yesterday, while the latter was reported 23 miles east of Cape Race at 8 o'clock.

The ice in the river is almost all gone out except from Vaurville to Point Aux Trembles. The river is reported clear from Quebec to Montreal on the north side, and the two boats, the Sicilian and the Royal George, are expected to arrive in port here Friday.

Winnipeg, April 24.—Wasil Iwaszuk is at the point of death as the result of a self-inflicted wound after he had shot Mrs. Mary Sedyruk, a married woman, with whom he had been living. This he attempted to do this afternoon. It is probable the woman will recover, but Iwaszuk is expected to die at any moment.
