Editorial Notes

For the New Year.

May the angel that redeemeth from all evil bless abundantly and richly our lads and lasses throughout the coming year. May the grace and favour of the great God compass them in life. May He [illegible] every one of them help in every [illegible] May He uphold them [illegible] May He [illegible] throughout this year, [illegible] in the days of their youth, leading them by the way they should go, [illegible] they daily walk in the Lord and [illegible] their strength. May the New Year [illegible] one in which they shall in their spiritual and temporal things [illegible] forward, rise up and [illegible]

As We Look Back.

THE annals of the work for the past year (the twenty first in the history of Dr. Barnardo's Canadian work) add another chapter to the record of steady and successful advancement than each previous year has witnessed. A greater number of young people than ever before have been placed out and given a start in life, a larger total of application has been received and on all sides we [illegible] in the individual [illegible] of our boys and girls [illegible] ranging from [illegible] that [illegible] plished and the [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]
