The Weekly Monitor

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER, 6 1907

The change in form of the MONITOR is preliminary to a general change and improvement in our news service which we hoped to have inaugurated this week, but were prevented from doing by various circumstances over which we had no control, among them the illness and absence of our regular machine operator and type-compositor.

For the same reason we are compelled to issue a day later than usual and also to hold over a quantity of local news matter for our next issue.

Our dependence upon machine type setting and the impossibility of securing skilled and trained operators has been one of the impediments to our regular publication, and the management has determined that this is an element of uncertainty which shall be entirely eliminated from our future plans.

The correspondence of Mr. A. S. Davison published elsewhere contains suggestive comments on the present working of the assessment scheme. As this is a profitable theme for discussion, we trust someone will take interest enough in the subject to respond to Mr. Davison's arguments either pro. or con. as our columns are always open for suggestions either theoretical or practical.

Obituary.

MRS. HENRY PRAT.

The death occurred at Kentville on Thursday morning of Mrs. Prat, wife of H. A. Prat chief accountant of the D. A. R. Company at Kentville.

Mrs Prat was a native of Bridgetown, a daughter of the late Dr. Sands Piper and her girlhood days and early married life were spent here.

From here Mr. and Mrs. Prat removed to Kentville and the former has held a position in the head office of the D. A. R. for years past.

Mrs. Prat was the mother of four children. Of three daughters the eldest, married Louis Heslein of Halifax, the second Jas. R. Blanchard of Kentville, and the third Chas. Nixon of Halifax. The youngest, a son, Rithard, died in early manhood some years ago.

A warmhearted and cheerful disposition won her a large circle of friends and acquaintances but in her own family where the deepest affections were centered she will be most sadly missed. Fifty nine years of wedded life had so welded the lives of husband and wife into one harmonious whole, that the loss sustained by the bereaved husband is heart rending in the extreme. ...,

Mr Gifkins General Manager of the D. A. R. placed at the disposal of the bereaved family a private car and after service at the church in Kentville, the remains were conveyed to Bridgetown and placed in the family burial lot. The members of the family were accompanied by the clergyman, Rev. C. DeWolfe White and a number of friends and members of the D. A. R. Staff at Kentville.

Mrs. W. G. Lantz of Centreleadelon Monday last after a lingering illness leaving a husband and ten children.

HAMPTON.

On Friday last the steamer Ruby L from St. John called here and landed the largest freight of the season, if not the largest ever landed at this port at one time. It included flour, meal, feed, oil, fertilizer, shingles and a lot of miscellaneous stuff to numerous to mention.

Our merchants must be fairly well stocked for the winter. The Steamer took on board upwards of one hundred half barrels of herring and forty barrels of apples.

There has been so much rain and the ground is so soaked and soft that it is impossible to do fall plowing, and there seems every indication of an early winter.
