HE FAIN WOULD BE A BLOND.

Though Nature gave him Dark, Brown Hair and Eyes.

"Have you anything that will turn hair gray?" asked a brown-haired woman of a pretty, wide-awake attendant at a well-known hair-dressing establishment on Grand street.

The girl had come forward in a business-like manner to ascertain the requirements of the customer and to conduct her to the parlors above. When asked this question she hesitated a moment before replying:

"No, I can't honestly say that we have."

"But I have heard that there was such a preparation," insisted the customer. "You know gray hair is quite the rage now in New York. A number of my friends are quite gray about the temples and they are very proud of it. Are you sure that there is no way of changing the hair?"

"Well, yes," answered the girl, pleasantly; "The preparation which bleaches the hair, if used often enough with in many cases turn it pure white. But you must take your own risk; we don't recommend it. We have lots of customers who use it for that purpose, though they are very secret about it. But the prettiest gray hair is that which turns of itself. It seems as if one's hair turned younger than formerly, but I think it's only because fewer people use dyes to turn it dark again. We have very little call for dyes for that purpose, but a great deal for a preparation to make the hair lighter and other for something to make the hair white or gray.

"A young lady came yesterday. She was one of our regular customers from up town. She said a friend of hers had beautiful white hair about the temples and that she had told her she used something to turn it. But I am sure it turned of itself, and she only said that to deceive her. I told her just what I've told you, that continued bleaching might perhaps do it, but it would take several weeks and the result might not be satisfactory. The bleach must be applied only to the portions of the hair that you want white. You can have it sprinkled all through the hair or only at the temples."

"Are you always successful with other dyes? Turning hair red for instance."

"Well you will have to take your own risks with the red dye; and we won't promise satisfaction. It may be green or blue. The dye acts differently on different hair, according to the amount of coloring matter nature has given. Lots of people use it, though. We have no trouble with the dark dyes. The brown and black act like a charm. Bleaching too is very satisfactory. But is is not so much in favor as it used to be.

"If I were you I would not touch my hair. It's pretty enough as it is. Washing it with ammonia or soda will brighten it and give it more of a gloss, but I would never try to turn it red or gray."

"Do you ever have men customers here?"

"Oh, no. This place is soley for ladies," but a twinkle came into her pretty blue eyes and a smile about her mouth. She turned to another attendant who had eolned them and received an answering smile.

"We had one man customer not long ago," and they both laughed again. "He came to have his hair bleached—just fancy! We had lots of fun over it up stairs."

"Was he dark?"

"Yes he had beautiful, dark-brown curly hair, and his eyes were fine. He knew it, too."

"Used them, I suspect."

"Well, rather," and the pretty attendant colored slightly. He looked very nice after his hair was bleached. He couldn't seem to tear himself away from the glass. I didn't much wonder. The light hair made his eyes look much darker and handsomer. I wouldn't mind having more customers like him. But I don't suppose we shall. I've been here three years and Miss Snow thirteen, and he is the only man customer we've had. Good morning.

How to Lift a Mortgage.

Many farmers are heavily in debt and cannot afford to buy pure bred stock or a large amount of grain to feed their cattle. Money is a scarce article and they are looking for a way to get more. Possibly they are in the dairy business and want to get some better stock to grade up, but they cannot raise a dollar to buy another animal. Sell some of your poorer cows for what they will bring and the hay that would keep them until spring. Take this money and buy some grain with it say equal parts of bran or oats, cotonseed or linseed meal. Begin to feed each cow 4 or 5 lbs: of grain a day with clover hay, corn fodder and straw. Increase the ration gradually until each cow has all the grain that she can make use of, say 12 lbs. a day. The extra amount of milk will give you money to buy some more and will pay twice what the grain costs. Raise the heifer calves out of your best cows and get some others. Go to some neighbor who has been grading up with Jerseys, Guernseys, Holsteins or whatever you want and procure from him several of his heifer calves out of his best native cows. He will probably have all the high grades that he wants and be glad to let you have the half bloods. You can get these for about $3 a piece when a week old. You may also be able to get a bull calf, but take nothing but a pure bred, no matter if he has not a gilt edge pedigree he will be better than a high grade. Next year get some more heifer calves the same way and the third year you will have some of your own.

