WAS MOVED TO WINNIPEG OVER NOVITIATE RAID

Capt. Macaulay Admits He Was Reprimanded For Lack of Tact.

WAS "RANK' INJUSTICE"

Officer Who Conducted Raid Says He Was Unfairly Treated.

OTTAWA, Sept. 9.—When the inquiry into the Guelph novitiate raid incident adjourned this afternoon the cross-examination of Capt. Macaulay, the officer who led the raiding party, had been completed by Mr. Geoffrion, and Mr. Newcombe, appearing for the department of justice, was ready to proceed. Mr. Ferguson announced that after a brief re-examination of the witness it would take him more than an hour to complete the case for the authors of the charges.

Evidence at the afternoon session turned largely on the failure of Capt. Macaulay to produce authority to Father Bourque or the other fathers at the novitiate for making the raid, although a section of the act under which the proceeding was taken stated that such written authority should be produced when required, and Capt. Macaulay had already sworn that he had such instructions in his possession when he visited the institution.

Capt. Macaulay was also examined as to the report he sent to Ottawa, in which he dealt with the happenings at the raid, and also referred to six points based on information supplied by Father Bourque and which led him to believe that most of the young men in the institution were evading military service.

Anyone Eligible.

Father Bourque had told him that a young man could enter the institution at any time so long as he possessed the necessary matriculation and was of good health. He was not bound to remain for any stated time, nor was he bound to enter the priesthood, although he could, if he wished, take a course of studies which would lead him to the priesthood after a residence of fifteen years. There was no obligation upon him to enter the priesthood at all, though he might continue a resident of the institution for his lifetime.

Young men paid no fees for the instruction they got there, and received no wages for work they did on the farm conducted in connection with the institution. These facts led Capt. Macaulay to the belief that the young men there were largely evaders of military service, and he stated so in his report to headquarters.

Made a Protest.

Another item that came out in the afternoon session was that Father Bourque protested against the search, and had that protest made before witnesses, a Mr. Bedford being brought in for the occasion, as well as a young man named O'Leary, who was a guest at the novitiate, and who had seen service overseas.

Capt. Macaulay swore he did not remember seeing either of the men named in the institution on the night of the raid.

Witnesses yet likely to be called include Colonel Godson-Godson, who will be questioned in regard to the removal of the instructions to proceed against the Guelph institution from the file of Major Hirsch in London; Rev. Father Bourque, the superior of the institution; Capt. Hingston, and possibly Messrs. Bedford and O'Leary.

"H—ll of a Row."

Capt. Macaulay said that he had reported there had been hardly any friction at Guelph, and Major-General Ashton replied that there was a "H—ll of a row over it at Ottawa."

Capt. Macaulay denied that he had Mr. Justice Middleton—What I don't understand, Capt. Macaulay, is this: You had instructions to be considerate and tactful with these people. You say you had your authority in your pocket when you went to the building, yet when asked for it you refused to produce it, and only showed your brassard. Why was that?

Witness—I thought everything was going all right.

To Mr. Geoffrion, witness admitted that he was subsequently reprimanded by Colonel Godson-Godson and removed from London to Winnipeg, the reason being the manner in which he conducted the Guelph search, it being charged first that he should not have gone to the institution in plain clothes, that he should have produced his written authority when asked for it, and that finally the whole affair had been conducted with a lack of tact and consideration.

"The whole thing," said Capt. Macaulay, "was rank injustice. It came out in the papers that I had been condemned, and had no chance to defend myself."

Incomplete Report.

Continuing, witness said his report to Ottawa had been made in a hurry, and he admitted it was not complete. He had received a request from Ottawa to make the report full and complete. At the novitiate he had arrested Doherty, Newman and Schmidt, as they seemed to be the most prominent of those found there. Doherty was prominent because he was the son of the minister of justice; Newman was the son of a merchant in Guelph; and witness had also seen Schmidt's name referred to in correspondence. There was no other reason for taking these three particular boys, except that they were from prominent families and the fact that they were in the novitiate had been talked about. The report he had sent to Ottawa was his own work, and Major Hirsch had no part in it.

The inquiry adjourned until tomorrow morning.

ALPHONSE TEASDALE CHOICE OF N. ESSEX U. F. O. CONVENTION

[Special to The Advertiser.]

WINDSOR, Sept. 9. — At a well-attended convention held at Tecumseh this afternoon, Alphonse Teasdale of Tilbury North was nominated to contest the North Essex constituency for the United Farmers of Ontario at the coming Provincial election.

Half a dozen others, some of them leading agriculturalists in the community and a few not so well-known, were tentative candidates, but after a preliminary ballot showed that the strength lay between Mr. Teasdale and Maurice Renaud, the others withdrew. On the final ballot the Tilbury man was declared the nominee by a two to one vote.

The meeting was comparatively harmonious throughout although on a few minor points of the program there appeared a few differences of opinion between the chairman and the delegates.

WHAT FEATURE APPEALS MOST FARMERS' DAY?

Is It Agricultural Exhibit, or Is It Display of Autos?

