CIGARS

Have such an enormous sale:

THEY ARE THE CHEAPEST because they cost NO MORE to the CONSUMER than cigars of much inferior quality.

THEY ARE THE BEST because only the finest class of tobaccos are used in their manufacture.

THEY ARE THE ONLY RELIABLE ONES because they have a reputation to maintain that has cost a fortune to establish.

THEY ARE THE MOST POPULAR because they have earned their popularity on their merits, in spite of the thousands of brands that have been introduced (and since died out) since their introduction.

They have many IMITATORS BUT NO EQUALS.

The demand is greater than ever.

Millions Sold Annually.

They will always be the superiors of all other cigars now in the market, or that may be introduced at any time, if the finest of the crops and forty years' experience can maintain the position they now occupy.

LONDON'S FUTURE.

Splendid Prospects, if the Citizens are True to Themselves.

Our Railway Facilities and How They May Be Improved.

"An Old Resident" writes:

This is a question which interests every citizen and more especially the property owners. The simple answer to the question in my opinion is that London's future will largely depend upon the enterprise and energy of its citizens, or in other words will be just what the citizens make it. The position of London and its surroundings is in every way favorable; in fact, more so than any city in Ontario. It is said that the best support that a city can have is a good country to back it up. In this respect London is highly favored. The city is supported by a larger area of country and a better producing country than Hamilton and Toronto have, both put together, and London has more railway accommodation than any other city in Ontario. More railway trains arrive and depart from London daily than any other city in Canada, and although London is not what can be considered a seaport city in the sense that Toronto and Hamilton are, yet with the advantage of the London and Port Stanley Railway London is in quite as good a position as either one of the above places, and in some respects is more favorably situated.

With regard to navigation—the city owns the Port Stanley Railway and it is only about 30 minutes' ride to Port Stanley. When there, we have navigation to all the lake ports and Montreal and water communication to Great Britain, France, Germany and all parts of Europe. This advantage the city had before the London and Port Stanley Railway was leased to the G. W. R. nearly twenty years ago, and in connection with the three propellers owned by the North Shore Transportation Company, the stock of which company was largely owned by the London and Port Stanley Railway. These boats ran from Port Stanley to Montreal and connected there with the Allan ocean steamers, which formed a line direct to Liverpool, and with this line the railway company largely controlled the rate of freight between Liverpool and London. Most of the wheat within twenty miles around London, as citizens knew, was brought and sold in this market and shipped over this road, and that, too, at a rate which enabled the buyers to pay from 5 to 10 cents more per bushel than was paid in Toronto or Hamilton.

The question now to be considered by the citizens of London is "How will the city be affected in the future with respect to water navigation in connection with its foreign trade?" I have no hesitation in saying that I believe it will be greatly improved and its opportunities increased for the reason that the Government has subsidized and largely increased the number of sea-going boats, so that during the season of navigation there are three or four boats leaving Montreal weekly for Liverpool. Besides in about one year the Government will have completed the system of canals between Montreal and the upper lakes, which will admit a much larger class of boats than before. There are also now established three lines of freight boats. One from Montreal, one from Kingston, and one from Ogdensburg, which run to Chicago and the upper lakes in connection with these boats at Montreal. The destination of these boats will be Chicago and the upper lakes in order to obtain wheat for down freight, and from necessity they must pass Port Stanley. This will put London in a better position than any city east, this side of Montreal.

The question is, "Will the citizens have sufficient enterprise to utilize these advantages for the benefit of the city?"

HELPING EACH OTHER.

London Workingmen Contemplate Forming a Live Co-operative Association.

