THE TORONTO WORLD

WEDNESDAY MORNING, JAN. 2, 1884.

A CHRYSANTHEMUM PARTY.

The Most Fashionable of Flowers in its Favorite Clime.

Japan Correspondence Boston Transcript.

"The emperor and empress request the pleasure of your company to see the chrysanthemums," said the invitation. The guests were received at the palace and passed before the imperial pair, being presented in turn and receiving a slight bow of recognition from each. The Mikado is of medium hight, with black hair and full beard, an immovable pale face and a quick, restless eye. He was dressed in a dark-colored hussar uniform with white trimmings. The empress, who is quite petite, was dressed in a court costume of scarlet brocade. The reception hall opened to the gardens and finger-boards indicated the paths to be followed. Fine old trees, ponds, rustic bridges, old stone lanterns, beds of flowers, pretty tea houses, wide spreading dwarf trees three or four feet high, and long bamboo sheds filled with chrysanthemums, formed but a few of the attractions of the scene. Little tables were found at intervals, each with a pretty lacquer box of cigarettes on it, and a keeper leading a pair of superb Siberian bloodhounds was a feature. A moderately long walk through winding paths brought the guests to a large plateau, reached by a short and rather steep ascent. Reaching the top of the elevation, a large area of flower beds was found—all of chrysanthemums in all shades—while in ornamental bamboo sheds were thousands of the loveliest and choicest specimens imaginable of this superb flower, which grows in great perfection in Japan. All colors, shapes and variations were here in profusion, several bushes had upwards of 300 flowers each, and one something over 400. Probably the display of chrysanthemums was the finest in the world. Some time was spent in admiring the flowers, chatting and listening to the music, when the imperial party led the way to a beautiful bamboo pavilion, fully 130 feet long, decorated with festoons of white and red silk, and the supporting columns being covered with masses of flowers. In this fairylike structure tables were spread, loaded with all the delicacies, both in and out of season.

A Western Girl's Wedding Outfit.

From the Boston Herald.

The trousseau of a belle from the far West, which is being made at the establishment of a fashionable dressmaker in Boston, is remarkable for the elegance and variety of costumes. Wealthy western people never do anything by halves, and the wedding, which is to take place early next month, will be attended with great eclat. The fiancee is the daughter of a senator, and is related to the Lincoln family; her future husband is one of the wealthiest men in that part of the country. The following are some of her costumes which have been designed here: The wedding dress is of very rich materials, combining white satin with velvet and point lace. The petticoat has an elaborately embroidered front, in a design of roses of white velvet and silver, finished with Vandyke points that fall over frills of lace. The court train of white satin has a ruching of the same around the edge. Point lace is used in profusion on the satin corsage, which are open in front, and the sleeves are merely short puffs of lace. Pale blue corded silk and tulle compose a charming evening dress. The silk skirt has a drapery of tulle, embroidered with nasturtiums, that crosses the front. The princess back is of the silk which forms a long train, and the low corsage has the front embroidered to correspond with the skirt in the rich colors of nasturtiums, making a very effective garniture. A dinner dress, that is as novel as it is elegant, shows cream-colored velvet brocade, combined with dark green velvet. The front is of velvet brocade, dark gray velvet draped at one side over the white satin petticoat forms the train, which is detached. An applique trimming of cream velvet roses ornaments the corsage of green velvet, which is finished with a high Medici collar. The short sleeves are puffings of figured white lace. There are three handsome black costumes.

Makes a Difference.

From the Detroit Free Press.

"So you have been fighting again on your way home from school?" "Y-yes, sir." "Didn't I tell you that this sort of business had got to stop!" "Yes, pa, but—" "No excuses, sir! You probably provoked the quarrel!" "Oh, no! no! He called me names!" "Names? What of it? When a boy calls you names walk along about your business. Take off that coat." "But he didn't call me names!" "Oh, he didn't. Take off that vest." "When he called me names I never looked at him, but when he pitched into you I—I had to fight." "What! Did he call me names?" "Lots of 'em, father! He said you lied to your constituents, and went back on the caucus and had—" "William, put on your coat and vest, and here's a nickel to buy peanuts! I don't want you to come up a slugger, and I wish you to stand well with your teacher, but if you can lick that boy who says I ever bolted a regular nomination or went back on my end of the ward don't be afraid to sail in."

The Fool.

Ivan Tourguenoff's Prose Poems in Century.