WHAT HAPPENED TUESDAY

Large Percentage of Farmers Interested in Cars Good Judges.

What feature of the fair will be most interesting to the farmers on this special day? Will it be the livestock? Will it be the midway? Will it be the Dairy Building?

It is recognized that most farmers find pleasure in practically all departments, but there are those who declare that not even thoroughbred horses attract as many farmers these days as the automobiles.

This fact seemed to be borne out yesterday, when there was a constant stream all day through the building where the motor cars were displayed.

All the exhibits commanded attention, but the southwest corner, where the London Overland Sales held sway, there was always a particularly big crowd. And always a large proportion of those looking in and under the cars were farmers.

They were attracted no doubt by the rather exceptional claims made for a new model there as to its contempt for bumps and ruts. Western Ontario's roads are improving, it is true, but they are a long way from being so smooth that springs do not count.

In the particular car shown by the Overland people the springs are the centre of interest. Built along entirely new lines—"three-point cantilever," they call them—they have the effect of keeping the car to the road without the car being heavy, while they do not bounce the person riding.

Farmers who inspected this new "Four" yesterday were convinced that the spring suspension was going to let them laugh at bad roads.

Another reason to expect the automobile show to interest London's rural visitors today is that, with the growing use of automobiles and the adoption of farm power machinery, most farmers have a most intimate knowledge of motor mechanics. They are therefore keenly interested in every development of the industry and every improvement in the various makes of cars.

SCIENTIFIC ASPECTS OF THE WAR TO BE DISCUSSED FULLY

Meeting of British Association For Advancement of Science.

BOURNEMOUTH, Eng., Sept. 9.—A scientific history of the war is expected to be one of the developments of the annual meeting of the British Association for the Advancement of Science here this week.

Among the lecturers will be generals, poets and a good many women, which brings the prophecy that it will be the most popular, as well as the most scientific meeting the association has ever held.

Engineers, chemists, physicians, geographers and even such unexpected persons as archaeologists, are to detail for the first time what wonders British forces wrought in France and the East. How they caught up with the Germans and passed them in optics, photography, telegraphy and the chemistry of explosives, and how they are turning their discoveries and inventions into agencies for peaceful reconstruction, will form the principal part of the week's revelations.

Lost Cities Found.

One curious result of the excellence of air photography, concerning which there will be many papers, is that it has discovered the sites of lost Asiatic cities, for which archaeologists have been vainly digging these many years. The slight difference of color over a buried wall can make the outline of a town absolutely distinct from the air though quite invisible from the ground.

Women played a leading part in the sciences during the war, and the best of them are continuing their researches. The most distinguished among them will lecture on zoology, botany, education and heredity.

Field Marshal Sir Henry Wilson will give some important sidelights on geography, and Sir Charles Parsons, the president, will give a general sketch of engineering achievements during the war. Two of the most interesting personalities in the Church of England are to discuss citizenship, while the poets will be represented by Sir Quiller Couch.

Prosecution To Follow Strike on Street Rly.

Business Agent of Union Is Blamed For Fast-Time Tie-Up in Toronto.

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 9.—It is rumored that the crown authorities here are preparing to prosecute James T. Gunn, business agent of the Electrical Workers' Union, on the ground that he was responsible for the strike of the electrical workers and the consequent stoppage of the street railway service here for more than four hours one evening while the exhibition was on. Great inconvenience was suffered by many thousands of persons as a result of the strike.

Mr. Gunn laid the blame for the trouble upon General Manager R. J. Fleming, of the Toronto Railway Company, at the time, but Mr. Fleming disclaimed responsibility.

C. P. R. COAL TRAIN DITCHED; FOUR CARS ARE BADLY SMASHED

Opening of Switch at Ingersoll Believed To Be Cause.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

INGERSOLL, Sept. 9.—An incoming coal train on the Port Burwell branch of the C. P. R. was derailed immediately north of the Holcroft street crossing about 2:30 o'clock this afternoon, and it is expected the line will remain tied up until Thursday night.

The London auxiliary was at work at the scene of the accident an hour after it occurred. Eight of the 27 heavily-loaded cars took the ditch, four being badly smashed. The engine and one car had just crossed the switch when the wreck occurred. The accident is supposed to have been caused by the switch opening.

CALLS M'MILLAN A "BUCOLIC FAKIR"

J. A. Armstrong Demands That Government Insist On Proof of Statements.

OTTAWA, Sept. 9.—J. A. Armstrong of North York asked the minister of militia in the House of Commons today whether he was aware of the fact that Mr. McMillan, who made charges that Government pay lists were padded with 30,000 names, and that the cost to the country would be $30,000,000, had repeated them. He had offered to come to Ottawa and prove them. Mr. Armstrong said he thought that "this bucolic fakir" should be made to substantiate his statements, and asked that the Government take the matter in hand.

Gen. Mewburn replied that he had sent a letter to Mr. McMillan, asking him about his statement, but had received no reply. "I can assure the House," said the minister of militia, "that the matter will not be left where it is."
