HE CHALLENGES THE THUNDERER

Candidate for Commons Dares Times to Bring a Libel Suit.

London, Sept. 26.—An extraordinary element has been introduced into English politics in connection with the candidacy of Harry Marks in the pending bye-election in the Isle of Thanet. Mr. Marks, who from 1871 to 1883 was a newspaper man in New York, and who now is the wealthy chief owner of the Financial News, of this city, has been adopted by the local Conservative Association as their candidate. This action caused a disagreement, several prominent local Conservatives refusing to support him on account of his failure in 1890 in a criminal libel action which he brought against a man who circulated various charges. The local committee investigated the matter privately and declared that Mr. Marks was a fit person to return to Parliament, where he sat in 1895-1900, representing St. George, Tower Hamlets.

The agitation, however, increased, was much vented in the press and was brought to a head by an editorial in the London Times on Thursday which broke away from party ties and declared it was "better for the Government to lose a seat than be associated in the cause of unionism with a man who gives no public, adequate refutation of such charges as have been publicly made against Marks. There are incidents in his career which, so long as they are not explained, ought to debar the electors of Thanet from conferring the honor and trust of Parliament upon him."

The Times' unusual action in advising the Conservatives to vote against the Government candidate on such grounds created a sensation in political and other circles and attracted public interest in the contest to a degree and in a personal way that few bye-elections ever call forth. Many people thought Mr. Marks would withdraw, but on the contrary, he retorted with a bitter personal attack on the Times and Mr. Walter, its proprietor, declaring that aspersions on his honor were entirely due to the alleged exposure by the Financial News of the "dishonest methods" employed in the sale of the Times' edition of the Encyclopedia Britannica.

"For some years past," say the Financial News, "Mr. Walter has been engaged in company with an American gentleman named Hooper in the sale of copies of an out-of-date encyclopedia, its price above its value. For the first time in its history one of the greatest of English newspapers has been employed for the furtherance of a personal feud."

Both from the election platform and in his newspaper Mr. Marks challenged the Times to bring a libel suit against him for his characterizing its encyclodepia methods as "dishonest."

The matter, to which lengthy editorials have been devoted, gained further interest by the publication today of a letter from the Archbishop of Canterbury to the Vicar of Margate, replying to one in which the vicar said he felt he must oppose Mr. Marks on "other than political grounds." The archbishop says he is ignorant of the facts in relation to Mr. Marks and, therefore, must not be understood as expressing an opinion in this particular case; "but," he adds, "I am firmly persuaded that if our public life is to be maintained at its high level and our public men are to justify the confidence we have been accustomed to place in them, voters must see to it that no political or partisan enthusiasm leads them to record votes for men whom they do not trust or respect. Unless we adhere unswervingly to this principle there will be a lowering of the tone and integrity of our public life and no temporary victory at the polls for one political party or the other could compensate for such a national disaster."

Origin of the Trouble.

The opposition of the churchmen is all the more extraordinary because Mr Marks' Liberal opponent is strongly backed up by the Nonconformists and is bitterly fighting the church authorities over the education bill.

Henniker Heaton, Conservative member of Parliament for Canterbury, and the father of imperial penny posts, has become involved by writing to the press and saying that James Lowther, the former member for the Isle of Thanet, before his death, Sept. 12, earnestly advocated Mr. Marks as a candidate to succeed him. Several of Mr. Lowther's friends now write to the papers declaring that Mr. Lowther always opposed Mr. Marks.

The charges over which all the trouble has arisen were brought in 1890, when Mr. Marks instituted proceedings against a man named Butterfield, who had charged him with "robbing, ill-using and deserting a woman, with whom he had lived several years previous in New York," and that Marks was exploiting London after overdoing New York.

The jury found the libel was true, but the judge expressed emphatic dissent with the verdict.

Pains in the Back Almost Constantly

NOW ENTHUSIASTIC IN PRAISE OF DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS BECAUSE THEY CURED HIM.

Mr. W. Gilroy, Blenheim, Ont., general merchant, states: "I am rather enthusiastic in the praise of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and believe I have good reason to be. For several years I was a great sufferer from kidney disease and had pains in my back almost constantly. I tried a great many remedies, but did not succeed in obtaining more than slight temporary relief.