Feed your calves 12 to 14 lbs. a day of whole milk until they are a week old when it may be partly skimmed. When a month old they may be given all skim-milk and about 8 qts. a day. Warm the milk to blood heat and give it to them three times a day. Fix a rack so you can put in some clover hay where the calves can pick at it and put up a box where you can feed them grain. Do not turn them out in a bare field or orchard but give them a little milk as long as you have it and keep them in a small yard with a clean shed or stable where they can get away from the flies and hot sun if it is in the summer. Handle your calves to make them gentle and you will have no trouble with them when they are cows. Keep them growing and feed a little grain all the while and breed them when 15 to 16 months old. Use the best aged bull that you can find and one that has by his heifers, proved himself to be a good one. There is hardly anyone but that is so situated that he cannot do this. It won't cost you any money to speak of and you will be making lots more in a short time. As you improve your dairy you will improve yourself, and the more you learn the more you will desire to know. You will soon begin to read more, to think more and find out for yourself other ways of improvement. —New England Homestead.

The Housewife.

THE SOAP SUDS HAND. — Remember that one can have the hands in soapsuds with soft soap without injury to the skin, if the hands are dipped in vinegar or lemon juice immediately after. The acids destroy the corrosive effects of the alkali and makes the hands soft and white. Indian meal and vinegar or lemon juice used when roughened by cold or labor, will heal or soften them. Rub the hands in this, then wash off thoroughly and rub in glycerine. Those who suffer from chapped hands in winter will find this comforting.

COFFEE IN SICKNESS.—A nourishing drink for sick people is made as follows: Make a strong cup of coffee, and let it all come to a boil, then pour it over a well beaten egg in the cup in which it is to be served. A medical exchange says that life can be sustained by that drink when nothing else can be taken.

HELPS TO GOOD SERVICE.—By better furnishing of our kitchens, not with new and untried inventions, but with suitable tools and utensils for doing the work, and then insisting on their use.

By ourselves practicing and teaching our servants orderly and systematic methods of work. Many servants who are holly incapable of originating a plan or discovering labor-saving methods can be trained to follow them if the mistress in patient and persistent.

By regularity at meals, so far as possible and by mutual co-operation on the part of all the members of a family to lighten the burdens of the servants, and to avoid laying upon them unnecessary work.

By being more liberal with praise, even for good intentions, than the blame for failure or forgetfulness.

By genuine, hearty, womanly interest in the well-being of our servants.

The Extension of Creameries.

Progress is oftentimes slow even in this fast age, in things that are greatly important. The Ontario Creameries Association is making progress, but slow in comparison to the importance of the work which it is endeavouring to forward. Slowly but surely the work is advancing, but why should it advance so slowly? Why should we have but 33 butter factories in all Ontario, where the Creameries Association has been laboring for the extension of the industry for several years? The quality of the butter made at the factories is certainly better than that made in the average dairy; and surely the good woman who directs the farm home has her labors lightened where the creamery system is introduced. The returns for 1889 really show a margin in favor of the creameries, as compared with the cheese factories. The return per day for the former is 14,27 cents per cow, as compared with 16 cents per day per cow from the latter. These figures show a margin in favor of the cheese factories of 1,73 cents per day per cow; but it should not be forgotten that the greater value of the skim-milk for feeding purposes, as compared with the whey more than makes up for this deficiency, so that the margin is really on the side of the creamery rather than the cheese factory.

The cheese factories have a firm hold upon the country. We are glad that they have, and hope that they always will have; but we are desirous that creameries shall become equally well established in the farming community. In 1889, the number of cheese factories in the province was 784, and these used the milk of 273,231 cows. The milk, therefore, of but little more than one-third of our cows went to the cheese factories. If the creamery business could be so worked up that the cream from an equal number of cows could be sent to the butter factories what an excellent showing we could make! It may take some years to do this, but why should it be looked upon as unattainable?

