Fall of Manilla.

London, Aug. 17.—The Manila correspondent of the Daily Telegraph telegraphing Saturday, says: "Nothing could be more humane than the Americans' capture of the town. General Merritt and Admiral Dewey's plan was to spare every object but the armed defences and the trenches. Apparently the American losses were extremely small. The Spanish entrenchments varied in point of distance from two to four miles from the centre of old Manila. Defending this long line of at least ten miles were not over and probably under five thousand Spanish regular troops, volunteers and natives. About half that number were in the hospital. The attacking forces numbered from ten to twenty thousand natives, and ten thousand Americans ashore and aboard the fleet. In every respect the advantage was on the side of the attack. The American field guns threw heavier metal and had longer range than the Spanish; the marksmanship of the American gunners was much superior to that of the Spaniards, and the men were stronger and in better condition. The Spaniards are a small race compared with their stalwart opponents, and worn out by a hundred days' siege and disappointed by the failure to arrive of the promised Spanish relief squadron, they had lost heart. It was a hopeless struggle.

"The attacking squadron formed in line between Malate and Old Manila, with the Conord watching the fort at the mouth of the Pasig. The American fleet lay outside of the breakwater. The Olympia fired the first shot at 9.40, and the fairly continuous, but by no means furious cannonade was kept up until 11.20, By that time the Malate fort was silenced and the American troops then stormed the entrenchments. Spaniards who were in the earthworks inform me that the quick-firing guns of the little gunboat Rapido, which lay close to the shore, were far more terrible in their effect than was the raking fire of the ships. Resistance to the American attack was impossible. The first Colorado regiment was the earliest to charge the Spaniards, who retired to the second line, but soon outnumbered, they were forced into the old city. A part of Malate suffered severely from the bombardment.

"The commander, convinced that further resistance was hopeless, hoisted a white flag at 1.30 and the order to cease firing was immediately issued in the centre of the town, but in the outskirts street fighting continued for some time afterwards between the rebels and Spaniards. The only fear felt in the city is in regard to the conduct of the insurgents.

A despatch from Manilla dated August 18, says the total number of killed on the American side during the attack on and capture of Manila was 45, and wounded about 100. The Spanish losses were 200 killed and 400 wounded. The fire of the Americans did practically no damage to the town or to the non combatants.

FRIENDS PREVAILED

A Nervous Toronto Woman Walked the Floor During the Night for Hours at a Time—She Makes a Statement.

TORONTO, ONT.—"I was troubled with nervousness. It was impossible for me to keep still and if the spells came over me during the night I had to get up and walk the floor for hours at a time. My blood was very poor and I was subject to bilious attacks. My feet would swell and I was not able to do my own housework. I treated with two of the best physicians here but only received relief for a time. I became discouraged. One day a friend called and advised me to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. I laughed at the advice but I was prevailed upon and procured one bottle. Before I used it all I began to feel better. I took several bottles and also several boxes of Hood's Pills. Now I can eat and drink heartily and sleep soundly. Hood's Sarsaparilla has entirely cured me and also strengthened me so that I now do all my own work. I cheerfully recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla to all sufferers from nervousness, weakness or general debility." MRS. H. F. PARM, Degrassi Street.

There is a fine hay field on the south side, cutting between four and five tons of hay.

This property contains one of the finest flower and fruit gardens in the Town, and the buildings are in good repair.

EASTER BEEF

As I am determined to supply my customers with the very best that the market will afford. I have purchased for Easter this year a pair of "heavy beef cattle" which will probably surpass in quality anything before offered to the public in Bridgetown.

In addition to the above you will find my Meat Market well supplied with a first class stock of

Salt Pork, Sugar-cured Ham and Bacon,

DRY AND PICKLED FISH, and in fact almost anything usually found in a well appointed meat market.

Inspection solicited and satisfaction guaranteed.