"A friend of mine advised me to try Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and I did so with great satisfaction. I had not taken half a box before I began to feel better and now realize that I have entirely recovered. I often wonder now why people go after new-fangled remedies when this tried and proven medicine is so easily obtained and so certan to cure."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. To protect you against imitations, the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box.

IT REACHES THE SPOT.—There are few remedies before the public today as efficacious in removing pain and in allaying and preventing pulmonary disorders as Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. It has demonstrated its powers in thousands of instances, and a large number of testimonials as to its great value as a medicine could be got were there occasion for it. It is for sale everywhere.

It takes from ten to twenty acres of range land to fatten a single steer.

CAPTURED THE CRUSADER

A British Ship From Oregon to Shanghai Taken by Japs.

San Francisco, Sept. 24. — The Merchants' Exchange has received a cable message from London stating that the British steamer Crusader, bound from Oregon ports for the far east, has been captured by the Japanese and taken to Hakodate.

The British steamer Crusader, reported captured by the Japanese and taken to Hakodate, cleared from this port on Aug. 31 with 2,880,000 feet of lumber and 3,000 bundles of lath. Her cargo was valued at $26,650. The vessel was under charter to the Pacific Export Lumber Company and the cargo was consigned to merchants in Shanghai and Taku.

A C. P. R. STRIKE

700 Workmen at Winnipeg Shops Gone Out.

Winnipeg, Sept. 24.—The demand of the allied mechanical trades employed on the C. P. R. for an increase of wages, culminated in a strike at noon today, when the men, about 700 in number, working in the Winnipeg shops, laid down their tools and walked out. The boilermakers, who were out on strike a few days and since returned to work on account of the company agreeing to their terms, are prepared to walk out again if necessary, to support the other trades.

IRISH REFORM

Lord Dunraven Tells of It in Tim Healy's Paper.

London, Sept. 24.—The whirligig of time is surely bringing about strange changes in the political situation in Ireland. This week we have that greatly respected Irish Unionist landlord, Lord Dunraven, telling us in the Dublin Independent (Mr. Tim Healy's organ), the origin and purpose of the new Irish Reform Association. He and his colleagues who brought about the landlord and tenant conference, which led to the land purchase act last year, saw the good that might be done by the conference committee if the spirit of conciliation then awakened could be kept active in promoting social good will. The sentiment which was restricted to the passing of land reform is to have an opportunity of making itself active in other directions. For the first time, Irish landlords, now that the personal and selfish object to home rule has been removed by the land purchase act, begin to see as the rest of their countrymen see, the Irish grievances.

Lord Dunraven says: "We have affirmed the principle of self-government because Ireland is best able to manage her own local business, and because the devolution of power would relieve the Imperial Parliament. We acknowledge the whole system of Irish administration is extravagant and wasteful and that the money is not spent as the people of the country desire." Lord Dunraven and his committee of landlords are not content to remain in Ireland, and be subject to Dublin Castle, which is virtually crown colony rule. They would make a national demand for a safe measure of local government—not separation, of course — and he pleads pathetically for a speedy solution of the not insuperable difficulty, "for while we are quarreling as to the exact measure of self-government, the race is disappearing under our eyes." In England there is not much, if any, opposition to Lord Dunraven's patriotic movement, except on the part of the Times, which is irreconcilable where Ireland is concerned.

THE BALTIC MANEUVERS

Kaiser Finds His Coasts Vulnerable to Great Britain.

Berlin, Sept. 26.—The great military and naval maneuvers which took place during last week along the Baltic coast brought many surprises, most of these of an unpleasant nature, because they proved beyond any doubt that in case of war an enemy who possessed a strong navy would be able to land troops almost anywhere along the Baltic coast, and the German army would not be able to prevent the destruction of many important but not strongly fortified seaports along the coast.

Though the greatest efforts had been made to establish an effective coast-guard, which it had been thought would be able to detect the enemy's squadron in time to concentrate strong military forces on any threatened point and repulse a landing force, it was proved that this could not be done, and that it would be comparatively easy for a power like England to inflict considerable damage in case of a sudden outbreak of war before troops enough could be brought together to beat her off.

The result of the experiments made will doubtless be that new demands will be made by the Government for millions for fortifications at all important points along the northern coast line, demands which will be utterly opposed by the Socialists in the Reichstag, as will also the demands for an increase of the German army.

