The American Magazine.

The April number of THE AMERICAN MAGAZINE is rich in topics of the season. The peculiar ceremonies with which the Moravians of Salem, N. C., celebrate Easter are described by Edward A. Oldham. The "boom, boom, boom" of the prairie-cock—a harbinger of spring—gives Hamlin Garland a theme for the third of his sketches of a farmer-boy's life in the West. Ernest E. Thompson presents in musical annotation the song of the meadow-lark of Manitoba, and claims for that vocalist the highest order of merit. Equally appropriate are the stanzas "Mistress April" by Helen Chase, "My Pansies" by Nellie M. Garabrant, and "The Resurrection" by Margaret E. Lawless.

A new serial story, "Two Coronets," by Mary Agnes Tincker, is begun in the April number. This promises to be one of the most interesting novels its well-known author has yet produced. Its scenes are laid alternately in Italy and America, and domestic life in the two countries is contrasted.

Arthur H. Noll in an illustrated article begins the task of doing fair justice to the emperor Maximilian of Mexico, and the unhappy Carlota, victims to cruel fate in the most pathetic chapter of recent history.

Olivia Delaplaine, in this instalment of Mr. Fawcett's story, seems near the end of her troubles with a husband who, when he thinks he is likely to die, regrets only that he is not strong enough to kill her.

That there are many fine mansions in New England half-tenanted is well known; but it seems surprising, as shown by Charlie Burr Todd, that farm-houses by the score are empty and desolate, and large areas of once-cultivated field and meadow are now waste and wilderness.

Vernon River Bridge Heard From.

A meeting of farmers residing in this locality was held in the Seal River Schoolhouse on Wednesday, the 18th inst., for the purpose of discussing the Weights and Measures Act.

Mr Robert C. McRae was called to the chair, and the undersigned appointed secretary.

The subject was ably discussed from the various standpoints, and the views of the different speakers were given freely and to the point.

After a full and lengthy discussion by the leading farmers of the district, the following resolution was moved by Mr Owen Sullivan and seconded by Mr. John McGillivray, and carried by a large majority of the meeting, there being only four dissenting voices:

Whereas, Several public meetings have been held in different sections of the country in reference to the best method of shipping potatoes, viz.: by weight or measure; and

Whereas, At some of those meetings resolutions were adopted which do not fairly represent the general feelings of the farmers of this locality; and

Whereas, It is the opinion of this meeting that a measure of capacity can be made to give justice and satisfaction to both farmer and trader.

That in view of the limited time which the farmers have to do their shipping in the fall of the year, especially in the southern section of the country, it is materially in their interest to secure the speediest way of discharging their loads; and

Whereas, We believe, in the interest of farmer and trader alike, a measure of capacity would best serve their purpose, and be far less liable to abuse; therefore

Resolved, That it is the firm opinion of this meeting that a measure of capacity containing 24 imperial gallons, would be a just and fair measure, to contain two and one-half bushels.

After an unanimous vote of thanks had been tendered the chairman for his impartial conduct in the chair, the meeting was brought to a close.
