THE TELEGRAPH.—Some time ago Mr. ——— gave a lecture in this city on Electro-Galvanism, and while he was describing the principle and arrangement of the Electric Telegraph, one of the audience enquired how the wires were protected from being injured by interested and unprincipled persons. He replied "we depend entirely on the good feelings and honesty of the people" which elicited a grand round of applause. Since that time, however, the interruption from the wires being injured, either intentionally or accidentally, have been very frequent—and strangely enough it generally happens on the arrival of the Halifax Steamers!!!—The phrase of "the wires are cut" is not uncommon—the following are illustrations:—

"No news of the steamer of the 4th inst. The wires of the Boston Telegraph are cut.—Montreal Herald.

THE TELEGRAPH.—We entered into an arrangement on Monday for the Telegraph reports, and we will now give our readers an idea of the value we have this week received for our money. On Monday evening there was no report; Tuesday, the report was anticipated by mail; Wednesday, there was about six lines of a report; and Thursday, the wires were broken!—Hamilton Com. Adv.

We extract the above from the Toronto Patriot. The liability which a telegraph carried over posts is subject to, to be destroyed by interested parties, or injured by accidents, is a very serious one, and we do not see how it can be prevented. The law ought most certainly to provide a heavy punishment for persons detected in such a rascally outrage, but, in our opinion, there is no safety in a telegraph carried over posts. The best plan is to convey the wires in tubes, but this can only be effected when the telegraph follows the line of railroad.—Montreal Courier.

There is, perhaps, no disease with which our country is affected, which sweeps off annually so many victims, as that fell destroyer of the human race—Consumption. Day after day, year after year, the inmate monster hurries to the portals of the cold and silent tomb, fresh added victims to its conquest. No walk of life is sacred from its blighting influence.—No age is exempt from its death-dealing shafts. The old, the middle-aged and the young, all alike, are food for this common enemy of mankind. The white haired patriarch, whose life of temperance has rendered his system impervious to the attacks of other illness, and whose good deeds prepared him for the enjoyment of life's calm evening, finds consumption fastening its fangs upon his vitals, and tearing him from a world, ever bright to minds which look complacently on days well spent.

Is there no help for the afflicted? No preventive of the dangers which beset us in our changeable and fickle clime? We think there may be. And if the allegations of those who are at least entitled to veracity, may be believed, there is a preventive and a remedy.

Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry is offered to a suffering world as such. It needs not the "adventitious aid" of a long string of fictitious certificates to give it notoriety. Its true value and intrinsic excellence are sufficient to entitle it to the confidence of the public, and