The splendid results gained by the Baltic squadron during the maneuvers won the admiration of the Kaiser so much that, forgetting his love for the army, that after the naval review at Bunsbuettel, he could not find words strong enough to praise the officers, and ended his speech with the words: "When I ascended the throne I found a navy in which the officers did not have a sufficiently strong feeling of belonging to their war lord.

"I have succeeded in changing this. The naval officers of today know that they are my officers; that they belong to me personally, and that the navy is my navy."

For these words the Kaiser has not only been strongly criticised by the press, but the speech has also been resented by several of the other monarchs and princes of the empire, who think they also have some part in a navy which has been paid for with money raised by taxing their subjects.

A PILL FOR GENEROUS EATERS.—There are many persons of healthy appetite and poor digestion who after a hearty meal, are subject to much suffering. The food of which they have partaken lies like lead in their stomachs. Headache, depression, a smothering feeling follow. One so afflicted is unfit for business or work of any kind. In this condition Parmelee's Vegetable Pills will bring relief. They will assist the assimilation of the aliment, and used according to directions will restore healthy digestion.

IRISH FINANCIAL COUNCIL PROPOSED

Sensation in London Over the Scheme Recommended by Lord Dunraven.

London, Sept. 25.—The report of the committee of the Irish Reform Association, which was adopted at a meeting presided over by Lord Dunraven at Dublin on Friday, was issued tonight.

The report outlines an important scheme for the devolution of the Irish Government in finance and local business.

It suggests the constitution of an Irish financial council, composed of 24 members under the presidency of the Lord Lieutenant, and with the Chief Secretary for Ireland as vice-president, twelve members to be elected by groups of existing parliamentary constituences and twelve to be nominated by the crown; one-third of the members to retire every three years.

The functions of the council will be to administer the $30,000,000 expended annually on Irish services, Parliament, however, retaining a controlling power, enabling the House of Commons to reverse the council's decisions.

The report further suggests that a statutory body should be created, consisting of Irish representative peers and Irish members of the House of Commons, in addition to the proposed financial council, and to which should be delegated all private bill legislation affecting Ireland and all other Irish business that might be referred to it by Parliament.

The report concludes with suggesting the submission of its proposals to a royal commission.

London, Sept. 26.—Except for the avowedly home rule morning papers, which comment on the surprising fact that opinion should have veered so far in a few years as to permit a body of landlords to propound what is virtually a scheme of home rule, Lord Dunraven's proposals, embodied in the report of the committe on organization of the Irish Reform Association, is universally condemned. The Morning Post declares "it is fraught with mischief." The Standard says: "The sponsors for the plan are a body of amateurs, not representative of the Irish people. Sensible Unionists regard the report as an amiable dream."

MAIN CRATER BURSTS

Novelist Marion Crawford Tells of Display by Vesuvius.

Naples, Sept. 26.—I have just had an interview with F. Marion Crawford, the famous American author, in his beautiful villa at Sorrento, which so narrowly escaped being destroyed by a tornado the other day. He was in excellent spirits, but evidently impressed with the imposing sight of Mount Vesuvius wrapped in flames, which he had witnessed all night.

"Late last night," Mr. Crawford said, "the volcano, which has emitted clouds of smoke, accompanied by a rain of very fine ashes, suddenly seemed to explode with a tremendous report, which was haerd a hundred miles distant, and immediately after that the great new crater on the western side of the mountain seemed to collapse.

"Streams of molten lava are flowing from this crater, and the fiery streams already threaten the houses and vineyards on the side of the mountain. The main crater also shows signs of activity, emitting flames and smoke and throwing red hot rocks of immense size thousands of feet into the air.

"Old guides familiar with the volcano declare that this main crater looks as if a rupture might take place any minute. Should this happen, both the observatory, located near the crater, and the new electric railroad up the side of the mountain will surely be destroyed, as will also many thousand dollars worth of vineyard property, where the harvest of the grapes has been suddenly abandoned by the terrified peasants.

"It is safe to say no person in Naples closed an eye all night; the whole population of that city went outside the city to look at the awe-inspiring sight which presented itself to their eyes. The whole immense plain surrounding the volcano seemed transformed into a fiery lake, illuminating with its red glare the neighboring villages and even the distant Gulf of Naples, emitting thousands of brilliant sparks. By the light of the eruption the terror-stricken inhabitants of Resina, Portici and Torre del Greco could be plainly seen leaving their houses.