The ladies of the farm homes should surely favor the extension of the creamery system. Viewed in the light of self-interest, it is almost marvellous that they do not come out in one united crusade in favor of the movement. It would so much lighten their labors. It is just as much more than possible that one element of their indifference to the extension of creameries is found in the fact that the revenues to their side of the house is cut off by sending the cream to the factory. Many farmer's wives send butter to the grocery; and after the groceries for the house are purchased, the balance coming in is, by common consent, their rightful heritage. They are thus furnished with pocket money to supply their varied wants and those of the family. In other words, they enjoy the pleasure of laying out money which they have rightfully earned as may seem best to them. When the cream goes to the factory this source of revenue is cut off, for the money then goes into the possession of the "Julius Cæsar" of the home, and it is too apt to remain under his jurisdiction notwithstanding the degree of authority exercised on the other side of the house. We all know that possession gives one a great advantage, and, no doubt, this is better known to none than our farm matrons. If they will be advised, however they can get at the matter in another way. They should consent to have the cream go to the factory, but should stipulate at the same time, on the ground of inalienable rights, to have their full share of the proceeds. They would then have the money, with not more than half the work. We shall hope therefore, that the matrons of our farm homes will look into this matter and withdraw their opposition, where it may have existed, to the introduction of the creamery.

The travelling dairy which has recently been inaugurated by the Hon. John Dryden, the Minister of Agriculture, cannot but result in a vast improvement of the standard of the butter made in the country. But as long as butter is made on the farm the labor of making butter is not taken from the farmer's wife, nor is that uniformity in quality secured which is so necessary to the establishment of an export trade. This can only be accomplished through the more general introduction of creameries.—Canadian Live Stock Journal.

Education Begets Thoughtfulness and Prudence!

Canadians Are Wiser Than They Were Ten Years Ago!

AN AGENT THAT HAS ATTAINED GREAT POPULARITY.

As education extends in our land, our people become more thoughtful and prudent, and are ever ready to listen to the voice of reason and truth. The benefits of education have enabled our Canadian people to live better. By this we mean that the physical condition of our people is better observed, and the common ailments of life are guarded against by common sense treatment. Ten years ago, those who were afflicted by nervous complaints, headaches, wearied and tired brain, dyspepsia and indigestion, sought relief and cure by using many of the vile nostrums and preparations which then existed; indeed, some of them are still before our people as healers of all diseases that flesh is heir to. Science in due time, came to the rescue of afflicted nervous and rheumatic mortals, and gave them nature's great restorer, Paine's Celery Compound. It was tried, and in a short period it attained a popularity and fame never accorded to any other preparation. It became the people's medicine; its work was quick and effective; it cured when all other remedies had failed; and restored the weak, broken-down and nervous to health and strength. Paine's Celery Compound and its wonderful cures is now the subject of conservation from the Atlantic to the Pacific. No other preparation in existence is more popular with physicians, and they recognize its worth by prescribing it daily.

The Nova Scotia Telephone Co. broke loose this morning on Church street and collided with the Water Works, with the result that the horse drawing a carriage containing some of the telephone company broke the shafts, taking part of them with it, leaving the company sitting quietly in the carriage. The water works came out clear, its heavy carts proving too heavy for its rival.—Amherst Press.

Does Protection Protect?

Certainly, in one instance, it does. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the great protection against the dangers of impure blood, and it will cure or prevent all diseases of this class. It has well won its name of the best blood purifier.

THE PAPAL POWER

Italy Considers the Status of the Papacy Finally Settled.

ROME, Nov. 28.—During a debate in the Chamber of Deputies today a member took occasion to allude to the agitation persistently maintained in certain quarters in favor of a restoration of the temporal power of the papacy, and said that such utterances showed the existence of a feeling that Italy's attitude toward the Vatican was not irrevocable. Such a feeling was a source of irritation and of possible danger, and should be banished by some official declaration on the subject.

In reply, Sig. Nicotera, minister of the interior stated that, regardless of what might be said and done inside or outside the country, Italy considers the question of the status of the papacy as having been finally settled.

The minister's declaration was received by the chamber with loud and long continued applause.

Charming people, these especially people! Here's a medicine—Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for instance, and it's cured hundreds, thousands that're known, thousands that're unknown, and yes, you may be an exceptional case! Do you think that that bit of human nature which you call "I" is different from the other parcels of human nature? "But you don't know my case." Good friend, in ninety-nine out of a hundred cases, the causes are the same—impure blood—and that's why "Golden Medical Discovery" cures ninety-nine out of every hundred. You may be the exception. And you may not. But would you rather be the exception, or would you rather be well? If you're the exception it costs you nothing, you get your money back—but suppose it cures you.

Let the "Golden Medical Discovery" take the risk.

Country and Town.