There lived a fool in the world. For a long time he remained content and happy; but slowly rumors reached him that everywhere he was held to be a brainless idiot. Grieved was the fool, and began to think how he could stop these slanders. A sudden idea lightened his poor, darkened brain, and without delay he began to execute it. He met an acquaintance on the street, who praised highly a renowned painter. "Mercy!" exclaimed the fool, "this painter is almost forgotten. You do not know that? I did not expect to find you so naif. You are behind the time!" His acquaintance blushed and hurriedly agreed with the fool. "What a beautiful book I read to-day!" another acquaintance said to him. "Beg pardon are you not ashamed? This book is good for nothing, all have long ago abandoned it." And this acquaintance also made a haste to quickly agree with the fool. "What a marvelous man is my friend, N. N.!' said a third acquaintance to the fool. "Why!" exclaimed the fool, "N. N. is known to be to be a scoundrel; to have robbed all his relatives! Who does not know that? I pity you." The third acquaintance did as the others, and forgot his friend. Whosoever or whatsoever was praised in the presence of the fool he made always a similar reply, adding sometimes the refrain: "And you believe yet in authorities?" "Malicious, captious man!" began the fool's acquaintance to say of him, "but what a head!" "And what a tongue!" added others. "Ah, he is a man of talent!" It ended in the publisher's asking the fool to control the critical section of his paper; and he began to beguile everybody, without changing his expressions or exclamations. And now he who enveighed so much against authorities is himself an authority, and the youth worship and fear him. And what are the poor youth to do? If even it is not proper, generally speaking, to worship, fail to do it here and you will be pronounced stupid. Fools can make their way among cowards!

Woman's Strength.

Ah, man: where is your boasted strength
When trials press around you?
When storms come thick upon your head,
And floods seem like to drown you?

'Tis then you search for some warm nook
To hide your form so human;
You gladly trust the "weaker" part,
And take refuge in a "woman."

Her heart is strong, her sense is keen,
Her hand is quick and ready:
And although her body may be weak,
She holds the "strong" one steady.

If she is true and true she loves,
No force can change her power:
And hers will be the way to guide
Man in his trial hour.

"How do I manage to rid myself of bores?" said a woman of the world. "Nothing is easier. When I want to send a man away, I talk to him about myself. When I want him to stay indefinitely, I talk about himself."

—Grigg House, London, August 1883. To the Manager Merchants Co.: Dear Sir—I have pleasure in reporting on the merits of "Nonsuch" which has received a thorough trial in my establishment. "Nonsuch" does all that you claim for it. It thoroughly cleans the clothes without the usual labor and trouble; the washboard is not needed, and boiling and wringing are about all that are necessary to bring out the clothes a beautiful white color. Please send me one gross for use at my hotel. I am, dear sir, Yours, etc., Samuel Grigg. For sale by all grocers. Lowden & Co., 55 Front street, Agents for Toronto.

What is Catarrh?

From the Mail (Canada) Dec. 15.

Catarrh is a muco-purulent discharge caused by the presence and development of the vegetable parasite ameba in the internal lining membrane of the nose. This parasite is only developed under favorable circumstances, and these are: Morbid state of the blood, as the blighted corpuscle of tubercle, the germ poison of syphilis, mercury, toxemea, from the retention of the effeted matter of the skin, suppressed perspiration, badly ventilated sleeping apartments, and other poisons that are germinated in the blood. These poisons keep the internal lining membrane of the nose in a constant state of irritation, ever ready for the deposit of the seeds of these germs, which spread up the nostrils and down the fauces or back of the throat, causing ulceration of the throat, up the eustachian tubes, causing deafness, burrowing in the vocal cords, causing hoarseness; usurping the proper structure of the bronchial tubes, ending in pulmonary consumption and death.

Many attempts have been made to discover a cure for this distressing disease by the use of inhalants and other ingenious devices, but none of these treatments can do a particle of good until the parasites are either destroyed or removed from the mucous tissue.

Some time since a well known physician of forty years' standing, after much experimenting, succeeded in discovering the necessary combination of ingredients which never fails in absolutely and permanently eradicating this horrible disease, whether standing for one year or forty years. Those who may be suffering from the above disease should, without delay, communicate with the business managers, Messrs. A. H. Dixon & Son, 305 King street west, Toronto, and get full particulars and treatise free by enclosing stamp.
