Got One Month

The trial of Byam Rowcliffe, the Usborne Township farmer charged with theft and with conspiracy with James Chapman, his hired man, came to an end Friday night in Goderich, after four days hearing. At the conclusion Judge Doyle sentenced him to one month in jail on the charge of harboring stolen goods.

Most of the time was taken up in an effort to bring home the charge of conspiracy with Chapman to rob the neighboring farmers of harness, robes whips, grain, etc., which was found in various places on the Rowcliffe farm. Notwithstanding the fact that Chapman pleaded guilty of conspiracy and swore that Rowcliffe and he had conspired, the charge against Rowcliffe fell through.

The Advocate has already given the details of the case, which came out at the preliminary hearing some months ago, and were practically the same as came out at the trial in Goderich.

About 60 witnesses were heard in all. The young man, Chapman, had just completed his term at the time of the trial and was discharged.

Messrs. Dickson of Exeter and Proudfoot of Goderich appeared for the defence while Crown Attorney Bridger prosecuted.

AN ENQUIRY

To the Editor of The Advocate,—

Is it legal for a council to meet on the evening of the nomination, when two of the councilmen and reeve have resigned their different positions in the council, and to do business of such nature as they would not do before nomination to be criticised? RATEPAYER.

Municipal Elections

IN EXETER

The municipal election in Exeter on Monday last resulted in John Taylor being re-elected Reeve by a majority of 36. The following were elected councillors, Wm. Rivers, Wm. Walper, Wm. Lovett and Louis Day. The former School Trustees were re-elected, Messrs. T. B. Carling, S. Martin and F. Wood. The by-law for Water Commissioners was defeated, and consequently the election of Water Commissioners is of no effect. A detailed statement of the vote by polls is given below.

The contest for the various offices was of the mild kind, with the exception of that of Reeve, which was keenly contested, and was considered by everyone as an uncertain quantity. The result was a close vote, Mr. Taylor winning by only a small majority. Both are good municipal men, have had good municipal experience, are good fighters, but both could not win. With such a few votes as a margin both aspirants should be as well satisfied as it is possible for a winner and loser to be.