The plough breeds a hayseed—the city a cad,
Tis the same from Beersheba to Dan.
The town-boy's a man when he should be a lad
And a child when he should be a man.

Better the smiling meadows than the city's chilling frown,
Better the upland breezes than the squalor of the town.
Better the country's quiet than the city's ceaseless din,
Better the yokel's laughter than the townsfolk's soulless grin.
Better the ploughman's toil-worn rest than to tore on a Persian rug.
Better the honest sheep-dog's bark than the whine of a pampered pug.
Better a clownish bearing than the dead-beat masher's sneers,
Better dear Nature's smiling than the sin-stained city's tears.
Better the spreading landscape than hemm'd in by stifling mews.
Better the scent of clover than the kennel's noisome stews.
Better the dim wood's silence than the strife of the crowded mart.
Better the north winds's robbing than the sigh of a broken heart.
A clean cotton print for the meadows, for the city a silken gown.
Virtue and health see the uplands—vice and the hariot the town.
Aye! dear to my heart is the country—dear God and the angels look down
With a smile on the meadows—they weep when think of the town.

The Prudent Wife.

"I've a great notion to go and jump into the river," said Mr. N. Peck at the end of a little domestic discussion, as he picked up his hat and started out. "You come right back here," said his wife. "If you intend any such tricks as that, just march up stairs and put on your old clothes before you start."

Shiloh's Consumption Cure.

This is beyond question the most successful Cough Medicine we have ever sold, a few doses invariably cure the worst cases of Cough, Croup and Bronchitis, while its wonderful success in the cure of Consumption is without a parallel in the history of medicine. Since its first discovery it has been sold on a guarantee, a test which no other medicine can stand. If you have a cough we earnestly ask you to try it. Price 10c., 50c. and $1. If your lungs are sore, chest or back lame, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by Parker Bros., Market Square, G. W. Hoben, North End, S. Waters, West End.

Madame Sarah Bernhardt has had her tomb erected in Pere Lachaise in anticipation of the time when her worldly career shall have ended. It is built of marble, and is severely simple in design; and it is said that the divine actress herself heaps it with flowers and trophies from time to time.

Clothes boiled without soap!! "Impossible," you say. It would be impossible with the ordinary washing powders but the function of "Lessive Phenix" is to do a great many things commonly deemed impossible. It makes your clothes like snow, and it makes the water and your hands soft; it will polish your silverware, your tinware, your bath; in fact, it will clean everything. Lessive Phenix—ask your grocer for it.

The Reason Why.

The reason why Burdock Blood Bitters leads all other medicines in the race for popularity is because it is absolutely pure, cannot harm the most delicate invalid, and never fails to cure biliousness, dyspepsia, bad blood, constipation, etc.

Enjoying a Blessing.

DEAR SIRS,—Last summer my younger sisters were taken very badly with croup, indeed we were almost in despair, having little hope of curing them. Finally we applied Hagyard's Yellow Oil, and to our great joy it cured them perfectly, and they are now enjoying the blessing of perfect health. ANNIE JOHNSTON, Dalhousie, N. B.

Cold Weather Trials.

DEAR SIRS,—This fall and winter I suffered from a sharp pain in my face and had the best medical advice without avail, I at last thought of trying H. B. B. and after using one bottle have not felt any symptoms of neuralgia since I regard it as a fine family medicine. J. T. DRONY, Hesslip, Man.

Now Free from Pain.

DEAR SIRS,—I have been troubled with Lame Back for about 6 months, and thought I would try Hagyard's Yellow Oil, which cured me. Am now free from all pains, and recommend Yellow Oil very highly. FRANK PALMER, Winona, Ont.

A Good Verdict.

SIRS,—I have great reason to speak well of your B. B. Bitters. I have taken 6 bottles for myself and family and find that for loss of appetite and weakness it has no equal. It cures sick headache, purifies the blood and will not fail when used. I heartily recommend it to all wanting a pure medicine. MRS. HUGH MCNUTT, Truro, N. S.

The Best Yet.

DEAR SIRS,—My mother was attacked with inflammation of the lungs which left her very weak and never free from cold, till at last she got a very severe cold and cough. She resolved to try Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam, and, on so doing, found it did her more good than any other medicine she ever tried. MRS. KENNEDY, 50 Smith Av., Hamilton, Ont.