The meeting of workingmen held in Labor Hall last evening was well attended. The object was the forming of a new co-operative supply association to take the place of the association at present in existence, which for some reason has been on the wane. Mr. H. B. Keene was elected chairman and Mr. George Burell was appointed secretary. Some time ago it had been decided to wind up the old association's affairs, and a committee was appointed for that purpose. The work had not been completed, and pending the formation of a new association the committee laid the matter over. At a meeting of a special committee held recently it was decided to offer to the new association some of the stock that was still on hand, in consideration of which the members of the old company were to be admitted to the new association on payment of an additional fee of $2. A number of suggestions from the committee were then read by the secretary, which were set down as the basis for the formation of the new company. They provided any person might become a member on subscribing for and paying up one full share of stock. The society, the committee suggested, should be registered and the store-keeper and treasurer placed under bonds. Before the association could start it was provided that not less than a hundred $5 shares should be sold, and that each member should have but one vote. Should the association not start within a year the money invested would be returned with banking interest. Fifty per cent. of the dividends declared should go towards increasing the stock and the remainder to the shareholder. It was also provided by the committee that the stock of the old store be purchased on the committee's approval. The meeting was not prepared to consider any proposition until it had a constitution, and accordingly elected the following committee to draft the same: Messrs. E. Lacey, G. Burell, W. Mitchell, J. Marks, J. Boyle and H. B. Keene. The following signed the membership roll agreeing to take stock in the new association: Messrs. G. Neilson, Fred Lepper, Frederick Ellis, T. C. Thornhill, A. F. Garceau, Charles Litzuartter, William Mitchell, R. S. Simmons, Thomas Bull, Joseph Marks, George Burell, Henry Pearse, Thomas Green, Benjamin Green, Robert Treman, E. Rice, E. Lacey, H. B. Keene, W. A. Wier, John Summers, W Chamberlain and J. E. Crawford.

Mr. William Mitchell, one of the new members, who is well versed in the co-operative systems of England, was called upon to give what information he could respecting the working of the system. He said: "At a late congress of the co-operationists of Great Britain, Lord Rosebery said that co-operative societies were acting as missionaries for certain moral qualities, and that to them the State could not afford to be indifferent. These qualities he took notably to be thrift, temperance and independence. Forty million pounds sterling of profits had gone into the pockets of the workingmen. Where would all this have gone to but for this movement heaven only knew but to the public house. From that point of view the State could only give them thanks. Its progress can only be arrested by criminal mismanagement and criminal disunion. This movement embraces more than 1,000,000 workingmen, who have invested in the share and loan stock of various undertakings a total capital of close upon £14,000,000. The aggregate profits earned by 1,515 associations in the United Kingdom during 1889 amount to £3,775,464. Co-operative societies may be roughly divided into three classes—distributive, wholesale and productive. Distributive societies are formed for the purpose of supplying provisions and other articles at current prices, the whole of the profits (after paying a low rate of interest on capital) being divided among the customers in proportion to the value of their purchases. The total value of the goods sold by the distributive societies in the United Kingdon in 1889 was £29,047,146. Wholesale societies are federations created in order to buy for the distributives in large quantities goods required for sale in the stores. In the United Kingdom they are on a very extensive scale, the capital of the English wholesale being £1,042,501, and that of the Scottish wholesale £436,445. These societies have branches in Calais, Rouen, Hamburg, Conenhagen and New York, from all of which places they obtain supplies, importing a considerable part of these goods in steamships of their own. They also conduct very important manufacturing enterprises, making their clothes, boots, furniture, etc. Altogether the value of the goods sold by the English wholesale last year was £7,028,944, its net profit amounting to £118,577, while the Scottish wholesale, with a turnover of £2,273,782, is stated to have cleared a total gain of £65,387. The third class of co-operative associations consists of those engaged exclusively in manufacture. There are 98 in Great Britain, and the value of their output in 1889 was £1,875,534, while their profits reached the respectable sum of £82,784, of which £3,743 was paid to the operatives by way of bonus in addition to their ordinary wages.

A hearty round of applause followed the remarks of the speaker when he had finished.

The meeting adjourned for two weeks.

Reasons why S. Davis & Sons maintain the quality of their brands: It has taken the best part of a lifetime to establish them. They have spent thousands upon thousands of dollars to introduce them. Having obtained the confidence of the public they wish to merit a continuance of same. A deterioration of quality in their brands would not alone destroy the structure upon which they have spent their time, money and labor, but would result in a loss of that confidence the public have favored them with that money again spent in advertising to introduce new brands could not purchase. Therefore, is it to be supposed that any sane business man would be so foolish as to destroy in a short time what it has taken so long to establish. Their brands, "Cable," "Mungo," "El Padre" and "Madre E Higo" are undoubtedly the best value, the safest and most reliable smoke, and cost no more to the consumer than Cigars of much inferior quality. Why smoke other brands or permit dealers (for the sake of additional gain) to sell you those that you are in most cases unfamiliar with? zxt
