POISON MYSTERY PUZZLES POLICE

Hamilton Candy Case Proving Puzzling One to the Authorities.

AN ANALYST TO REPORT

Man Under Arrest Alleged To Maintain He Bought the Sweets in a Confectionery Shop.

Hamilton, August 12.—The police authorities admit that in the poisoning of Rose Zeipe they have an unusual mystery to unravel. The case has created a sensation in the city that bids fair to put it in the class with other murder mysteries that have held the attention of the Hamilton people in the past, and the probability of it being solved early is remote. The police admit they are completely at sea, although they are rigidly scrutinizing every aspect of the case that is worth investigating.

It was about 7 o'clock that the unfortunate girl ate four candies out of the paper bag which Mrs. Ada Bruce claims was left her by her husband, James Bruce, earlier in the afternoon. In one hour from that time Rose Zeipe was dead, and three companions, who had each eaten one or two of the candies, complained of feeling ill, but were restored without trouble.

Bruce Ate Candy.

The police say that Bruce admitted taking the chocolates to his wife, and said he had bought them at S. W Shotters, 244 York street. Bruce also told one of the detectives that he had eaten one of the candies himself. Shotter, when questioned, did not recall having sold the candies to Bruce, but explained that his store was a busy place on Saturday, and unless he had some particular reason to remember the purchase he would not be able to throw any light on the transaction. The police intend to have Shotter taken to the cells to see Bruce. The hospital authorities, who are willing to talk, say they believe Rose Zeipe died of strychnine poisoning, as the symptoms strongly pointed to that.

Organs Being Analyzed.

The internal organs of the victim have been forwarded to the Government analyst at Toronto, and the police say nothing much can be done until the report of the expert is received.

The jury empanelled by Dr. Rennie met at noon today, with Robert B. Spera as foreman. Mr. Spera, by the way, was the foreman of the coroner's jury which investigated the Kinrade murder mystery. There was nothing to do but to view the remains and adjourn until August 20.

Bruce is reported to have spent a very comfortable night in the cell. He is being held on the nominal charge of vagrancy, and this afternoon sent for Charles W Bell, a local lawyer, who will look after his interests. The activities of the police today were confined to an effort to trace purchases that have been made of strychnine, which will be followed up and thoroughly investigated.

Mrs. Bruce was seriously ill after the terrible events of last night, but the hospital people say she is recovering all right. One of her s