"Even here at Sorrento there is a great deal of apprehension, many people being very nervous after the destruction wrought by the great cyclone, which nearly wiped out our little town a few short weeks ago. Personally, however, I do not worry, as Professor Semola, of the observatory on the volcano, has declared that even should the eruption surpass in violence any now remembered, Sorrento is in no immediate danger, as the lava will probably flow in another direction. In the meantime we are, however, prepared for the worst, and ready to leave at very short notice."

THE GENIAL SULTAN

Captures the British Fleet With Gifts.

Constantinople, Sept. 24.—The Sultan has just given evidence of his generosity and cordiality in a manner to evoke great surprise. The occasion was the visit of the British fleet to Turkish waters. No sooner was the fleet signaled than the unusual welcome began.

Over a million cigarettes were sent on board by the Sultan for the officers and men.

Large sums of money were sent to the Governors of Smyrna and Beyrout by the Sultan himself for the entertainment of officers. The police received the strictest orders to watch over poor Jack and to afford him every protection and help from the harpies of eastern ports, and in no case were the sailors to be interfered with.

At Smyrna, for the first time for many years, an official ball and reception were given, which were the finest ever seen in Levantine waters. At Constantinople fowls, geese and turkeys, as well as vegetables and fruit, were sent on board the Surprise and Tyne in such quantities from the Sultan's farms that the decks were littered, and the officers begged that no more be sent.

The admiral took 36 officers with him to Constantinople on the Surprise, and not one of them was allowed to spend a penny. They were almost choked with dinners and champagne.

At the state banquet on Wednesday the Sultan excelled himself by showing unwonted good humor. He received Sir Compton Domville and Sir Nicholas O'Connor both before and after dinner — an unusual proceeding — and during the banquet had Sir Compton on one side and Sir Nicholas on the other.

The fleet has now gone to Salonica, and his majesty has sent a money chest down there against the fleet's coming.

More than 31,500 persons paid for admission to Shakespeare's birthplace last year.

TRADES CONGRESS CLOSES

The Proposed Labor Defense Fund Was Dropped.

Montreal, Sept. 25.—The Trade and Labor Congress of Canada concluded its week's convention on Saturday and adjourned. The next meeting will be held in Toronto. A lot of business was disposed of at Saturday's session. The congress disapproved of the concession made by the Government to the Grand Trunk Pacific. The auditor's report was then adopted. In the report of the committee on laws, the doubling of the per capita tax was recommended. A discussison, mainly against the 100 per cent increase, followed, and two amendments and a substitute for the whole were introduced. In the vote the amendment to the amendment and the substitution were both lost, and the first amendment advising a 50 per cent increase was carried. The committee on the establishment of a labor defense fund and labor bureau reported that on inquiring of the several unions what contributions they would be willing to make, it was found that the total contribution would be much too small, and the committee recommended that the idea of the fund and the retaining of a permanent solicitor be no longer entertained. Resolutions were also adopted condemning the Government for failure to pass the union label bill, and for its assisted immigration policy, and the Ontario Government was also condemned for not carrying out its pledge to the labor interests.

ST. KITTS' MYSTERY SOLVED

Epidemic Probably Due to Decaying Vegetation.

St. Catharines, Ont., Sept. 26.—The peculiarity in the taste of the city water the last few days is explained by the discovery of great masses of decayed vegetation at the bottom of the lower reservoir. The weeds are being cleaned out. It is thought that this was the cause of the epidemic of sickness here a week ago, many hundreds being affected.

Strange Coincidence.

New York, Sept. 24. — Hardy B. Durham, a well-known horse owner and trainer, has dropped dead at Sheepshead Bay race track. He had just stabled his favorite horse, Dekaber, after watching the animal at work on the track. A strange coincidence was connected with the horseman's sudden ending. Last Saturday at Brighton track, Dekaber won a race, beating Ostrich in a close finish. When the latter animal was led back to his stable, at Sheepshead, the foreman, Gus Hanan, asked the stable boy if he had won. Learning that the horse, upon which he had wagered a large sum, had been beaten by Dekaber, Hanan threw up his arms and fell dead.
